COMMUNISTS WIN CZECH CONTROL

Stopgap Rent Bill Is Flown To President

Senate Approves Control Extender

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25 — (AP) — A bill keeping the lid on rents until March 31 passed Congress today and a plane will hurry it to President Truman in Key West, Fla.

The Senate quickly approved a one-month extension of the present law which expires next Sunday. The House passed it yesterday. Both acted by voice vote. The bill may reach Mr. Truman on his southern tour tomorrow for his signature.

No attempt was made in the Senate to plug a loophole which it debated yesterday. This permits unlimited rent charges when a lease signed under the present law is cancelled. If the Senate had made any change in the bill, the measure would have been delayed until the House could agree.

Myers Calls It "Sleeper"

But this "sleeper"—as Sen. Myers (D-Pa.) dubbed it—is knocked out in the Senate new 14-month rent control proposal which it passed yesterday and sent to the House. This bill simply would roll back any such extra increases. The House will go to work on this longer-term rent bill next month.

The whole purpose of the 30-day emergency extension is to give Congress time to agree on controls to replace the present law for a year or more.

Sen. Taft (R-Ohio) told the Senate today he had assurance of the House Banking Committee that it will give prompt attention to the Senate's rent bill.

Emphasis On Speed

Both Sens. Taft and Flanders (R-Vt.) said yesterday that the stop-gap 30-day rent bill should be tightened to knock out the "sleeper" provision. But nothing was said about it when the bill came up today. The emphasis was on speed with the law's expiration only four days away.

However, Sen. Cain (R-Wash.) said yesterday that the loophole affected a "relatively small number" of leases signed under the present rent law and cancelled this year. The law permitted landlords and tenants to agree by December 31, 1947, to a 15 per cent increase in a lease running through 1948.

GAO Charges War Contract "Fraud"

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25 — (AP) — Comptroller General Lindsay Warren reported evidence of widespread "fraud" today in the settlement of war contracts, and Rep. Bender (R-Ohio) promised a prompt investigation.

Bender is chairman of a House Expenditures Subcommittee which is studying war contracts.

Warren, head of the General Accounting Office, said examination of a limited number of settlements "has disclosed evidence indicating a reasonable probability that one out of every 20 settlements examined, and 50 cents out of every $100 paid on all such settlements, may have been based on fraud."

Warren told Congress in a report that he was convinced that "at least 145" of the settlements his office had examined involved "improper" payments totaling nearly $4,000,000. In an additional 185 cases, he said, there is a reason to believe that improper payments amounting to more than $800,000 were made to 27 contractors.

He said the "improper" payments had been called to the attention of the Justice Department.

Bender said that Warren's report "is in line with what I have previously claimed, that millions of dollars of the taxpayers' money has been wasted and literally given to war contractors.

Evacuation Ship

LIVERPOOL, England, Thursday, Feb. 26 (AP)—The 20,000-ton troopship Samaria sailed last night to evacuate more than 2,000 British soldiers and civilians from Palestine.

HEIRESS IN COURT—Heiress Gioia Barker Grimditch, figure in a sensational divorce case, and her attorney are shown entering the courtroom at Phoenix, Ariz., yesterday, when William Henry Grimditch, Jr., member of a socially-prominent Philadelphia family, read from his wife's diary and love letters in an effort to substantiate his charges of infidelity. U. S. Asks Big 5 To Try To Settle Palestine Crisis

Armed Jews Storm British Compound

LAKE SUCCESS, Feb. 25 (AP)—The United States formally asked today that the Big Five powers try to solve the Palestine problem.

The United States at the same time rejected Colombia's surprise suggestion for a special United Nations Assembly to reconsider the decision to partition Palestine.

In acknowledged haste, Warren R. Austin, chief United States delegate, introduced in the United Nations Security Council the proposals he outlined yesterday.

These call for the council to ask the five great powers to report on the situation in Palestine, consider whether it is a threat to the peace, and consult with the Jews, Arabs and British on carrying out the 1947 Assembly's partition project.

A British spokesman said his government could not go along with the suggestion that the Big Five consult with the principals. He said the British definitely were leaving Palestine by August 1 and would not take part in carrying out partition.

Jews Storm Compound

JERUSALEM, Feb. 25 (AP)—Armed Jews stormed a British military court compound in Jerusalem today, tossed incendiary bombs and killed an Arab guard.

Two other guards were wounded in this latest manifestation of anti-British feeling among the Jews as a result of the Sunday blast on Ben Yehuda Street.

For the fourth night in a row Jews hunted for victims in the debris. Another body was recovered to bring the blast death toll to 54. An official source said 20 persons were still missing.

Senators Back U. N. Plea

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25 (AP) — Sens. Ives (R-N.Y.) and Pepper (D-Fla.) spoke out today against any backing down on the United Nations decision to split Palestine.

Ives said this country and other members should make sure that United Nations takes "definite, uncompromising and immediate action" to put the partition plan into effect.

Pepper said he was disturbed by reports that the partition might be delayed or even scrapped. He said the plan was "an honestly made decision" which the United States and all the other United Nations should "stand behind."

Chinese Reds Advance

PEIPING, Thursday, Feb. 26 (AP)—Chinese Communist forces captured several towns in the Mukden area today and the situation became extremely critical for government troops trying to defend the encircled city.

Kaiser, Famous Carrier Pigeon, Will Be 31 Soon

FORT MONMOUTH, N. J., Feb. 25 (AP)—Kaiser attains his 31st birthday Friday to the wonderment of the pigeon breeding world.

The famous United States Signal Corps bird, rated by Signal Corps experts as the oldest pigeon in the history of the breed, served with honors in two wars and with two armies.

Kaiser was captured during the First World War during an American charge on a front line trench in the Meuse offensive of 1918. He had been trained by the German army as a carrier pigeon. The United States Services of Supply immediately pressed him into service.

NLRB Wins First Round Of Legal Battle With ITU

Injunction Suit's Dismissal Denied

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 25 (AP)—The National Labor Relations Board today won the first round of its legal fight with the International Typographical Union over the constitutionality of the Taft-Hartley Act's injunctive processes.

Federal Judge Luther M. Swygert denied the union's motion to dismiss an injunction suit brought against it by the office of Robert N. Denham, general counsel for the NLRB.

The injunction is sought as a temporary measure to prevent the printers from engaging in what the NLRB says are unfair labor practices. NLRB attorneys expect an injunction would halt strikes in 14 newspaper publishing plants over the country.

The NLRB, now considering the charges of unfair labor practices, will ultimately determine whether the printers are violating the act.

Judge Swygert's action opens the way for a hearing here at 10 a. m. (CST), March 3, on the injunction suit.

Judge Swygert held in a 5,500-word opinion that (1) Section 10-J of the Taft-Hartley Act which permits the government to seek injunctive relief is constitutional, and (2) that the NLRB has authority to delegate to its general counsel the power to institute injunction suits.

Holding that Section 10-J did not violate "the due process principle," Judge Swygert said maintenance of the union's contention "would cast a presumption of a lack of due process upon every equitable proceeding which undertakes to grant such relief."

"In sum, the proceedings would be tested for due process not at its conclusion, but at its start," he pointed out. "Such contention in respect to this type of remedy is, of course, untenable."

Czech Coup May Blow Lid Off Secret Papers

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25—(AP)—The political upheaval in Czechoslovakia may blow the lid off secret documents explaining Soviet-American wartime arrangements for liberating that nation.

These papers would supply Washington's official answers to such questions as why American forces failed to aid in the liberation of the Czech capital, Prague, from the Germans and why the United States troops stopped short just inside the Czech western border.

Apparently they also would add another chapter to the story of how the Soviets were able to get the upper hand in Eastern European countries from the very end of the war.

Anti-Lynch Law OK'd By House Subcommittee

74 Congressmen In "Rebel" Group

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25—(AP)—A federal anti-lynching law was approved by a House Judiciary Subcommittee today in the face of a growing southern Democratic revolt against this and other civil rights proposals of President Truman.

Seventy-four House Democrats, it was disclosed, now have pledged themselves to a finish fight against Mr. Truman's anti-lynching, anti-"Jim Crow" and other recommendations involving states' rights and race relations in the South.

Now striving openly to prevent Mr. Truman's nomination for a full term in the White House, "rebel" leaders focused their attention on Richmond, one-time capital of the Confederacy, where Gov. Tuck plans a special message to the Virginia General assembly tomorrow.

Call For State Action Seen

They considered it certain Tuck would call for state action against the Truman program. And there were indications he would propose that the name of the Democratic presidential candidate be left off the Virginia ballot next November.

This would mean that Virginia's 11 electoral votes would not have to be cast for Mr. Truman if he is nominated by the Democratic national convention next July. A similar half-secession threat is being considered in other southern states.

The anti-lynch law, introduced by Rep. Case (R-NJ), was approved by an unofficially reported three to two vote. Rep. Cravens (D-Ark) said he voted against it. The other subcommittee members, one of whom presumably did not vote, are Reps. Case, Fellows (R-Me), Devitt (R-Minn), Byrne (D-NY) and Frighan (D-Ohio).

The measure now goes to the full Judiciary Committee, scheduled to meet tomorrow. This committee could send it to the House floor for an early vote. Of the 26 committee members, six are Democrats from the South.

Provides Jail Terms, Fines

The bill is similar to others which have been passed by the House but "talked down" in the Senate. It would permit the federal government to prosecute persons accused of taking part in a lynching or law officers charged with failing to do all they could to prevent a lynching.

Those accused could be tried in federal courts far from the scene of the lynching. Jail sentences up to 10 years and fines up to $20,000 could be imposed. And lynch victims—or their survivors—could be awarded damages up to $10,000 from the city or county where the violence occurred if there was any negligence by police.

Truman Budget Doesn't Show All, Aiken Says

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25—(AP)—President Truman's budget fails to show $3,750,000,000 which is available for spending in the next fiscal year, Sen. Aiken (R-Vt) said today.

Mr. Truman's budget for the year beginning July 1 lists requests for $39,668,983,000. But Aiken told his colleagues that other available funds bring the total to $43,433,118,818.

Aiken handed to each senator an 18-page booklet which he called a "portable budget." It contains, he said, all major data in the 1,500 pages of fine print in the regular budget.

He said part of the additional available money results from previous appropriations. Other comes from indefinite appropriations or special funds or authorizations allowed earlier, he added.

U. S. May Impose Curbs On Goods Going To Czechs

Additional Steps Being Considered

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25 — (AP) — The American government may clamp rigid export controls on goods going to Czechoslovakia.

Government officials told a reporter they are seriously considering this move as a way of expressing displeasure at the Communist overturn of the Czech government.

Such controls, they said, would limit the amount of heavy machinery and equipment Czechoslovakia can buy in the United States.

During 1947, such heavy equipment made up $11,129,000 of the $49,000,000 Czechoslovakia spent for American goods.

The theory behind any export cut would be that "other friendly" countries could better use the products, many of them scarce items.

Top-level government officials said these additional steps might follow:

1. The government's Export-Import Bank would "definitely kill" whatever chances the Czech government has of getting $20,000,000 cotton credit.

2. The Treasury could freeze whatever assets the Czechoslovak government has in this country.

3. The American representative on the World Bank might oppose Czechoslovakia's long-standing application for a $350,000,000 re-construction loan.

4. The American delegate on the International Monetary Fund could block any Czech request on the grounds that a regimented Czechoslovakia would be a poor credit risk.

Westinghouse's White Collar Workers Ask Hike

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 25 (AP) — The negotiating committee of the Federation of Westinghouse Independent Salaried Unions today asked for "a general increase of 20 cents per hour for all white collar workers."

The union, representing 15,000 members in some 22 Westinghouse plants throughout the nation, made the demand as bargaining sessions with management on economic features got underway.

Nagy, Dimitrov See Red Attempt At Italian Coup

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25 — (INS) — Former Hungarian Premier Ferenc Nagy and Georgi Dimitrov, Bulgarian Peasant Party leader, said tonight that the Communists may attempt to "take over" Italy before the April elections and set off a reign of terror in France.

Their comments were made as Nagy reported that President Benes has become a virtual "prisoner" as a result of the Red coup in Czechoslovakia which hoisted 13 Communists to top Cabinet posts.

Dimitrov, International Peasant Union head, interpreted the seizure of Czechoslovakia as the first step in Moscow's strategy to kindle revolutions throughout Europe.

Steel Executive Fears ERP Might Cause Depression

Caution Is Urged By Ernest T. Weir

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25 (AP) — Congress was urged by a leading industrialist today to proceed cautiously with aid to Europe because the Marshall plan could lead to a "serious depression" in this country.

Chairman Ernest T. Wier, of the National Steel Corporation, told the House Foreign Affairs Committee:

"To those who are alarmed by the prospect of an expansion of Russian Communism, I say that a serious depression in the United States is the greatest thing to fear."

This will come about, Weir said, if vast sums "wasted through inefficient spending abroad" are added to the "fantastic cost of government at home."

He advised Congress to resist "administration propaganda" and vote nothing but "urgent relief" until a "thorough, careful" study is made of Europe's ability to help itself.

Weir said he was convinced that the nations of Europe "will not go Communistic." If American aid is intended as a bribe "to stop Communism," he added, "we just can't make that bridge big enough."

The committee heard a similar depression forecast yesterday from Henry A. Wallace. But the third party presidential candidate said the slump would result from giving foreign aid in the interest of "big business."

President Truman has asked $6,800,000,000 for the first 15 months of a European recovery program. The Senate Foreign Relations Committee has recommended $5,300,000,000 for the first year. The House group plans to start its own closed door study of the question next week.

Britain Not Backing Up On Her Antarctic Claims

LONDON, Feb. 25 (AP)—Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin said today Britain would insist on her claims to disputed islands south of Cape Horn despite Argentine and Chilean fleet expeditions to set up bases there.

Bevin told the House of Commons that renewed Argentine-Chilean claims and fleet maneuvers were "highly regrettable."

"In the opinion of the British government these expeditions and declarations of the actions which accompany them in no way effect the title and sovereignty in these areas," he said.

Truman Returns To United States From Caribbean

President's Final Hours At Sea Rough

KEY WEST, Fla., Feb. 25 (AP) — President Truman returned to the United States tonight from a five-day good will visit to the Caribbean, happy to be back on the ground after rough final hours at sea.

Stopping over at the naval operating base at Guantanamo, Cuba, for lunch when the presidential yacht USS Williamsburg anchored there in the early afternoon, Mr. Truman told reporters:

"Nobody got seasick aboard the Williamsburg." Then, a twinkle in his eyes, he showed the newsmen his fingers were crossed.

The President flew in from Guantanamo in the "Sacred Cow" landing at the Boca Chica airport eight miles away. The plane trip was uneventful. He drove to the commandant's house in the submarine base for his fourth Key West vacation since taking office.

The Chief Executive, tired after visiting three successive days at San Juan, Puerto Rico, and St. Thomas and St. Croix in the Virgin Islands, slept 10 hours aboard the Williamsburg yesterday.

Sailing windward passage between Cuba and Haiti this morning, the Williamsburg was whipped by 40-mile winds. It pitched and tossed in technically "moderate seas" and kept most of the President's party in bed.

They all looked fatigued when they stepped ashore in Cuba.

"How did you stand up under the rough passage?" a reporter asked the President when he arrived at the Officers Club on Guantanamo.

"I stood up all right for the simple reason I didn't get up," he said. "I stayed in bed. Whenever I felt uneasy, I just leaned back."

Met by Capt. C. E. Battle, Jr., commander of the base and United States ambassador to Cuba, R. Henry Norweb, Cleveland, O., who flew in from Havana, the President inspected the Marine honor guard and Navy band before hurrying on to lunch.

Exactly an hour and 55 minutes after he stepped ashore in Cuba at 2 p. m., the President was airborne for Florida for a vacation he hopes can continue until March 5.

Laraine's Coat Stolen

SANTA MONICA, Calif., Feb. 25 (AP)—Theft of her $8,000 mink coat from the floor of her automobile was reported to police today by Actress Laraine Day.

She said the thief ripped open the car's top while she and Hubby Leo Durocher, the baseball manager, were in a nearby market.

Benes Yields; Police Check Demonstration

President Approves Gottwald Government

PRAGUE, Feb. 25 (AP) — Communists won control of Czechoslovakia today.

Communist Premier Klement Gottwald beat down President Eduard Benes' resistance after six days of crisis in this Central European nation of 13,000,000. He emerged with a new government of his party members and their friends.

Following Benes' capitulation, students massed at ancient Charles University and marched to the President's palace. Police halted the demonstration by swinging rifle stocks and driving a bus into the crowd.

A student told newsmen he heard shots fired when three students carrying Czech flags broke through a police cordon into the palace courtyard. The shooting was not confirmed officially and it was not determined whether there were casualties.

Fifty students were arrested.

Gottwald's coup was accomplished by direct political action backed by a show of arms.

The aging Benes managed to keep the appearances of representative government, for which he battled hard, but it appeared a hollow victory.

Masaryk Still Foreign Minister

Jan Masaryk, son of the founder of the republic, is still in the government as Foreign Minister. So is Bohumil Lausmann, Social Democrat who led his party in its short revolt against pro-Communist guidance.

From a minority party, largest in Czechoslovakia, the Communists came through with complete command of every other phase of the nation's life. They are now in position to take Czechoslovakia on a toboggan ride into the full Soviet orbit.

They now have the Ministry of Justice, as well as control of the police. A sympathizer remains at the head of the defense department, the army.

Benes had insisted that the government be composed of members of other parties of the national front which reinstated the Czechoslovak republic in 1945 when the Germans were being driven out. Gottwald had proposed a government representing Communists and other organizations — veterans, labor, farmers, youth and so on, all Communist front groups.

In this Benes won an outward victory. There still are representatives in name of the Social Democratic, Czech National Socialist, Catholic Peoples and Slovak Democrat Parties in the government. But all are friendly and co-operative with Gottwald and many are considered renegades by party regulars.

12 Communists In Government

There appeared to be a break in the heretofore strict party lineup of the government. Antonin Zapotocky, a Communist, was named a deputy premier. His presence in the government appeared due to his position as head of the trades union organization.

The new government consists of 12 Communists (there were seven before), four Social Democrats, two Czech National Socialists, two Catholic Peoples Party members, one Slovak Democrat, and two non-party men, Masaryk and Gen. Ludwig Svoboda, Minister of Defense.

President Benes announced he had approved the new government

Civil War Is Reported Threatening In Yemen

CAIRO, Feb. 25 (AP)—Cables received in Cairo today said civil war is threatening in Yemen.

The newspaper Alhram said in a dispatch from Aden that rival forces had already clashed in San'a, capital of Yemen.

A message received here from Crown Prince Seif El Islam Ahmed, eldest son of the Iman Yehia reported slain in a coup last week, said the wives of his assassinated father and his sons were being besieged in their homes. He said he had proclaimed himself Imam, or ruler.

The cables were received at the Egyptian royal palace, Arab League headquarters, the Egyptian Council of Minister and Foreign Office.

"Protection" Is Arranged For Meyers Trial Witness

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25 — (AP) The government disclosed today had arranged "protection" for pretty feminine witness in the trial of Maj. Gen. Bennett E. Meyers.

"Protection against what? in the name of heaven," demanded Defense Council Robert T. Bushnell.

"Well, you can use your imagination," replied Assistant United States Attorney John Finelly, and he did not explain.

The witness is Mrs. June Ballou Grinsted, Boron, Calif., attractive former stenographer at the Army's Wright Feld, near Dayton, O.

Under questioning Mrs. Grinsted said the government requested that, for "protection," she stay at the same Washington hotel where two other key government witnesses, Mr. and Mrs. Bleriot H. Lamarre, are staying.

The 52-year-old Gen. Meyers, former deputy purchasing chief of the Army Air Forces, is charged with inducing Lamarre to give false testimony about Meyers' private business deals at a Senate investigation.

Bushnell broke into Mrs. Grinsted's testimony to move for a mistrial.

Federal Judge Alexander Holtzoff denied the motion but instructed the jury to disregard the testimony about "protection."

Mrs. Grinsted testified that Gen Meyers put the bulk of the stock ownership of the Aviation Electric Company, of Dayton, in her name.

Grimditch Reads From Wife's Diary, Letters In Effort To Uphold Charge

PHOENIX, Ariz. Feb. 25 (AP) — William Henry Grimditch, Jr., read with steely clam today from his heiress wife's diary and love letters in an effort to substantiate his charges of infidelity.

The 24-year-old son of a socially prominent and wealthy Philadelphia family testified in Superior Court that "incriminating evidence in letters and the diary" made him realize Gioia Barker Grimditch "was not a fit mother for my children."

Mrs. Grimditch, 23-year-old great granddaughter of the financier, Jay Gould, propped her feet on a chair, leaned back and drummed her fingers on the counsel table as the letters were read.

Mrs. Grimditch brought the divorce action, charging her husband deserted her. Grimditch countered with a cross-complaint in which he alleged Gioia was intimate with several men while he was overseas.

He read three letters to his wife from Blake Brophy, son of a Phoenix banker.

Entries on dates on which Grimditch alleged his wife was unfaithful included:

"Jan. 1—Party. It's nearly impossible that I am going to do it. I can too. You go out this door and I the other— so it was.

"Jan. 14—Kay's wedding. Lovely crowd reception. Tied one on. George followed me home at 2 a. m. Kept saying all night, George get up and close the door.

"Jan. 17 — Music lesson. Lunch Pris and Jim. 'Lost Weekend.' Blake and I might live in a Tahiti tent."

"Sept. 5—Flew back. Drove down. Saw Blake this after. Mic, Joan and I were stinking. Jack took me home. . . ."

Grimditch told the court the letters gave him the first indication that his wife might have been unfaithful.

He read excerpts for nearly an hour but his attorneys stopped him before the volume was completed.

Counsel for Gioia contended that Grimditch had misinterpreted his wife's diary because he was "puritanical," resented her friends and activities, and did not understand her slang.

Grimditch, in reply to questions, said he did not drink or smoke.

He denied he had threatened to "smear" his wife to gain custody of their two children.

Two Gunmen Take Officer, Couple On Ride Of Terror

CHICAGO, Feb. 25 (AP)—Two gunmen in cowboy boots today beat and disarmed a policeman, took him and a young couple on a terror ride through southwestern suburbs, and attempted to kill the officer. They were frustrated by a pistol that misfired five times.

The gunmen escaped.

State Patrolman Paul Chandler gave this account.

He had stopped his squad car to question the two men about a tavern holdup earlier today. Suddenly one of them struck him in the face, knocking him to the ground. Then both drew guns and took Chandler's pistol.

While one kept Chandler covered, the other stopped an automobile occupied by Lester Rocchio, 25, Tinley Park, Ill., and Miss Dorothy Brida, 21, Argo, Ill. Chandler was ordered into the front seat with Rocchio and Miss Brida while the gunmen entered the rear seat.

Rocchio was ordered to drive west to a point near suburban Orland Park. There one of the them asked the other: "Should I kill him now (indicating Chandler)?" The other replied: "Sure, If you want to."

The gunman pressed the trigger five times, but the weapon misfired each time. Cursing, the men shoved Chandler and the couple from the car and drove off.

The policeman said the men were wearing cowboy boots.

FORT MONMOUTH, N. J., Feb. 25 (AP)—Kaiser attains his 31st birthday Friday to the wonderment of the pigeon breeding world.

The famous United States Signal Corps bird, rated by Signal Corps experts as the oldest pigeon in the history of the breed, served with honors in two wars and with two armies.

Kaiser was captured during the First World War during an American charge on a front line trench in the Meuse offensive of 1918. He had been trained by the German army as a carrier pigeon. The United States Services of Supply immediately pressed him into service.

During the Second World War his offspring carried on in the Kaiser tradition.

Injunction Suit's Dismissal Denied

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 25 (AP)—The National Labor Relations Board today won the first round of its legal fight with the International Typographical Union over the constitutionality of the Taft-Hartley Act's injunctive processes.

Federal Judge Luther M. Swygert denied the union's motion to dismiss an injunction suit brought against it by the office of Robert N. Denham, general counsel for the NLRB.

The injunction is sought as a temporary measure to prevent the printers from engaging in what the NLRB says are unfair labor practices. NLRB attorneys expect an injunction would halt strikes in 14 newspaper publishing plants over the country.

The NLRB, now considering the charges of unfair labor practices, will ultimately determine whether the printers are violating the act.

Judge Swygert's action opens the way for a hearing here at 10 a. m. (CST), March 3, on the injunction suit.

Judge Swygert held in a 5,500-word opinion that (1) Section 10-J of the Taft-Hartley Act which permits the government to seek injunctive relief is constitutional, and (2) that the NLRB has authority to delegate to its general counsel the power to institute injunction suits.

Holding that Section 10-J did not violate "the due process principle," Judge Swygert said maintenance of the union's contention "would cast a presumption of a lack of due process upon every equitable proceeding which undertakes to grant such relief."

"In sum, the proceedings would be tested for due process not at its conclusion, but at its start," he pointed out. "Such contention in respect to this type of remedy is, of course, untenable."

Czech Coup May Blow Lid Off Secret Papers

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25—(AP)—The political upheaval in Czechoslovakia may blow the lid off secret documents explaining Soviet-American wartime arrangements for liberating that nation.

These papers would supply Washington's official answers to such questions as why American forces failed to aid in the liberation of the Czech capital, Prague, from the Germans and why the United States troops stopped short just inside the Czech western border.

Apparently they also would add another chapter to the story of how the Soviets were able to get the upper hand in Eastern European countries from the very end of the war.

Anti-Lynch Law OK'd By House Subcommittee

74 Congressmen In "Rebel" Group

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25—(AP)—A federal anti-lynching law was approved by a House Judiciary Subcommittee today in the face of a growing southern Democratic revolt against this and other civil rights proposals of President Truman.

Seventy-four House Democrats, it was disclosed, now have pledged themselves to a finish fight against Mr. Truman's anti-lynching, anti-"Jim Crow" and other recommendations involving states' rights and race relations in the South.

Now striving openly to prevent Mr. Truman's nomination for a full term in the White House, "rebel" leaders focused their attention on Richmond, one-time capital of the Confederacy, where Gov. Tuck plans a special message to the Virginia General assembly tomorrow.

Call For State Action Seen

They considered it certain Tuck would call for state action against the Truman program. And there were indications he would propose that the name of the Democratic presidential candidate be left off the Virginia ballot next November.

This would mean that Virginia's 11 electoral votes would not have to be cast for Mr. Truman if he is nominated by the Democratic national convention next July. A similar half-secession threat is being considered in other southern states.

The anti-lynch law, introduced by Rep. Case (R-NJ), was approved by an unofficially reported three to two vote. Rep. Cravens (D-Ark) said he voted against it. The other subcommittee members, one of whom presumably did not vote, are Reps. Case, Fellows (R-Me), Devitt (R-Minn), Byrne (D-NY) and Frighan (D-Ohio).

The measure now goes to the full Judiciary Committee, scheduled to meet tomorrow. This committee could send it to the House floor for an early vote. Of the 26 committee members, six are Democrats from the South.

Provides Jail Terms, Fines

The bill is similar to others which have been passed by the House but "talked down" in the Senate. It would permit the federal government to prosecute persons accused of taking part in a lynching or law officers charged with failing to do all they could to prevent a lynching.

Those accused could be tried in federal courts far from the scene of the lynching. Jail sentences up to 10 years and fines up to $20,000 could be imposed. And lynch victims—or their survivors—could be awarded damages up to $10,000 from the city or county where the violence occurred if there was any negligence by police.

Truman Budget Doesn't Show All, Aiken Says

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25—(AP)—President Truman's budget fails to show $3,750,000,000 which is available for spending in the next fiscal year, Sen. Aiken (R-Vt) said today.

Mr. Truman's budget for the year beginning July 1 lists requests for $39,668,983,000. But Aiken told his colleagues that other available funds bring the total to $43,433,118,818.

Aiken handed to each senator an 18-page booklet which he called a "portable budget." It contains, he said, all major data in the 1,500 pages of fine print in the regular budget.

He said part of the additional available money results from previous appropriations. Other comes from indefinite appropriations or special funds or authorizations allowed earlier, he added.

U. S. May Impose Curbs On Goods Going To Czechs

Additional Steps Being Considered

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25 — (AP) — The American government may clamp rigid export controls on goods going to Czechoslovakia.

Government officials told a reporter they are seriously considering this move as a way of expressing displeasure at the Communist overturn of the Czech government.

Such controls, they said, would limit the amount of heavy machinery and equipment Czechoslovakia can buy in the United States.

During 1947, such heavy equipment made up $11,129,000 of the $49,000,000 Czechoslovakia spent for American goods.

The theory behind any export cut would be that "other friendly" countries could better use the products, many of them scarce items.

Top-level government officials said these additional steps might follow:

1. The government's Export-Import Bank would "definitely kill" whatever chances the Czech government has of getting $20,000,000 cotton credit.

2. The Treasury could freeze whatever assets the Czechoslovak government has in this country.

3. The American representative on the World Bank might oppose Czechoslovakia's long-standing application for a $350,000,000 re-construction loan.

4. The American delegate on the International Monetary Fund could block any Czech request on the grounds that a regimented Czechoslovakia would be a poor credit risk.

Westinghouse's White Collar Workers Ask Hike

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 25 (AP) — The negotiating committee of the Federation of Westinghouse Independent Salaried Unions today asked for "a general increase of 20 cents per hour for all white collar workers."

The union, representing 15,000 members in some 22 Westinghouse plants throughout the nation, made the demand as bargaining sessions with management on economic features got underway.

Nagy, Dimitrov See Red Attempt At Italian Coup

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25 — (INS) — Former Hungarian Premier Ferenc Nagy and Georgi Dimitrov, Bulgarian Peasant Party leader, said tonight that the Communists may attempt to "take over" Italy before the April elections and set off a reign of terror in France.

Their comments were made as Nagy reported that President Benes has become a virtual "prisoner" as a result of the Red coup in Czechoslovakia which hoisted 13 Communists to top Cabinet posts.

Dimitrov, International Peasant Union head, interpreted the seizure of Czechoslovakia as the first step in Moscow's strategy to kindle revolutions throughout Europe.

Steel Executive Fears ERP Might Cause Depression

Caution Is Urged By Ernest T. Weir

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25 (AP) — Congress was urged by a leading industrialist today to proceed cautiously with aid to Europe because the Marshall plan could lead to a "serious depression" in this country.

Chairman Ernest T. Wier, of the National Steel Corporation, told the House Foreign Affairs Committee:

"To those who are alarmed by the prospect of an expansion of Russian Communism, I say that a serious depression in the United States is the greatest thing to fear."

This will come about, Weir said, if vast sums "wasted through inefficient spending abroad" are added to the "fantastic cost of government at home."

He advised Congress to resist "administration propaganda" and vote nothing but "urgent relief" until a "thorough, careful" study is made of Europe's ability to help itself.

Weir said he was convinced that the nations of Europe "will not go Communistic." If American aid is intended as a bribe "to stop Communism," he added, "we just can't make that bridge big enough."

The committee heard a similar depression forecast yesterday from Henry A. Wallace. But the third party presidential candidate said the slump would result from giving foreign aid in the interest of "big business."

President Truman has asked $6,800,000,000 for the first 15 months of a European recovery program. The Senate Foreign Relations Committee has recommended $5,300,000,000 for the first year. The House group plans to start its own closed door study of the question next week.

Britain Not Backing Up On Her Antarctic Claims

LONDON, Feb. 25 (AP)—Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin said today Britain would insist on her claims to disputed islands south of Cape Horn despite Argentine and Chilean fleet expeditions to set up bases there.

Bevin told the House of Commons that renewed Argentine-Chilean claims and fleet maneuvers were "highly regrettable."

"In the opinion of the British government these expeditions and declarations of the actions which accompany them in no way effect the title and sovereignty in these areas," he said.

Truman Returns To United States From Caribbean

President's Final Hours At Sea Rough

KEY WEST, Fla., Feb. 25 (AP) — President Truman returned to the United States tonight from a five-day good will visit to the Caribbean, happy to be back on the ground after rough final hours at sea.

Stopping over at the naval operating base at Guantanamo, Cuba, for lunch when the presidential yacht USS Williamsburg anchored there in the early afternoon, Mr. Truman told reporters:

"Nobody got seasick aboard the Williamsburg." Then, a twinkle in his eyes, he showed the newsmen his fingers were crossed.

The President flew in from Guantanamo in the "Sacred Cow" landing at the Boca Chica airport eight miles away. The plane trip was uneventful. He drove to the commandant's house in the submarine base for his fourth Key West vacation since taking office.

The Chief Executive, tired after visiting three successive days at San Juan, Puerto Rico, and St. Thomas and St. Croix in the Virgin Islands, slept 10 hours aboard the Williamsburg yesterday.

Sailing windward passage between Cuba and Haiti this morning, the Williamsburg was whipped by 40-mile winds. It pitched and tossed in technically "moderate seas" and kept most of the President's party in bed.

They all looked fatigued when they stepped ashore in Cuba.

"How did you stand up under the rough passage?" a reporter asked the President when he arrived at the Officers Club on Guantanamo.

"I stood up all right for the simple reason I didn't get up," he said. "I stayed in bed. Whenever I felt uneasy, I just leaned back."

Met by Capt. C. E. Battle, Jr., commander of the base and United States ambassador to Cuba, R. Henry Norweb, Cleveland, O., who flew in from Havana, the President inspected the Marine honor guard and Navy band before hurrying on to lunch.

Exactly an hour and 55 minutes after he stepped ashore in Cuba at 2 p. m., the President was airborne for Florida for a vacation he hopes can continue until March 5.

Laraine's Coat Stolen

SANTA MONICA, Calif., Feb. 25 (AP)—Theft of her $8,000 mink coat from the floor of her automobile was reported to police today by Actress Laraine Day.

She said the thief ripped open the car's top while she and Hubby Leo Durocher, the baseball manager, were in a nearby market.

Benes Yields; Police Check Demonstration

President Approves Gottwald Government

PRAGUE, Feb. 25 (AP) — Communists won control of Czechoslovakia today.

Communist Premier Klement Gottwald beat down President Eduard Benes' resistance after six days of crisis in this Central European nation of 13,000,000. He emerged with a new government of his party members and their friends.

Following Benes' capitulation, students massed at ancient Charles University and marched to the President's palace. Police halted the demonstration by swinging rifle stocks and driving a bus into the crowd.

A student told newsmen he heard shots fired when three students carrying Czech flags broke through a police cordon into the palace courtyard. The shooting was not confirmed officially and it was not determined whether there were casualties.

Fifty students were arrested.

Gottwald's coup was accomplished by direct political action backed by a show of arms.

The aging Benes managed to keep the appearances of representative government, for which he battled hard, but it appeared a hollow victory.

Masaryk Still Foreign Minister

Jan Masaryk, son of the founder of the republic, is still in the government as Foreign Minister. So is Bohumil Lausmann, Social Democrat who led his party in its short revolt against pro-Communist guidance.

From a minority party, largest in Czechoslovakia, the Communists came through with complete command of every other phase of the nation's life. They are now in position to take Czechoslovakia on a toboggan ride into the full Soviet orbit.

They now have the Ministry of Justice, as well as control of the police. A sympathizer remains at the head of the defense department, the army.

Benes had insisted that the government be composed of members of other parties of the national front which reinstated the Czechoslovak republic in 1945 when the Germans were being driven out. Gottwald had proposed a government representing Communists and other organizations — veterans, labor, farmers, youth and so on, all Communist front groups.

In this Benes won an outward victory. There still are representatives in name of the Social Democratic, Czech National Socialist, Catholic Peoples and Slovak Democrat Parties in the government. But all are friendly and co-operative with Gottwald and many are considered renegades by party regulars.

12 Communists In Government

There appeared to be a break in the heretofore strict party lineup of the government. Antonin Zapotocky, a Communist, was named a deputy premier. His presence in the government appeared due to his position as head of the trades union organization.

The new government consists of 12 Communists (there were seven before), four Social Democrats, two Czech National Socialists, two Catholic Peoples Party members, one Slovak Democrat, and two non-party men, Masaryk and Gen. Ludwig Svoboda, Minister of Defense.

President Benes announced he had approved the new government

Civil War Is Reported Threatening In Yemen

CAIRO, Feb. 25 (AP)—Cables received in Cairo today said civil war is threatening in Yemen.

The newspaper Alhram said in a dispatch from Aden that rival forces had already clashed in San'a, capital of Yemen.

A message received here from Crown Prince Seif El Islam Ahmed, eldest son of the Iman Yehia reported slain in a coup last week, said the wives of his assassinated father and his sons were being besieged in their homes. He said he had proclaimed himself Imam, or ruler.

The cables were received at the Egyptian royal palace, Arab League headquarters, the Egyptian Council of Minister and Foreign Office.

Grimditch Reads From Wife's Diary, Letters In Effort To Uphold Charge

PHOENIX, Ariz. Feb. 25 (AP) — William Henry Grimditch, Jr., read with steely clam today from his heiress wife's diary and love letters in an effort to substantiate his charges of infidelity.

The 24-year-old son of a socially prominent and wealthy Philadelphia family testified in Superior Court that "incriminating evidence in letters and the diary" made him realize Gioia Barker Grimditch "was not a fit mother for my children."

Mrs. Grimditch, 23-year-old great granddaughter of the financier, Jay Gould, propped her feet on a chair, leaned back and drummed her fingers on the counsel table as the letters were read.

Mrs. Grimditch brought the divorce action, charging her husband deserted her. Grimditch countered with a cross-complaint in which he alleged Gioia was intimate with several men while he was overseas.

He read three letters to his wife from Blake Brophy, son of a Phoenix banker.

Entries on dates on which Grimditch alleged his wife was unfaithful included:

"Jan. 1—Party. It's nearly impossible that I am going to do it. I can too. You go out this door and I the other— so it was.

"Jan. 14—Kay's wedding. Lovely crowd reception. Tied one on. George followed me home at 2 a. m. Kept saying all night, George get up and close the door.

"Jan. 17 — Music lesson. Lunch Pris and Jim. 'Lost Weekend.' Blake and I might live in a Tahiti tent."

"Sept. 5—Flew back. Drove down. Saw Blake this after. Mic, Joan and I were stinking. Jack took me home. . . ."

Grimditch told the court the letters gave him the first indication that his wife might have been unfaithful.

He read excerpts for nearly an hour but his attorneys stopped him before the volume was completed.

Counsel for Gioia contended that Grimditch had misinterpreted his wife's diary because he was "puritanical," resented her friends and activities, and did not understand her slang.

Grimditch, in reply to questions, said he did not drink or smoke.

He denied he had threatened to "smear" his wife to gain custody of their two children.

"Protection" Is Arranged For Meyers Trial Witness

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25 — (AP) The government disclosed today had arranged "protection" for pretty feminine witness in the trial of Maj. Gen. Bennett E. Meyers.

"Protection against what? in the name of heaven," demanded Defense Council Robert T. Bushnell.

"Well, you can use your imagination," replied Assistant United States Attorney John Finelly, and he did not explain.

The witness is Mrs. June Ballou Grinsted, Boron, Calif., attractive former stenographer at the Army's Wright Feld, near Dayton, O.

Under questioning Mrs. Grinsted said the government requested that, for "protection," she stay at the same Washington hotel where two other key government witnesses, Mr. and Mrs. Bleriot H. Lamarre, are staying.

The 52-year-old Gen. Meyers, former deputy purchasing chief of the Army Air Forces, is charged with inducing Lamarre to give false testimony about Meyers' private business deals at a Senate investigation.

Bushnell broke into Mrs. Grinsted's testimony to move for a mistrial.

Federal Judge Alexander Holtzoff denied the motion but instructed the jury to disregard the testimony about "protection."

Mrs. Grinsted testified that Gen Meyers put the bulk of the stock ownership of the Aviation Electric Company, of Dayton, in her name.

Two Gunmen Take Officer, Couple On Ride Of Terror

CHICAGO, Feb. 25 (AP)—Two gunmen in cowboy boots today beat and disarmed a policeman, took him and a young couple on a terror ride through southwestern suburbs, and attempted to kill the officer. They were frustrated by a pistol that misfired five times.

The gunmen escaped.

State Patrolman Paul Chandler gave this account.

He had stopped his squad car to question the two men about a tavern holdup earlier today. Suddenly one of them struck him in the face, knocking him to the ground. Then both drew guns and took Chandler's pistol.

While one kept Chandler covered, the other stopped an automobile occupied by Lester Rocchio, 25, Tinley Park, Ill., and Miss Dorothy Brida, 21, Argo, Ill. Chandler was ordered into the front seat with Rocchio and Miss Brida while the gunmen entered the rear seat.

Rocchio was ordered to drive west to a point near suburban Orland Park. There one of the them asked the other: "Should I kill him now (indicating Chandler)?" The other replied: "Sure, If you want to."

The gunman pressed the trigger five times, but the weapon misfired each time. Cursing, the men shoved Chandler and the couple from the car and drove off.

The policeman said the men were wearing cowboy boots.

Steel Price Plot Hints Discounted

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25 (AP) — A top steel man—who didn't raise his prices—tonight scoffed at hints of price-boosting collusion in the steel industry, now under FBI investigation.

Ernest T. Weir, chairman of National Steel Corporation, told reporters the widespread $5 a ton increase is "by no means a universal or concerted price advance."

But in Congress a chorus of condemnation went on. A bill to revive the excess profits tax was introduced by Sen. O'Mahoney (D-Wyo). It is intended, he said, to curb the "extortionate gains" of big business.

Another Senate Democrat, Kilgore of West Virginia, said the price rise shows the need for the price-fixing power asked by President Truman. On the House floor Rep. Bakewell (R-Mo.) called attention to steel's high profit in 1947. He went on:

"The steel companies have given inflation a shot in the arm. They have given labor unions an unanswerable argument for wage increases."

Sen. Glen Taylor, of Idaho, vice-presidential running mate of Henry Wallace, said he would favor nationalization of the steel industry if the government cannot stem price increases.

Market Trend Continues Up

CHICAGO, Feb. 25 (AP)—The cost of living got the same faint signal from the wholesale markets and commodity exchanges today — a slight upward trend.

Since the brief, but violent, slump in commodity prices came to a halt on Friday, the 13th of this month, prices have been edging higher.

On the Chicago Board of Trade today nearly all grains and soybeans closed a little higher than yesterday. Since February 13, corn has gained as much as 21½ cents a bushel, wheat has moved up 5¾ to 6½ cents and oats are as much as 7⅝ cents higher.

Explorers To Begin Final Ascent Of African Peak

KILEMA MISSION, Tanganyika, Africa, (via short wave radio) Feb. 25 (INS)—Shortly before dawn Friday a small group of explorers will begin the final ascent of Mt. Kilimanjaro, the highest peak on the African continent.

The attempt to scale the 19,310-foot, snow-covered peak is the first important undertaking of the Gatti-Hallicrafter expedition.

Led by the famous Italian explorer, Commander Attilio Gatti, veteran of 10 treks to the "Dark Continent," the group will begin its dangerous ascent tomorrow morning.

The Gatti-Hallicrafter party has been in Africa since December, bent on a search for a terrifying gorilla-like beast called "Mulahu" by the Nambuti pygmies—and a trip into the weird "Mountains of the Moon."

Brewers Will Be Asked To Continue Saving Grain

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25 (AP) — Beer makers soon will be asked by the government to continue to limit their use of grains, at least until June 30.

Secretary of Agriculture Anderson will make the request, his office announced today. It will be based on saving grain for food and livestock.

Brewers now operate under a voluntary program which bans use of wheat, table-grade rice and feed barley and restricts use of corn. It was adopted last fall at the request of a citizens food conservation committee.

Anderson will propose a new program which would continue the rule against use of wheat and table rice, but ease limits on use of corn, feed barley and most other grains.

Government Rests Case In Boxer's Draft Trial

BALTIMORE, Feb. 25 (AP) — The government today rested its case against Benjamin Magliano charged with illegally avoiding induction under the Selective Service Act.

Known to his boxing associates as Benny Trotta, the fight manager is accused of lying about his Selective Service status. In United States District Court, District Attorney Bernard J. Flynn produced a statement that Magliano took a Baltimore waterfront job to stay out of the armed forces.

Seven Children Perish In Farmhouse Blaze

BURLINGTON, Ia., Feb. 25 (AP) — A flash fire swept through a frame farmhouse early today and burned seven children to death.

A flaming stairway prevented others in the 15-member Ellsworth Waterhouse family from reaching the trapped youngsters.

Donald Waterhouse, 15, one of the survivors, said his father awakened him at 3:45 a. m.

"I opened my eyes and saw the ceiling covered with flames," he said.

"We went to the stairway to try and reach the smaller children but the steps were a mass of fire.

"We called upstairs but didn't hear any answer.

"A little later I heard just a few cries. Then I didn't hear any more."

Kaiser-Frazer Corp. Will Eliminate Night Shift

WILLOW RUN, Mich., Feb., (INS) —The Kaiser-Frazer Corporation announced tonight that its night shift will be eliminated next Monday, resulting in indefinite layoffs for 2,400 wage earners.

Vice President and General Manager Edgar F. Kaiser said economy and efficiency will be stressed in a revised schedule of exclusive day-shift operations in line with "an economy drive in the face of mounting costs."

Kaiser observed that increasing operating expenses have "forced several auto manufacturers recently to raise prices."

Benes Yields

after accepting the resignations of 14 anti-Communist ministers. Twelve of them resigned last Friday in a deadlock over Communist attempts to promote Communists in the police department. Benes had refused to accept the resignations until today.

At the same time he accepted the resignations of two Social Democrats who had not resigned with the other non-Communists last Friday.

The anti-Communists were believed to have sought a showdown in the belief they could demonstrate Communist weakness in Czechoslovakia and force them into a general election before they were ready.

The strategy backfired, Gottwald counter-attacked, calling them "agents of foreign reaction" and demanding that Benes give him a free hand in forming a new government. Gottwald sprang into action with organization of "action committees" throughout the country. He named members of other parties to the committees but all were his friends.

Senate Group OKs Bill To Admit GIs' Fiancees

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25 (AP) — A House bill to admit alien sweethearts of GIs into the United States was approved today by the Senate Judiciary Committee.

The measure would permit fiancees of members of the armed forces to enter this country for at least three months through 1948. If they married during the three months, they could stay.

Police Search Launched For Mother Of Seven

UPPER MARLBORO, Md., Feb. 25 (AP)—A 38-year-old mother of seven children, who was carrying $1,300 in her purse when she left home, was the object of a police search tonight while her husband expressed growing concern as to her fate.

The state police teletype broadcast a missing persons notice for Mrs. Nora May Mullins, who with her husband, Orpha Mullins, operates a garage on Route 301, about three miles from Upper Marlboro.

Mullins said his wife left home in her car last evening to attend a movie. Two acquaintances spoke to her about 11 p. m. but she had not been seen since, he said.

The garage man said he became worried after discovery of his wife's car on the street, with four ignition wires ripped from their connections.

He said that her purse contained about $1,300 in cash and checks. Mullins added that it was not unusual for his wife to carry large sums because she managed the business affairs of the garage.

Philadelphia Commercial Printers Vote To Strike

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 25 (AP) — Approximately 900 union printers voted tonight to go on strike for wage increases against 26 major commercial printing firms in Philadelphia.

Sinclair Muir, president of Local Two of the AFL-International Typographical Union, said the printers' walkout——first since 1921 here—would begin tomorrow morning.

Newspaper plants are not involved in the dispute. Union printers at the plants, however, were eligible to take part in the strike vote, which Muir said was 1,110 for the walkout and 58 against.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25 (AP) — A top steel man—who didn't raise his prices—tonight scoffed at hints of price-boosting collusion in the steel industry, now under FBI investigation.

Ernest T. Weir, chairman of National Steel Corporation, told reporters the widespread $5 a ton increase is "by no means a universal or concerted price advance."

But in Congress a chorus of condemnation went on. A bill to revive the excess profits tax was introduced by Sen. O'Mahoney (D-Wyo). It is intended, he said, to curb the "extortionate gains" of big business.

Another Senate Democrat, Kilgore of West Virginia, said the price rise shows the need for the price-fixing power asked by President Truman. On the House floor Rep. Bakewell (R-Mo.) called attention to steel's high profit in 1947. He went on:

"The steel companies have given inflation a shot in the arm. They have given labor unions an unanswerable argument for wage increases."

Sen. Glen Taylor, of Idaho, vice-presidential running mate of Henry Wallace, said he would favor nationalization of the steel industry if the government cannot stem price increases.

Market Trend Continues Up

CHICAGO, Feb. 25 (AP)—The cost of living got the same faint signal from the wholesale markets and commodity exchanges today — a slight upward trend.

Since the brief, but violent, slump in commodity prices came to a halt on Friday, the 13th of this month, prices have been edging higher.

On the Chicago Board of Trade today nearly all grains and soybeans closed a little higher than yesterday. Since February 13, corn has gained as much as 21½ cents a bushel, wheat has moved up 5¾ to 6½ cents and oats are as much as 7⅝ cents higher.

Explorers To Begin Final Ascent Of African Peak

KILEMA MISSION, Tanganyika, Africa, (via short wave radio) Feb. 25 (INS)—Shortly before dawn Friday a small group of explorers will begin the final ascent of Mt. Kilimanjaro, the highest peak on the African continent.

The attempt to scale the 19,310-foot, snow-covered peak is the first important undertaking of the Gatti-Hallicrafter expedition.

Led by the famous Italian explorer, Commander Attillo Gatti, veteran of 10 treks to the "Dark Continent," the group will begin its dangerous ascent tomorrow morning.

The Gatti-Hallicrafter party has been in Africa since December, bent on a search for a terrifying gorilla-like beast called "Mulahu" by the Nambuti pygmies—and a trip into the weird "Mountains of the Moon."

Brewers Will Be Asked To Continue Saving Grain

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25 (AP) — Beer makers soon will be asked by the government to continue to limit their use of grains, at least until June 30.

Secretary of Agriculture Anderson will make the request, his office announced today. It will be based on saving grain for food and livestock.

Brewers now operate under a voluntary program which bans use of wheat, table-grade rice and feed barley and restricts use of corn. It was adopted last fall at the request of a citizens food conservation committee.

Anderson will propose a new program which would continue the rule against use of wheat and table rice, but ease limits on use of corn, feed barley and most other grains.

Government Rests Case In Boxer's Draft Trial

BALTIMORE, Feb. 25 (AP) — The government today rested its case against Benjamin Magliano charged with illegally avoiding induction under the Selective Service Act.

Known to his boxing associates as Benny Trotta, the fight manager is accused of lying about his Selective Service status. In United States District Court, District Attorney Bernard J. Flynn produced a statement that Magliano took a Baltimore waterfront job to stay out of the armed forces.

U. S. Arms "Inferior"

though she actually had no financial interest in the firm. It was testified at the Senate probe last summer that Meyers made more than $150,000 wartime profits from the plane parts concern, which Meyers denied.

An earlier witness, Robert L. Pine, said he helped Meyers start the company. He said Meyers expressed belief that "he could get some contracts through people he knew in the big aviation companies who were doing business with the government."

Seven Children Perish In Farmhouse Blaze

BURLINGTON, Ia., Feb. 25 (AP) — A flash fire swept through a frame farmhouse early today and burned seven children to death.

A flaming stairway prevented others in the 15-member Ellsworth Waterhouse family from reaching the trapped youngsters.

Donald Waterhouse, 18, one of the survivors, said his father awakened him at 3:45 a. m.

"I opened my eyes and saw the ceiling covered with flames," he said.

"We went to the stairway to try and reach the smaller children but the steps were a mass of fire.

"We called upstairs but didn't hear any answer.

"A little later I heard just a few cries. Then I didn't hear any more."

Kaiser-Frazer Corp. Will Eliminate Night Shift

WILLOW RUN, Mich., Feb., (INS) —The Kaiser-Frazer Corporation announced tonight that its night shift will be eliminated next Monday, resulting in indefinite layoffs for 2,400 wage earners.

Vice President and General Manager Edgar F. Kaiser said economy and efficiency will be stressed in a revised schedule of exclusive day-shift operations in line with "an economy drive in the face of mounting costs."

Kaiser observed that increasing operating expenses have "forced several auto manufacturers recently to raise prices."

after accepting the resignations of 14 anti-Communist ministers. Twelve of them resigned last Friday in a deadlock over Communist attempts to promote Communists in the police department. Benes had refused to accept the resignations until today.

At the same time he accepted the resignations of two Social Democrats who had not resigned with the other non-Communists last Friday.

The anti-Communists were believed to have sought a showdown in the belief they could demonstrate Communist weakness in Czechoslovakia and force them into a general election before they were ready.

The strategy backfired. Gottwald counter-attacked, calling them "agents of foreign reaction" and demanding that Benes give him a free hand in forming a new government. Gottwald sprang into action with organization of "action committees" throughout the country. He named members of other parties to the committees but all were his friends.

Senate Group OKs Bill To Admit GIs' Fiancees

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25 (AP) — A House bill to admit alien sweethearts of GIs into the United States was approved today by the Senate Judiciary Committee.

The measure would permit fiancees of members of the armed forces to enter this country for at least three months through 1948. If they married during the three months, they could stay.

Police Search Launched For Mother Of Seven

UPPER MARLBORO, Md., Feb. 25 (AP)—A 38-year-old mother of seven children, who was carrying $1,300 in her purse when she left home, was the object of a police search tonight while her husband expressed growing concern as to her fate.

The state police teletype broadcast a missing persons notice for Mrs. Nora May Mullins, who with her husband, Orpha Mullins, operates a garage on Route 301, about three miles from Upper Marlboro.

Mullins said his wife left home in her car last evening to attend a movie. Two acquaintances spoke to her about 11 p. m. but she had not been seen since, he said.

The garage man said he became worried after discovery of his wife's car on the street, with four ignition wires ripped from their connections.

He said that her purse contained about $1,300 in cash and checks. Mullins added that it was not unusual for his wife to carry large sums because she managed the business affairs of the garage.

Philadelphia Commercial Printers Vote To Strike

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 25 (AP) — Approximately 900 union printers voted tonight to go on strike for wage increases against 26 major commercial printing firms in Philadelphia.

Sinclair Muir, president of Local Two of the AFL-International Typographical Union, said the printers' walkout——first since 1921 here—would begin tomorrow morning.

Newspaper plants are not involved in the dispute. Union printers at the plants, however, were eligible to take part in the strike vote, which Muir said was 1,110 for the walkout and 58 against.

PITCHING HORSESHOES by Billy Rose

I caught Gertie Lawrence the other evening in a revival of the Noel Coward playlets, "Tonight at 8:30."

Gertie Lawrence

As I watched Miss Lawrence take charge of the audience, I asked myself, "What makes this babe worth five thousand a week? Is she funny? Yes, pretty funny, but Nancy Walker is funnier. Can she act? Sure, but not any better than a little gal named Barbara Bel Geddes. Is she a great singer? Well, it's a matter of taste, but personally I prefer Pearl Bailey. Is she an outstanding hoofer? Heck, no. Any of my chorus kids can dance better.

What, then, makes her Gertie Lawrence? What kind of light and heat does this star give out that makes her a bigger draw at the box office than all the other girls I've mentioned put together?

Well, that's a question more easily faced than fathomed. Ask any five producers why one person is a wow and another a walk-on, and you're liable to get five different answers. Ask me and I'll mumble—mumble about some mysterious and magnetic quantity I call "X"—the ability to turn it on when you need it.

Remember the World Series game in Chicago when Babe Ruth turned to the fans who were booing him, pointed to a spot in the bleachers and smacked the next pitch right where he had pointed? That was X. Remember that day at Forest Hills when a fairish tennis played named Jones banged four successive aces past Fred Perry? The fabulous Fred was never noted for his serve, but he saluted Jones and then aced him right back with four of the fastest serves of his life. Another example of what I mean by X-appeal.

But let me tell you about one of the times Gertie Lawrence turned it on.

In "Lady in the Dark," as you and several million other customers remember, Gertie played the boss-lady of a slick fashion magazine. The plot of this musical concerned itself with her neuroses which were sprouting neuroses. Moss Hart fashioned this libretto with the English star in mind, and the sainted Sam Harris, who produced the show, had to guarantee Gertie $5,000 a week against a double helping of the gross. Like Cornell and Hayes, she was the show, and was in a position to call all the shots. And from what I heard around Broadway, Gertie frequently called them at the top of her voice.

During the last week of rehearsals, Moss got worried. Miss Lawrence had some cute songs, including the one about her ship having sails of silk, but no slam-bang comic song had been written for her. On the other hand, a kid out of the Borscht Circuit named Danny Kaye had been handed a clever ditty called "Tschaikowsky." The script called for Danny to sing this song in act two while Gertie relaxed in a swing upstage. Well, Moss knew his show business well enough to know that the star wasn't going to sit by happily while a newcomer with hair like a popsicle took the theatre over. "Tschaikowsky" was a cinch to be yanked right after the opening performance out of town.

The worried Moss cornered composer Kurt Weil and lyricist Ira Gershwin, locked them in a room and stood guard. At 6:30 next morning, the boys emerged with a multiversed little number called "Jennie." Hart didn't think too much of it, and when it was played for her that afternoon, neither did Gertie. The star pointed out it was only moderately funny and not her style. It might do for a shouting songstress like Sophie Tucker, but after all, Gertie was a lady.

"Look, my pet," Moss pleaded, "we're going up to Boston to try things out. Learn the song and see how it goes. If it doesn't click, Kurt and Ira will write another for you."

"Okay," agreed the star, "but it's a waste of time."

Miss Lawrence memorized the lyric, and during the dress rehearsal in Boston, half-mumbled and half-sang it, making no secret of her belief that "Jennie" would be jettisoned before the New York premiere.

And then came opening night at the Colonial Theatre. In act one, Danny Kaye gave a good account of himself, but Gertie was the star and the audience was given no chance to forget it. But down in act two, Danny stepped to the footlights and let go with "Tschaikowsky." And as Moss Hart tells it, Danny was scared—scared he was going to stop the show with this murderously good piece of lyric writing. And then have it cut out by order of the star.

But the lyrics of "Tschaikowsky" were too hot to be cooled off, and Kaye had too much of what it takes not to give. When he finished the funny tongue-twister, the crowd applauded for two solid minutes—practically a lifetime in the theatre. The distressed Danny tried to shush the audience, but this was mistaken by the customers for modesty and they clapped all the louder.

In the back of the house, Hart, Weil and Gershwin gave each other the old "that-does-it" look. Moss was already speculating on what he could substitute for Danny's show-stopping specialty.

And then "X" took over.

When the applause finally tapered off, Miss Lawrence slipped down off the swing, saluted Danny with a deft gesture, took stage center and went into "Jennie."

Now remember she was singing a song that wasn't her style, and which she didn't especially like. But the crowd had cheered somebody else—some smart Alec had whipped four service aces past the champ.

Suddenly Gertie stopped being Miss Lawrence and became Sophie Tucker, Fanny Brice and Gypsie Rose Lee. As she reached the end of the first couplet of "Jennie," Gertie let go with a Beale Street bump. During stanzas two and three, she did things with her aristocratic derriere which had the audience in a wall-eyed trance. And down near the end of the song, the star went into the most magnificent mock strip-tease ever seen inside the theatre or out.

Well, when Gertie finished, they had to do everything but turn on the sprinkler system to quiet the crowd and get back to the plot again. And "Jennie," the song nobody liked, went skyrocketing into theatrical history.

I presume Miss Lawrence still cashes a pretty big check on payday. Well, as far as I'm concerned, the lady doesn't have to blush when she hands it to the bank teller.

If I were the bank teller, she wouldn't even have to sign her name.

What Does Registration For City Primary Portend?

What this city needs is a mayor with the progressiveness of a Koon or a Young.

And judging from the outpouring of citizens to get their names on the registration books, during the two days set aside for this purpose before the primary election next Tuesday, it appears likely that that is what might be in the cards.

Never before in the history of Cumberland, if our memory serves us right, has there been so many newly registered voters as in this campaign. More than 1,700 have prepared themselves to wield the ballot, probably for the first time in a city contest, and it goes without saying that if they didn't intend voting in the primary they would not have bothered to register—at least not in such large numbers.

It is estimated by polling officials that approximately 80 per cent of the newly registered were young people, and that veterans of the recent war were in the majority. As was the case on the first registration day, women almost equalled the number of men who made ready to exercise their right of suffrage. And it is believed a majority of them are wives of former GIs who registered.

What does it all portend? No one seems able to provide the answer and none will venture a prediction. But it is being made quite clear from expressions of candidates, either by word of mouth or through their political advertisements, that they feel the time has come for making reasonably sure that the Administration which will enter the City Hall on April 1 will be a progressive one, capable of lifting Cumberland out of the rut into which it has been permitted to become mired during the past years, and seeing to it that she goes places.

So, if a large vote is cast next Tuesday—and it does appear certain that there will be—it will be something to shout about because when a citizenry is aroused to a point of showing the interest it should in the city affairs it can mean one thing—the future for our municipality looms bright.

Happenings in Korea Making Dismal Reading

What is happening in Korea must make dismal reading for those Americans who believed that their late leader would be able, as he said, to "manage Stalin."

A "democratic republic," under Russian auspices, has just been set up in the Soviet-occupied zone of northern Korea. This "republic" will, it is announced, in time embrace the southern half of the country, now under American occupation. It is specifically stated that the "people's army" in the north, said to number 200,000, will extend the northern system of government over the whole country—as soon as the Americans get out. Russia now refuses to admit a UN commission to her zone to supervise elections. She is expected before long to propose the simultaneous withdrawal of Red Army and U. S. troops from Korea, to clear the way for the puppet conquest.

If Washington is as brilliant in its dealings with Russia in Asia as it has been since the later war and early postwar years, it will docilely comply and, in effect, turn over the entire eastern part of the Asiatic continent to the Kremlin.

While the Soviet conquest of Korea proceeds, the Chinese Communists extend their sway over Manchuria, the rich province which shares a long frontier with Korea. These Chinese Communists were alarmed by Russia after the fall of Japan. Russia delayed her evacuation of Manchuria until they could move in. Thus, Russia and her allies today hold most of the salient points which, back in 1904, caused the Japs to make war in order to remove the "dagger pointed at the heart of Japan." Today the dagger is pointed at somebody else.

The bright boys in the State Department will assure you that there is nothing new in all this. Stalin is simply following in the footsteps of the Czars, who had similar ambitions in eastern Asia and used similar means to achieve them. But it might have occurred to some of the bright boys, and their supremely self-confident chief, that this very Russian history made it unwise to cement deals with Stalin behind the back of Chiang Kai-shek, in order to bring Russia into the Pacific war at the fifty-ninth minute of the eleventh hour. Meantime, while President Truman asks Congress for more military aid to Greece against the Communists, he and Secretary Marshall still refuse to consider military aid to China against a vastly more dangerous Communist foe.

Yes, anyway you look at it, it's been a brilliant piece of diplomacy.

Back of the Bombshell Election in Bronx

As Eleanor Roosevelt sizes up the victory of Henry Wallace's man in the Bronx congressional election that Democratic defeat was not due to the failure of Boss Ed Flynn to get out the vote or to Communist strength in the district. She blames it on the "Palestine question," which Wallace and the third party candidate, Leo Isacson, made the basis for an "emotional" appeal in a heavily Jewish community.

This explanation calls for a little explaining. Although Mrs. Roosevelt does not quote Wallace, for whom she has a sincere liking, it was Henry who said in the Bronx, just before the election: "Truman still talks Jewish and acts Aryan. . . . The Democratic politicians are torn between their need to appease the oil trusts and their desire to retain a portion of what they call the 'Jewish' vote."

Maybe his listeners did not believe Henry, but they certainly voted as though they did. It seems pretty clear that the Bronx voters believed the President was "welshing" on his Palestine stand; that, after making a bid for the New York vote by sponsoring partition, he developed cold feet when the Arabs reacted by threatening our Middle Eastern oil supply.

Mrs. Roosevelt gently rebukes what she calls Wallace's "emotional" appeal, but strangely does not question his reasoning. While Wallace accused Truman of playing for New York votes on the Palestine issue, he did not attack the President for that reason. He attacked him for "appeasing the oil interests." Evidently, it is quite okay for a President of the United States to adopt a far-reaching foreign policy, with all its responsibilities, as a gesture of domestic politics.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

The Measles Season

Measles is one of the most contagious diseases and few of us leave this world without having been a victim. It may occur at any time but is most prevalent during March, April, and May. Large epidemics usually strike every two or three years and in 1948, many communities can anticipate trouble.

Dr. Van Dellen

Children of school age are most likely to be afflicted. The malady rarely occurs in infants before the fourth to sixth months because some immunity has been acquired from the mother. Once this protection is gone, the tots are extremely susceptible especially if older brothers or sisters in the home are suffering from measles. The ailment is most contagious during the period extending from 3 days before the rash to 5 days after. It is the secretions in the nose and throat that carry the filtrable virus and any one who comes within 5 feet of the patient or handles his soiled linen is a potential candidate.

Symptoms generally follow a pattern but some children are more uncomfortable than others. Approximately 10 days after exposure the youngster begins to feel indisposed, becomes less active, and prefers to stay in bed. He may be warm and flushed because the temperature is elevated. Meanwhile, the eyelids become puffy and the membranes red; on awakening in the morning, there is a discharge that causes the lids to stick together. A "running" nose, sneezing, and coughing arise.

At this stage the illness is indistinguishable from coryza unless Koplik spots can be demonstrated in the mouth. These lesions look like grains of white pepper sprinkled on a red background and are located on the inside of the cheek, opposite the first molar. When they are seen, the physician can predict that the measles rash will appear within 36 hours.

The skin manifestations are usually confined to the face on the first day, the body the next, and the arms and legs on the third. As a rule, they start on the forehead or cheeks and behind the ears. The skin may be puffy and now and then itches or burns. The typical eruption is small, slightly elevated, and reddish-brown although the exact color varies and is darker in brunets and redder in blonds. The borders are irregular and between each patch, the epidermis looks normal.

Once measles is full blown, other evidences of ill health disappear. The child may be sick in the morning and feel fine by afternoon. Cough and husky voice sometimes persist and in many, the tongue remains coated and the glands in the neck swollen. As a rule, the blemishes fade in the order of their appearance. Before clearing completely, the skin is often covered with fine branny scales for a day or two.

The disorder is not completely innocent because of its complications including ear infections, bronchopneumonia, encephalitis, and glandular enlargements. But its threat is not as bad as several decades ago. The serums that are used have a tendency to minimize severe aftereffects. Furthermore, the sulfonamides and penicillin are of help in treating pneumonia and ear disturbances.

It Says Here

By BOB HOPE

Parched Los Angeles recently welcomed an Indian rain maker . . . Chief Tuxhai of the Wasco tribe, who was flown here to tackle the drought. The chief's maiden name was probably "Rain In the Face."

The chief was pretty confident about making it rain . . . he wore galoshes.

He did a sensational rain dance for over three hours and all he wound up with was water on the knee.

The next thing we know Arthur Murray will be giving a course in rain-making.

The chief even sent up smoke signals to ask for rain . . . but some wise guy in a plane used it to spell out "Honest John."

All this will have an effect on the California weather reports. From now on they will probably read "fair and warmer, followed by Chief Tuxhai."

Now I know what they do on a rainy night in Rio . . . go dancing.

I don't know why the Chamber of Commerce went to all the trouble of calling Chief Tuxhai when all they had to do was get Gary Cooper to reach up and tip over a cloud.

Sam Rayburn Tries To Stem Southern Revolt; Some Army Commanders Still Believe In Censorship; Congress Will Recommend Tremendous Air Force

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25—Texas shiny-pated Sam Rayburn, Democratic ex-speaker, nearly staged a rebellion within a rebellion when he got wind of Southern plans for a "rump caucus" to protest the President's civil-rights program.

What made Sam most sore was an attempt to wean the Texas delegation away from him and sign it over as a body to the rebels. Leader of the rebels was Rep. Ed Gossett of Wichita Falls, who championed the cause of the National Association of Manufacturers when it came to killing the OPA. Gossett was trying to pledge the Texas delegation in advance to the southern stand against civil rights, when Rayburn suddenly discovered what he was up to.

Quickly calling Texas Congressmen to his office, Rayburn reminded them that it was long-standing practice for the delegation never to commit itself as a group. If any individuals wished to sign the resolution against civil rights, they should do it on their own, he argued.

Wright Patman, Paul Kilday, and J. M. Combs sided with Rayburn, and urged the Congressmen to have more consideration for their leader. Combs warned that the question is an explosive one, involving human rights, and made an appeal for tolerance.

But Gossett wouldn't budge, and later took a leading part in the rebel conference. He was joined by Olin Teague, Tom Pickett, Lindley Beckworth, and W. R. Poage, plus representatives of ten other southern states.

Backstage Steering Committee

Working behind the scenes for two weeks, a "steering committee" headed by Mississippi's William Colmer had been drafting anti-civil-rights resolutions and tearing them up again. Finally they settled upon a comparatively mild one, submitted by J. Bayard Clark of North Carolina. This was circulated among the delegations for signatures, paving the way for the final meeting.

At this meeting the voice of Mississippi's rootin' tootin' John Rankin, as usual, was the loudest. He took off with a deafening roar, well seasoned with fire-and-brimstone.

"Next thing you know," Rankin bellows, "Congress will be flooded with niggers."

At first, Rankin opposed group action, repeatedly calling attention to his long personal fight for southern principles. When he saw that a group resolution would be adopted in spite of him, he raised a howl for stronger language.

"Frankly, I think it isn't strong enough," he barked after Gossett read Clark's resolution which by then had been adopted by the steering committee.

In the end, only one slight change was made in Clark's resolution.

Note—During the closed-door session, no one suggested bolting the Democratic Party and entering a southern candidate for President, though one Alabama congressman did suggest that Governor Jim Folsom, already an avowed candidate, could poll more votes than Truman.

Army Censorship

Some Army commanders still don't seem to realize that the war's over. For instance, General MacArthur still operates an airtight censorship. It's impossible for an American newsman to visit Japan and write what he wants about MacArthur's rule of the Japanese.

And at Fort Riley, Kansas, the other day, Gen. I. D. White at first seemed to think that wartime censorship still prevailed.

General White was queried by long-distance telephone about the court-martial of Lieut. Vernon Brooks, Lubbock, Texas, who was acquitted of being drunk and wrongfully striking an enlisted man.

"You can't publish that," remonstrated General White.

"Sorry, but we intend to publish it."

"By whose authority?" challenged the General.

"By the authority of the Constitution of the United States, General, which says that the American people have a right to know about court-martial and the treatment of enlisted men."

General White then said he would look into the matter and see what could be made public. Later, he produced the facts—namely that Lieutenant Brooks at 3 a. m. on Feb. 8 had struck Pvt. James R. Snowball of Fort Wayne, Ind., who at that time was in civilian clothes. Lieutenant Brooks was acquitted on the plea that he thought Private Snowball was taking Army property and also because of the Lieutenant's own ten-year record in the Army. No enlisted men were present at the court-martial.

Note—General White, having been challenged by this column regarding the public's right to know the facts, then proceeded to scoop this column by rushing to all other newspapers with news of the court-martial.

New Air Program

Publicitywise Senator Owen Brewster, Mine Republican, is taking no chances on being left out of the headlines when his congressional aviation advisory committee presents its formal recommendations.

Instead of leaving the report to his staff to write, he called in the three major press services and invited their help. United Press could not spare a man, but Brewster was able to borrow Jim Strebig from Associated Press and Leon Shloss from International News Service. They are expected to give him a big publicity break.

Brewster's committee will recommend:

1. A huge 5-year aviation program, building U.S. air power to such a peak it should obviate the necessity for universal military training. Old planes will be brought out of mothballs until a new building program produces new planes.

2. Coordination between military and commercial air systems; untangling and coordinating the country's air routes; establishing an independent agency to control air safety; unification of armed services aviation.

The congressional committee will blast both the Army and Navy for failure to achieve air unification. In fact, unification, it will find, is not even halfway round the corner.

Steel Should Have Pocketed Loss And Saved Embarassment

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25 — The latest story on steel is a story of bad public relations in the steel industry and cheap politics in Washington.

Instead of finding out what occasioned the rise in the price of semi-finished steel, the political minded—including President Truman, who was at sea and couldn't possibly have known what had happened—jumped to the conclusion that some sort of price gouge on the public had occurred.

Already some Senators have asked for excess-profits-tax revival and some want to make a public utility out of the steel industry.

But what are the facts?

The facts are that no price increase was put into effect which increased in any way the price to the public for the purchase of steel products.

What Happened

What happened was that in the realm of semi-finished products which includes ingots, slabs, blooms and billets and tube-round and skelp—all embraced in what is known as crude steel—there was a price increase of $5 per ton.

But since all the semi-finished steel used in the country each year is only nine per cent of the total steel sold, the actual dollar value of the increase is estimated at less than $30,000,000. The total value of 65,000,000 tons of steel sold at $70 a ton amounts to $4,550,000,000 a year.

So what happened was an increase of less than one-half of one per cent of the total sales volume. This price, moreover, is not being paid by the public at all. It is being paid by the steel companies that buy from each other.

It so happens that the major steel companies with facilities to make the crude steel sell it to other steelmakers who fabricate it into finished products. The large companies discovered that they were unwittingly subsidizing their competitors at the rate of $5 a ton. The competitors, it was learned, were pocketing the $5 per ton and charging the public the same price for finished products as the larger companies have been charging.

Then why did all the companies move up their prices for the crude steel together? That has always happened in the steel industry. When the largest producer puts up his price, the other follows. There is no collusion and there need be none. This is what is commonly called "price-posting" and it happens in dozens of industries of various kinds.

Certainly there is no reason why a steel company which discovers that it is operating a division of its business at a loss should be expected to keep on operating that way, especially when it merely added to the profit of a competitor who was selling the finished products to the public at the same price, irrespective of the low cost to him of the semi-finished steel.

Should Have Pocketed Loss

Why did the major companies not pocket the loss, which didn't amount to very much anyway, and save themselves embarrassment and political inquiries? The answer is that they should have done so. They blundered in the field of public relations and there is no use blinking that fact. The price rise was a piece of routine that should have been evaluated in its possible effect on the whole picture.

There are some who say that the increase in the price of semi-finished products was a testing process and that, if the public had accepted it, there would have been other increases. This is an imputation which does not seem plausible, judging from the desire of the steel companies to ward off a third round of wage increases. It certainly would have been stupid tactics to announce any general increase—if any had indeed been planned—until the wage increase had been granted.

It looks like a comedy of errors all around—a mistake by the steel companies in sending up the price of a small fraction of their production, a mistake by the politicians in Washington in jumping to wrong conclusions, and another piece of confusion on the subject of prices.

Steel's Reason For Raising Price Of Steel Better Be Good

By MARK SULLIVAN

Heads of the steel industry some ten days ago raised the price of structural and semi-finished steel $5 a ton. At once a Joint Congressional Committee, headed by Senator Taft, called on steel heads to make an explanation, and a hearing by the committee for that purpose is to begin within a week.

The explanation better be good. Outcry against the raise deals not only with obvious objections. These include the effect on the announced intention of the CIO Steel Workers' Union to ask for a wage raise in negotiations to begin April 1. They include complaints from small manufacturers of steel products, who must not only pay a higher price for steel they buy but would suffer a second burden in the form of increased wages if the Steel Workers' Union gets their proposed demand. As one manufacturer put it in a letter to the Wall Street Journal: "It will just mean more spiral, we can't take it and we doubt if others can." Complaint comes also from the public generally, who presumably would have to pay higher prices for all sorts of goods into which steel enters, from automobiles and tractors to kitchen knives.

Protest Going Deeper

From all these sources comes outcry that is heard at Washington and made vocal by members of Congress and others in public life. An additional protest, going deeper, queries whether the heads of the steel industry are living up to their broad responsibility for economic statesmanship. This is suggested in a statement by Republican Senator Flanders of Vermont: "In an industry as fundamental as steel, there are public questions involved as well as questions of private business policy."

In the condition that followed the end of the war, the obligation of economic statesmanship on heads of industry was to follow policies which would restore the country to economic stability. Among these policies an important and specific one was avoidance of inflation; and, parallel with this, avoidance of the boom-followed-by-bust that followed the First World War. Several of the fundamental policies called for following the recent war are to be found in lessons of the 1920's, the collapse of 1929 and the ensuing depression. With these lessons the steel heads and their advisers should have been familiar.

Basic in the policies now called for were two. One was to so manage as to avoid undue increases in costs of goods. Another had to do with profits that would accompany increased volume of business as reconversion to peacetime industry got under way. Such profits could go to any of three destinations, or be allocated among them: (1) To owners of the industry in the form of increased dividends; (2) to workers in the form of high wages; (3) to the public in the form of reduced prices.

Debacle of 1929 Recalled

Failure of industry to reduce prices to consumers was a prime cause of the debacle of 1929. The present increase of prices by the steel industry suggests that it is not following a policy of reducing prices to consumers. Whether the contrary policy, increasing prices, is justified will be the point of many questions the industry heads will be asked at the Congressional hearing.

Keeping down the costs of manufacturing goods was not wholly in the discretion of industry, it had to face demands for wage raises by unions and encouragement of wage raises by the Administration. On this point the steel industry has had a contradictory history that has caused much curiosity.

In January 1946 the steel heads resisted a demand for wage raises, endured a strike of some 25 days, and granted a raise of 18½ cents per hour only after intervention by President Truman. At the time the steel industry thus resisted, the resistance was made difficult by the power of unions under the Wagner National Labor Relations Act as it then stood.

Then in July, 1947 the steel heads, as heads also of a considerable portion of the coal industry, granted—without resistance, indeed with apparent acquiescence—a wage raise demanded by Mr. John L. Lewis as head of the United Mine Workers. Promptly came announcements of increases in prices of coal followed by announcements of corresponding increases in prices of steel, into which coal enters.

At that time, July of last year, the Taft-Hartley labor law had just been enacted, and the industry heads had larger opportunity to resist if they chose. Why industry heads chose instead to acquiesce in Mr. Lewis' demands and make increases in prices, stirred much speculation at the time. A steel head said that increased prices were preferable to a possible strike that might paralyze industry. This is a problem of economic statesmanship about which the steel heads will be questioned at the Congressional committee hearings.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

BENES

THERE are always men, great and small, who are certain that they can do the impossible. You have known them: the man who can run the banks of the country differently and better; the man who can operate the United States Steel Corporation better than Ben Fairless; the man who never laughs when he sees a play by George Bernard Shaw; the man who knows precisely how to manage the newspaper you are now reading better than its publisher. Among the statesmen, such a man runs his head into a stone wall of historic fact.

Such a man is Eduard Benes, President of Czechoslovakia, who conceived the brilliant idea of looking both East and West simultaneously. This Janus-faced policy was supposed to be the smartest ever conceived and the Czechs have been inordinately proud of their achievement. It was designed to make it possible for Czechoslovakia to be a Western nation while at the same time it was an Eastern nation. Czechoslovakia was to have a free economy while at the same time it permitted their own Communists to select the Premier, to accelerate a Communist propaganda and to become what is called a majority party, changing the freedom of Western European economics into the slavery of Marxism.

The first sign that the Czechs had that they were not in control of their own affairs was when Jan Masaryk at the San Francisco Conference served as a diplomatic valet to Molotov. That was the tip-off. Masaryk is not a Communist but he could work with them if it suited him. He is an opportunist.

The second sign was when Czechoslovakia wanted to join the nations of Western Europe that were to meet to consider the Marshall Plan. Russia told Czechoslovakia to stay away. And Czechoslovakia stayed away. That was the second tip-off, and it was an unmistakable one. Whether one is for or against the Marshall Plan, it has to be admitted that the nations of Western Europe that met at Paris to set up the program represented, together with Spain, all that is left of what might be called Western civilization in Europe. Czechoslovakia, which rightly belonged at the conference, was not present. Czechoslovakia there and then became a part of the Russian world.

Benes, at that point, could have appealed to the United Nations to judge between him and Stalin, between the right of a sovereign nation to form its own foreign policy, to determine its own economic policy, without interference from outside. Stalin did interfere in the internal affairs of Czechoslovakia and Benes took it. He probably thought he had another trick up his sleeve. Maybe he thought that he could outwit a steamroller that is not to be resisted by speeches.

So, now it has come at last. Russia is moving on Czechoslovakia as it moved on Hungary, as it moved on every Balkan country except Greece. This is war by propaganda—war by treachery and the utilization of Quislings. What Hitler planned at Munich; what traitors did in every country into which the German armies marched was petty larceny compared with the horrible miseries that Stalin is bringing to country after country. And there is no stopping him at any particular point as long as the Western Powers lack the will or daring to stand up to him even on the basis of their opposition to Hitler. Czechoslovakia is only another step in the march to Europe's death.

There are men that serve Russia in every country: Togliatti in Italy; Thorez and Duclos in France; Gottwald in Czechoslovakia.

Who is the man in the United States who, in pursuit of personal power and personal advantage, is playing this silly game of believing, like Benes, that he can evade becoming the prisoner of those who are willing to feed his vanity, supply him with a claque to applaud his platitudes, to cheer his every gesture, while he, Janus-faced, looks both East and West, playing both ends against the middle?

It would seem to me that Henry Wallace is the Eduard Benes of America—albeit a less graceful one.

The Power of Kindness

Kindness is such a simple thing to offer and carry out that all too often it is disregarded by us all—even by those of us who look upon it with such favor, but who are too busy, or two thoughtless to put it into action.

Kindness is always cumulative, that is, a kindness invites further kindness, creating good will and and happy concord. The influence of kindness is fast spread, too. Kindness always invites a return. A reputation for kindness is one to be proud of and eagerly sought after. It has a stalwart power in any community. Knowing its beauty and effectiveness among individuals, we can imagine its great good if adopted by rulers and nations.

I recall a statement once made by the late Elbert Hubbard—"Do the best that you can, and be kind." That, in itself, is about as good an axiom for success and happiness as any of us could have. Kindness is such a healing process, as well—healing to the mind and soul.

It was that urge of kindness, on the part of The Good Samaritan, that has carried that Bible story, and its inspiration to us all, down the ages. From my earliest childhood I recall those simple lines, written by Julia Carney:

"Little deeds of kindness, little words of love,
Help to make earth happy like

Many times I had the privilege of meeting the late William (Billy) Muldoon—a noble athlete and trainer. He looked upon the human body as a great inheritance, and once said: "It is remarkable how the BODY responds to just a little kindness."

Albert Schweitzer has said: "All the kindness which a man puts out into the world works on the heart and the thoughts of mankind, but we are so foolishingly indifferent that we are never in earnest in the matter of kindness." What a lever kindness is in its application—how it lifts the hope in the human heart!

How quickly the dumb animal reacts to kindness, whether horse, dog, or even wild animal. Its appreciation is something that the Creator planted in all breathing forms. How kind the great are!

Happenings in Korea Making Dismal Reading

What is happening in Korea must make dismal reading for those Americans who believed that their late leader would be able, as he said, to "manage Stalin."

A "democratic republic," under Russian auspices, has just been set up in the Soviet-occupied zone of northern Korea. This "republic" will, it is announced, in time embrace the southern half of the country, now under American occupation. It is specifically stated that the "people's army" in the north, said to number 200,000, will extend the northern system of government over the whole country—as soon as the Americans get out. Russia now refuses to admit a UN commission to her zone to supervise elections. She is expected before long to propose the simultaneous withdrawal of Red Army and U. S. troops from Korea, to clear the way for the puppet conquest.

If Washington is as brilliant in its dealings with Russia in Asia as it has been since the later war and early postwar years, it will docilely comply and, in effect, turn over the entire eastern part of the Asiatic continent to the Kremlin.

While the Soviet conquest of Korea proceeds, the Chinese Communists extend their sway over Manchuria, the rich province which shares a long frontier with Korea. These Chinese Communists were alarmed by Russia after the fall of Japan. Russia delayed her evacuation of Manchuria until they could move in. Thus, Russia and her allies today hold most of the salient points which, back in 1904, caused the Japs to make war in order to remove the "dagger pointed at the heart of Japan." Today the dagger is pointed at somebody else.

The bright boys in the State Department will assure you that there is nothing new in all this. Stalin is simply following in the footsteps of the Czars, who had similar ambitions in eastern Asia and used similar means to achieve them. But it might have occurred to some of the bright boys, and their supremely self-confident chief, that this very Russian history made it unwise to cement deals with Stalin behind the back of Chiang Kai-shek, in order to bring Russia into the Pacific war at the fifty-ninth minute of the eleventh hour. Meantime, while President Truman asks Congress for more military aid to Greece against the Communists, he and Secretary Marshall still refuse to consider military aid to China against a vastly more dangerous Communist foe.

Yes, anyway you look at it, it's been a brilliant piece of diplomacy.

Back of the Bombshell Election in Bronx

As Eleanor Roosevelt sizes up the victory of Henry Wallace's man in the Bronx congressional election that Democratic defeat was not due to the failure of Boss Ed Flynn to get out the vote or to Communist strength in the district. She blames it on the "Palestine question," which Wallace and the third party candidate, Leo Isacson, made the basis for an "emotional" appeal in a heavily Jewish community.

This explanation calls for a little explaining. Although Mrs. Roosevelt does not quote Wallace, for whom she has a sincere liking, it was Henry who said in the Bronx, just before the election: "Truman still talks Jewish and acts Aryan. . . . The Democratic politicians are torn between their need to appease the oil trusts and their desire to retain a portion of what they call the 'Jewish' vote."

Maybe his listeners did not believe Henry, but they certainly voted as though they did. It seems pretty clear that the Bronx voters believed the President was "welshing" on his Palestine stand; that, after making a bid for the New York vote by sponsoring partition, he developed cold feet when the Arabs reacted by threatening our Middle Eastern oil supply.

Mrs. Roosevelt gently rebukes what she calls Wallace's "emotional" appeal, but strangely does not question his reasoning. While Wallace accused Truman of playing for New York votes on the Palestine issue, he did not attack the President for that reason. He attacked him for "appeasing the oil interests." Evidently, it is quite okay for a President of the United States to adopt a far-reaching foreign policy, with all its responsibilities, as a gesture of domestic politics.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

The Measles Season

Measles is one of the most contagious diseases and few of us leave this world without having been a victim. It may occur at any time but is most prevalent during March, April, and May. Large epidemics usually strike every two or three years and in 1948, many communities can anticipate trouble.

Dr. Van Dellen

Children of school age are most likely to be afflicted. The malady rarely occurs in infants before the fourth to sixth months because some immunity has been acquired from the mother. Once this protection is gone, the tots are extremely susceptible especially if older brothers or sisters in the home are suffering from measles. The ailment is most contagious during the period extending from 3 days before the rash to 5 days after. It is the secretions in the nose and throat that carry the filtrable virus and any one who comes within 5 feet of the patient or handles his soiled linen is a potential candidate.

Symptoms generally follow a pattern but some children are more uncomfortable than others. Approximately 10 days after exposure the youngster begins to feel indisposed, becomes less active, and prefers to stay in bed. He may be warm and flushed because the temperature is elevated. Meanwhile, the eyelids become puffy and the membranes red; on awakening in the morning, there is a discharge that causes the lids to stick together. A "running" nose, sneezing, and coughing arise.

At this stage the illness is indistinguishable from coryza unless Koplik spots can be demonstrated in the mouth. These lesions look like grains of white pepper sprinkled on a red background and are located on the inside of the cheek, opposite the first molar. When they are seen, the physician can predict that the measles rash will appear within 36 hours.

The skin manifestations are usually confined to the face on the first day, the body the next, and the arms and legs on the third. As a rule, they start on the forehead or cheeks and behind the ears. The skin may be puffy and now and then itches or burns. The typical eruption is small, slightly elevated, and reddish-brown although the exact color varies and is darker in brunets and redder in blonds. The borders are irregular and between each patch, the epidermis looks normal.

Once measles is full blown, other evidences of ill health disappear. The child may be sick in the morning and feel fine by afternoon. Cough and husky voice sometimes persist and in many, the tongue remains coated and the glands in the neck swollen. As a rule, the blemishes fade in the order of their appearance. Before clearing completely, the skin is often covered with fine branny scales for a day or two.

The disorder is not completely innocent because of its complications including ear infections, bronchopneumonia, encephalitis, and glandular enlargements. But its threat is not as bad as several decades ago. The serums that are used have a tendency to minimize severe aftereffects. Furthermore, the sulfonamides and penicillin are of help in treating pneumonia and ear disturbances.

It Says Here

By BOB HOPE

Parched Los Angeles recently welcomed an Indian rain maker . . . Chief Tuxhai of the Wasco tribe, who was flown here to tackle the drought. The chief's maiden name was probably "Rain In the Face."

The chief was pretty confident about making it rain . . . he wore galoshes.

He did a sensational rain dance for over three hours and all he wound up with was water on the knee.

The next thing we know Arthur Murray will be giving a course in rain-making.

The chief even sent up smoke signals to ask for rain . . . but some wise guy in a plane used it to spell out "Honest John."

All this will have an effect on the California weather reports. From now on they will probably read "fair and warmer, followed by Chief Tuxhai."

Now I know what they do on a rainy night in Rio . . . go dancing.

I don't know why the Chamber of Commerce went to all the trouble of calling Chief Tuxhai when all they had to do was get Gary Cooper to reach up and tip over a cloud.

Sam Rayburn Tries To Stem Southern Revolt; Some Army Commanders Still Believe In Censorship; Congress Will Recommend Tremendous Air Force

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25—Texas shiny-pated Sam Rayburn, Democratic ex-speaker, nearly staged a rebellion within a rebellion when he got wind of Southern plans for a "rump caucus" to protest the President's civil-rights program.

What made Sam most sore was an attempt to wean the Texas delegation away from him and sign it over as a body to the rebels. Leader of the rebels was Rep. Ed Gossett of Wichita Falls, who championed the cause of the National Association of Manufacturers when it came to killing the OPA. Gossett was trying to pledge the Texas delegation in advance to the southern stand against civil rights, when Rayburn suddenly discovered what he was up to.

Quickly calling Texas Congressmen to his office, Rayburn reminded them that it was long-standing practice for the delegation never to commit itself as a group. If any individuals wished to sign the resolution against civil rights, they should do it on their own, he argued.

Wright Patman, Paul Kilday, and J. M. Combs sided with Rayburn, and urged the Congressmen to have more consideration for their leader. Combs warned that the question is an explosive one, involving human rights, and made an appeal for tolerance.

But Gossett wouldn't budge, and later took a leading part in the rebel conference. He was joined by Olin Teague, Tom Pickett, Lindley Beckworth, and W. R. Poage, plus representatives of ten other southern states.

Backstage Steering Committee

Working behind the scenes for two weeks, a "steering committee" headed by Mississippi's William Colmer had been drafting anti-civil-rights resolutions and tearing them up again. Finally they settled upon a comparatively mild one, submitted by J. Bayard Clark of North Carolina. This was circulated among the delegations for signatures, paving the way for the final meeting.

At this meeting the voice of Mississippi's rootin' tootin' John Rankin, as usual, was the loudest. He took off with a deafening roar, well seasoned with fire-and-brimstone.

"Next thing you know," Rankin bellows, "Congress will be flooded with niggers."

At first, Rankin opposed group action, repeatedly calling attention to his long personal fight for southern principles. When he saw that a group resolution would be adopted in spite of him, he raised a howl for stronger language.

"Frankly, I think it isn't strong enough," he barked after Gossett read Clark's resolution which by then had been adopted by the steering committee.

In the end, only one slight change was made in Clark's resolution.

Note—During the closed-door session, no one suggested bolting the Democratic Party and entering a southern candidate for President, though one Alabama congressman did suggest that Governor Jim Folsom, already an avowed candidate, could poll more votes than Truman.

Army Censorship

Some Army commanders still don't seem to realize that the war's over. For instance, General MacArthur still operates an airtight censorship. It's impossible for an American newsman to visit Japan and write what he wants about MacArthur's rule of the Japanese.

And at Fort Riley, Kansas, the other day, Gen. I. D. White at first seemed to think that wartime censorship still prevailed.

General White was queried by long-distance telephone about the court-martial of Lieut. Vernon Brooks, Lubbock, Texas, who was acquitted of being drunk and wrongfully striking an enlisted man.

"You can't publish that," remonstrated General White.

"Sorry, but we intend to publish it."

"By whose authority?" challenged the General.

"By the authority of the Constitution of the United States, General, which says that the American people have a right to know about court-martial and the treatment of enlisted men."

General White then said he would look into the matter and see what could be made public. Later, he produced the facts—namely that Lieutenant Brooks at 3 a. m. on Feb. 8 had struck Pvt. James R. Snowball of Fort Wayne, Ind., who at that time was in civilian clothes. Lieutenant Brooks was acquitted on the plea that he thought Private Snowball was taking Army property and also because of the Lieutenant's own ten-year record in the Army. No enlisted men were present at the court-martial.

Note—General White, having been challenged by this column regarding the public's right to know the facts, then proceeded to scoop this column by rushing to all other newspapers with news of the court-martial.

New Air Program

Publicitywise Senator Owen Brewster, Mine Republican, is taking no chances on being left out of the headlines when his congressional aviation advisory committee presents its formal recommendations.

Instead of leaving the report to his staff to write, he called in the three major press services and invited their help. United Press could not spare a man, but Brewster was able to borrow Jim Strebig from Associated Press and Leon Shloss from International News Service. They are expected to give him a big publicity break.

Brewster's committee will recommend:

1. A huge 5-year aviation program, building U.S. air power to such a peak it should obviate the necessity for universal military training. Old planes will be brought out of mothballs until a new building program produces new planes.

2. Coordination between military and commercial air systems; untangling and coordinating the country's air routes; establishing an independent agency to control air safety; unification of armed services aviation.

The congressional committee will blast both the Army and Navy for failure to achieve air unification. In fact, unification, it will find, is not even halfway round the corner.

Steel Should Have Pocketed Loss And Saved Embarassment

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25 — The latest story on steel is a story of bad public relations in the steel industry and cheap politics in Washington.

Instead of finding out what occasioned the rise in the price of semi-finished steel, the political minded—including President Truman, who was at sea and couldn't possibly have known what had happened—jumped to the conclusion that some sort of price gouge on the public had occurred.

Already some Senators have asked for excess-profits-tax revival and some want to make a public utility out of the steel industry.

But what are the facts?

The facts are that no price increase was put into effect which increased in any way the price to the public for the purchase of steel products.

What Happened

What happened was that in the realm of semi-finished products which includes ingots, slabs, blooms and billets and tube-round and skelp—all embraced in what is known as crude steel—there was a price increase of $5 per ton.

But since all the semi-finished steel used in the country each year is only nine per cent of the total steel sold, the actual dollar value of the increase is estimated at less than $30,000,000. The total value of 65,000,000 tons of steel sold at $70 a ton amounts to $4,550,000,000 a year.

So what happened was an increase of less than one-half of one per cent of the total sales volume. This price, moreover, is not being paid by the public at all. It is being paid by the steel companies that buy from each other.

It so happens that the major steel companies with facilities to make the crude steel sell it to other steelmakers who fabricate it into finished products. The large companies discovered that they were unwittingly subsidizing their competitors at the rate of $5 a ton. The competitors, it was learned, were pocketing the $5 per ton and charging the public the same price for finished products as the larger companies have been charging.

Then why did all the companies move up their prices for the crude steel together? That has always happened in the steel industry. When the largest producer puts up his price, the other follows. There is no collusion and there need be none. This is what is commonly called "price-posting" and it happens in dozens of industries of various kinds.

Certainly there is no reason why a steel company which discovers that it is operating a division of its business at a loss should be expected to keep on operating that way, especially when it merely added to the profit of a competitor who was selling the finished products to the public at the same price, irrespective of the low cost to him of the semi-finished steel.

Should Have Pocketed Loss

Why did the major companies not pocket the loss, which didn't amount to very much anyway, and save themselves embarrassment and political inquiries? The answer is that they should have done so. They blundered in the field of public relations and there is no use blinking that fact. The price rise was a piece of routine that should have been evaluated in its possible effect on the whole picture.

There are some who say that the increase in the price of semi-finished products was a testing process and that, if the public had accepted it, there would have been other increases. This is an imputation which does not seem plausible, judging from the desire of the steel companies to ward off a third round of wage increases. It certainly would have been stupid tactics to announce any general increase—if any had indeed been planned—until the wage increase had been granted.

It looks like a comedy of errors all around—a mistake by the steel companies in sending up the price of a small fraction of their production, a mistake by the politicians in Washington in jumping to wrong conclusions, and another piece of confusion on the subject of prices.

Steel's Reason For Raising Price Of Steel Better Be Good

By MARK SULLIVAN

Heads of the steel industry some ten days ago raised the price of structural and semi-finished steel $5 a ton. At once a Joint Congressional Committee, headed by Senator Taft, called on steel heads to make an explanation, and a hearing by the committee for that purpose is to begin within a week.

The explanation better be good. Outcry against the raise deals not only with obvious objections. These include the effect on the announced intention of the CIO Steel Workers' Union to ask for a wage raise in negotiations to begin April 1. They include complaints from small manufacturers of steel products, who must not only pay a higher price for steel they buy but would suffer a second burden in the form of increased wages if the Steel Workers' Union gets their proposed demand. As one manufacturer put it in a letter to the Wall Street Journal: "It will just mean more spiral, we can't take it and we doubt if others can." Complaint comes also from the public generally, who presumably would have to pay higher prices for all sorts of goods into which steel enters, from automobiles and tractors to kitchen knives.

Protest Going Deeper

From all these sources comes outcry that is heard at Washington and made vocal by members of Congress and others in public life. An additional protest, going deeper, queries whether the heads of the steel industry are living up to their broad responsibility for economic statesmanship. This is suggested in a statement by Republican Senator Flanders of Vermont: "In an industry as fundamental as steel, there are public questions involved as well as questions of private business policy."

In the condition that followed the end of the war, the obligation of economic statesmanship on heads of industry was to follow policies which would restore the country to economic stability. Among these policies an important and specific one was avoidance of inflation; and, parallel with this, avoidance of the boom-followed-by-bust that followed the First World War. Several of the fundamental policies called for following the recent war are to be found in lessons of the 1920's, the collapse of 1929 and the ensuing depression. With these lessons the steel heads and their advisers should have been familiar.

Basic in the policies now called for were two. One was to so manage as to avoid undue increases in costs of goods. Another had to do with profits that would accompany increased volume of business as reconversion to peacetime industry got under way. Such profits could go to any of three destinations, or be allocated among them: (1) To owners of the industry in the form of increased dividends; (2) to workers in the form of high wages; (3) to the public in the form of reduced prices.

Debacle of 1929 Recalled

Failure of industry to reduce prices to consumers was a prime cause of the debacle of 1929. The present increase of prices by the steel industry suggests that it is not following a policy of reducing prices to consumers. Whether the contrary policy, increasing prices, is justified will be the point of many questions the industry heads will be asked at the Congressional hearing.

Keeping down the costs of manufacturing goods was not wholly in the discretion of industry, it had to face demands for wage raises by unions and encouragement of wage raises by the Administration. On this point the steel industry has had a contradictory history that has caused much curiosity.

In January 1946 the steel heads resisted a demand for wage raises, endured a strike of some 25 days, and granted a raise of 18½ cents per hour only after intervention by President Truman. At the time the steel industry thus resisted, the resistance was made difficult by the power of unions under the Wagner National Labor Relations Act as it then stood.

Then in July, 1947 the steel heads, as heads also of a considerable portion of the coal industry, granted—without resistance, indeed with apparent acquiescence—a wage raise demanded by Mr. John L. Lewis as head of the United Mine Workers. Promptly came announcements of increases in prices of coal followed by announcements of corresponding increases in prices of steel, into which coal enters.

At that time, July of last year, the Taft-Hartley labor law had just been enacted, and the industry heads had larger opportunity to resist if they chose. Why industry heads chose instead to acquiesce in Mr. Lewis' demands and make increases in prices, stirred much speculation at the time. A steel head said that increased prices were preferable to a possible strike that might paralyze industry. This is a problem of economic statesmanship about which the steel heads will be questioned at the Congressional committee hearings.

BENES

THERE are always men, great and small, who are certain that they can do the impossible. You have known them: the man who can run the banks of the country differently and better; the man who can operate the United States Steel Corporation better than Ben Fairless; the man who never laughs when he sees a play by George Bernard Shaw; the man who knows precisely how to manage the newspaper you are now reading better than its publisher. Among the statesmen, such a man runs his head into a stone wall of historic fact.

Such a man is Eduard Benes, President of Czechoslovakia, who conceived the brilliant idea of looking both East and West simultaneously. This Janus-faced policy was supposed to be the smartest ever conceived and the Czechs have been inordinately proud of their achievement. It was designed to make it possible for Czechoslovakia to be a Western nation while at the same time it was an Eastern nation. Czechoslovakia was to have a free economy while at the same time it permitted their own Communists to select the Premier, to accelerate a Communist propaganda and to become what is called a majority party, changing the freedom of Western European economics into the slavery of Marxism.

The first sign that the Czechs had that they were not in control of their own affairs was when Jan Masaryk at the San Francisco Conference served as a diplomatic valet to Molotov. That was the tip-off. Masaryk is not a Communist but he could work with them if it suited him. He is an opportunist.

The second sign was when Czechoslovakia wanted to join the nations of Western Europe that were to meet to consider the Marshall Plan. Russia told Czechoslovakia to stay away. And Czechoslovakia stayed away. That was the second tip-off, and it was an unmistakable one. Whether one is for or against the Marshall Plan, it has to be admitted that the nations of Western Europe that met at Paris to set up the program represented, together with Spain, all that is left of what might be called Western civilization in Europe. Czechoslovakia, which rightly belonged at the conference, was not present. Czechoslovakia there and then became a part of the Russian world.

Benes, at that point, could have appealed to the United Nations to judge between him and Stalin, between the right of a sovereign nation to form its own foreign policy, to determine its own economic policy, without interference from outside. Stalin did interfere in the internal affairs of Czechoslovakia and Benes took it. He probably thought he had another trick up his sleeve. Maybe he thought that he could outwit a steamroller that is not to be resisted by speeches.

So, now it has come at last. Russia is moving on Czechoslovakia as it moved on Hungary, as it moved on every Balkan country except Greece. This is war by propaganda—war by treachery and the utilization of Quislings. What Hitler planned at Munich; what traitors did in every country into which the German armies marched was petty larceny compared with the horrible miseries that Stalin is bringing to country after country. And there is no stopping him at any particular point as long as the Western Powers lack the will or daring to stand up to him even on the basis of their opposition to Hitler. Czechoslovakia is only another step in the march to Europe's death.

There are men that serve Russia in every country: Togliatti in Italy; Thorez and Duclos in France; Gottwald in Czechoslovakia.

Who is the man in the United States who, in pursuit of personal power and personal advantage, is playing this silly game of believing, like Benes, that he can evade becoming the prisoner of those who are willing to feed his vanity, supply him with a claque to applaud his platitudes, to cheer his every gesture, while he, Janus-faced, looks both East and West, playing both ends against the middle?

It would seem to me that Henry Wallace is the Eduard Benes of America—albeit a less graceful one.

The Power of Kindness

Kindness is such a simple thing to offer and carry out that all too often it is disregarded by us all—even by those of us who look upon it with such favor, but who are too busy, or two thoughtless to put it into action.

Kindness is always cumulative, that is, a kindness invites further kindness, creating good will and happy concord. The influence of kindness is fast spread, too. Kindness always invites a return. A reputation for kindness is one to be proud of and eagerly sought after. It has a stalwart power in any community. Knowing its beauty and effectiveness among individuals, we can imagine its great good if adopted by rulers and nations.

I recall a statement once made by the late Elbert Hubbard—"Do the best that you can, and be kind." That, in itself, is about as good an axiom for success and happiness as any of us could have. Kindness is such a healing process, as well—healing to the mind and soul.

It was that urge of kindness, on the part of The Good Samaritan, that has carried that Bible story, and its inspiration to us all, down the ages. From my earliest childhood I recall those simple lines, written by Julia Carney:

"Little deeds of kindness, little words of love,
Help to make earth happy like the heaven above."

Many times I had the privilege of meeting the late William (Billy) Muldoon—a noble athlete and trainer. He looked upon the human body as a great inheritance, and once said: "It is remarkable how the BODY responds to just a little kindness."

Albert Schweitzer has said: "All the kindness which a man puts out into the world works on the heart and the thoughts of mankind, but we are so foolishingly indifferent that we are never in earnest in the matter of kindness." What a lever kindness is in its application—how it lifts the hope in the human heart!

How quickly the dumb animal reacts to kindness, whether horse, dog, or even wild animal. Its appreciation is something that the Creator planted in all breathing forms. How kind the great are!

600 See Showing Of Style Trends At Scholarship Benefit

Approximately 300 persons attended each night, the showing of the new style trends when Rosenbaum's inaugurated its 100th year of fashion selling Monday and Tuesday, under the sponsorship of the Community Service Group of the Woman's Civic Club for the benefit of its Nurses' Scholarship fund.

The new types and colors coordinated in fashions were stressed by Miss Dorothy Dunkle, announcer. She explained that the "riot of color for spring is to make feminine beauty more beautiful this Easter," and that the new style trend shows three silhouettes, the bell, slim skirt and the triangle.

The finale of the bridal party was the most outstanding feature, with the bride in a striking ice blue satin gown, draped in front with lace insertion and a bow; with it she wore a fingertip length veil. The matron of honor and bridesmaids wore powder blue draped hoop skirts, corresponding in type to the bride's, and blue marquisette open crown bonnets.

A spring theme was repeated in the background for the show, which represented an iron scroll entwined with spring flowers and backed with palms through the center of the runway and along the sides, and illuminated with effective spot lighting.

Miss Frances Allen, Mrs. Millicent Stein, Miss Virginia Lee Mays, Miss Betty Bright, Miss Frances Hasenbuhler, Mrs. Dorothy Roeder, Mrs. Margaret Mackey, Miss Kathryne MacMannis, Mrs. Mary Julia Shaffer, Mrs. Leona Cumiskey, Mrs. Florence Glesce, Miss Thelma Smith and Mrs. Laura Cook were the models.

B'er Chayim Sisterhood Marks 72nd Anniversary

Recognition Paid To Wedding, Birthdays

The 72nd anniversary of B'er Chayim Sisterhood was celebrated yesterday with a luncheon and program at Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club, at which time, also, "Happy Anniversary" was sung to Mrs. Isaac Hirsch in recognition of the 53rd wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Hirsch today, and "Happy Birthday" was sung for Mrs. Joseph Klawan and Mrs. Samuel Jacobson, whose birthdays were observed yesterday.

Mrs. Elsa Lichtenstein was toastmistress. Mr. Malcolm Stern, Norfolk, Va., guest speaker, gave a revue of a current play and Dr. Sidney Zwick played four classical selections on the piano. Mrs. Irving Millenson welcomed the guests and greetings were extended by Mrs. Hirsch for her husband in behalf of the B'er Chayim Congregation; Robert Kaplon for the B'nai B'rith and Mrs. Jack Yankelevitz for Hadassah.

The spring theme was carried out in the decorations of the officers' and speakers' table, with bouquets of snapdragons and roses and candelabra of tall yellow tapers. Smaller tables representing the various months of the year were arranged by Mrs. David Kauffman, who molded the wax dolls for the decorations. A large snow man centered the January table; the Valentine motif was carried out for February with a large cut-out heart pierced with an arrow, and small Valentines; March was represented with an Easter basket and bunnies; April, April showers with a baby in a shower; May with a May pole with the wax children dancing; a wedding scene with a miniature bride and bridegroom on top of a cake pan, with a miniature rolling pin as the altar step, and candelabra on either side represented June; two large fire crackers, 12 soldiers and an American flag denoted July; August was represented with a miniature race track and many horses; September was "back to school," with crayons, pencils and marbles on a large slate; a large jack-o-lantern observed Halloween for October; turkeys and cranberries, November; and a Christmas tree, of cotton and ribbons on a large catchup bottle, December.

Sixty-four members attended.

Mrs. Norman E. Goldblatt was chairman of arrangements. Her committee included Mrs. Kauffman, Mrs. Morris Rosenbaum, Mrs. Harry Kauffman, Mrs. Maurice Milberg, Mrs. Louis Lutz, Mrs. Norman Pliner and Mrs. Klawan. Mrs. A. J. Mirkin was Program chairman.

600 See Showing Of Style Trends At Scholarship Benefit

Approximately 300 persons attended each night, the showing of the new style trends when Rosenbaum's inaugurated its 100th year of fashion selling Monday and Tuesday, under the sponsorship of the Community Service Group of the Woman's Civic Club for the benefit of its Nurses' Scholarship fund.

The new types and colors coordinated in fashions were stressed by Miss Dorothy Dunkle, announcer. She explained that the "riot of color for spring is to make feminine beauty more beautiful this Easter," and that the new style trend shows three silhouettes, the bell, slim skirt and the triangle.

The finale of the bridal party was the most outstanding feature, with the bride in a striking ice blue satin gown, draped in front with lace insertion and a bow; with it she wore a fingertip length veil. The matron of honor and bridesmaids wore powder blue draped hoop skirts, corresponding in type to the bride's, and blue marquisette open crown bonnets.

A spring theme was repeated in the background for the show, which represented an iron scroll entwined with spring flowers and backed with palms through the center of the runway and along the sides, and illuminated with effective spot lighting.

Advice To The Lovelorn

Girl Shouldn't Worry About Hurting Feelings Of Boy Who Jilted Her

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

I was engaged to a fellow for six months when he suddenly married another girl.

After a while he said he was sorry for what he did and that he plans to come back to me. I know he is still in love with me, but I don't love him any more and don't want to see him.

If I should see him again, how shall I tell him without hurting his feelings that I don't want anything to do with him? "G.S."

Dear "G. S.":

Why should you be so concerned about hurting this young man's feelings? Was he worrying about yours when he "suddenly married another girl"? And what makes you so sure that he's still in love with you? It seems pretty obvious, I'd say, that he hasn't the faintest idea of what it means to be in love with anyone.

If this fellow has the dishonesty and the effrontery to come skulking around you now, my advice to you is to speak out plainly and tell him exactly what you have told me—that you don't want anything to do with him any more. If it hurts his feelings, so much the better; it might do him good. I suspect, however, that his feelings are far less easily hurt than you imagine.

Husband With Nervous Breakdown

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

My husband has just spent over three months in a veterans' hospital for a nervous breakdown and has just been dicharged. The doctor told him not to work for two or three months.

Since he has been home he is like a sleepwalker. He never speaks a word to me or to our three small children. He goes out, and he doesn't come home until early hours of the morning. I think he is running around with somebody, as he has done this before.

I have lived like this for nine years with him. I have asked him to leave us, but he refuses to go. I never get any rest and feel as if I am going to have a breakdown myself. Please tell me what to do.

"MAE"

Dear "Mae":

There are two things that I think you might do.

First, I think it would be a good thing if you could go and have a talk with the doctors at the Veterans' Hospital and find out if it is your husband's illness that makes him behave as he does toward you and the children. It is possible that they might be able to explain his condition to you and give you some suggestions about how to handle him.

Second, you should discuss your problem with some welfare agency in youh city accustomed to dealing with family situations of this kind. If you will write me again and give me your address I will be glad to suggest some place in your vicinity where you could go for advice.

Port Commission To Meet Tonight

An application by W. Donald Smith to conduct aircraft sales and repair operations at the Cumberland Municipal Airport will be considered tonight at a meeting of the Municipal Airport Commission, to be held at 7:30 in City Hall.

Meanwhile, books of Cumberland Airways, Inc., which operated the port for two years ending January 1 have not been made available for a final audit, and therefore no definite steps have been taken to settle the accounts and pay the company the amount owed for buildings.

William J. Graham, company president, has informed Mayor Thomas S. Post he wishes to obtain the $38,000 which the city owes his firm. Under terms of the lease with Cumberland Airways, the city is obligated to reimburse the company for the cost of buildings, less depreciation, within 90 days after termination of the lease. The company is obligated to allow its books to be audited by city representatives.

In December, City Auditor Arthur B. Gibson chceked the books but since they were closed December 31 they have not been made available.

L. L. Atkinson, Pittsburgh, company secretary, informed the city yesterday it is not "feasible" to send the books here as records include files, invoices and much correspondence. Atkinson said Graham is expected in Pittsburgh soon and that a meeting will be sought with the commission.

The lease provided that the city is entitled to all profits over $1,000 in the two-year period. A profit of approximately $2,500 was noted in 1946, leaving the city with a credit of $1,500 toward 1947.

Any profit due the city would be deducted from the $38,000 owed the company for the depreciated value of the buildings. The port commission may suggest deducting some $300 or $400, the amount needed to place hangars in repair.

from the Springs Mutual Telephone Company, a locally owned concern which received calls from the Meyersdale exchange of the Bell system.

Present officers of the Avilton company, besides Robeson, are Charles C. Layman, Longstretch, treasurer; E. Q. Michaels, Avilton, manager, and Norman B. Durst, secretary and exchange operator.

Durst, 39, a cripple, who lives on a farm near Avilton, was the last operator for the company, serving at an antiquated switchboard in his home from November 1, 1944, until he put through the final call last September 6.

Mrs. Laura Wilhelm, the first operator, served only 18 months, and Durst's brother, Sheridan Durst, also a cripple, was an operator for 29 years.

Norman Durst recalled yesterday the outstanding experience of his service as an operator. During the severe winter of 1944, when roads were blocked with snow and travel was nearly impossible on Route 40, he was able to put through a call from his exchange to a rural section of Oklahoma for a stranded motorist, who wanted to inform his family of his whereabouts.

The Cumberland Life Underwriters Association will meet today at 4 p. m. in Central Y. M. C. A. Guest speaker, William W. Wood Jr., manager of the local Social Security office, will discuss social security and old age benefits. The meeting will recess for dinner at 6:15 after which an open forum will be held with Wood conducting it.

Gas Shortage Hits About 160 CA Workers

Officials of the Celanese plant reported Tuesday night that about 160 employes in the cellulose-acetate department of the Amcelle plant will be furloughed as a result of a curtailment in the gas supply due to last weekend's colder weather.

The company said more gas was made available Tuesday as the weather took a turn for the better but that the change did not take place in time to affect the scheduled furloughs. About 35 in that unit have already been laid off, the company said.

The situation is only a temporary adjustment due to the decreased fuel supply, the company explained.

Charlton Forfeits Bond

Ray Thomas Charlton, Route 2, this city, forfeited $6.45 bond yesterday in Trial Magistrates Court on a charge of reckless driving on Route 40 at Long Hill.

Another motorist, Addison I. Hixon, Route 1, Eightyfour, Pa., forfeited $11.45 for exceeding 50 miles an hour on Route 40 at Nave's Crossroads. Both were arrested Saturday by State Trooper John F. Browning.

Charles L. Kemp, Rawlings, was apprehended yesterday on the West Side by City Police on a charge of careless driving. He posted $10 bond for trial today.

Divorce Granted

A divorce decree has been signed in Circuit Court by Chief Judge William A. Huster in the case of Carrie H. Deck vs James O. Deck. She was awarded permanent alimony of $12.50 per week.

Moore Seeks Permit For Office, Garage

W. J. Moore, 648 North Mechanic Street, filed an appeal with the Board of Zoning Appeals yesterday for an occupancy permit to use a proposed building to be located at 239 North Mechanic Street as an office and garage for washing and greasing cars.

City Engineer Ralph L. Rizer, refused to grant the permit because the site is located in a Residential C. Zoning district. In January Moore obtained a permit to operate a used car lot at that address.

He said the one-story building would measure 26 by 36 feet, with a concrete foundation, concrete block walls and a composition roof.

C. L. Mignot secured a permit to enclose a first-story porch at 509 Beall Street with frame walls covered with inselbrick. Cost of the 6 by 16-foot enclosure was estimated at $275. Work will be done by J. F. Jonues.

Homes, Jobs Go Begging

Anyone interested in a good home and highpaying job might pay a visit to Gray, a little coal mining community located in Somerset County, Pa., just a short distance south of the Lincoln Highway on Route 219.

The Pittsburgh Consolidation Coal Company which operates a shaft mine in the town, would like to double or even triple its present work force of 130 men. The basic rate of pay is $13.05 per day.

There are still a few vacant homes left.

Paris—Ten per cent electrification of French railroads has cut needed coal imports and estimated two million tons annually.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

Where Does Your Money Go?

Read the other day where country folks and farmers spend more money, proportionately, on their homes than city dwellers do.

Doesn't seem hard to believe when you think it over. Take the folks in our town, for instance: They're home-loving people—who'd rather spend an evening by the fire with a mellow glass of beer than go out in search of entertainment or diversion.

So it's only natural they put more into what means most to them and to their children: their homes. They may not have too much to spend—but it goes for those permanent, abiding comforts that make home a nicer place to be.

And from where I sit, that budget calls for some of the niceties of home life too—like cider and popcorn for the kids from time to time, and a friendly glass of beer for Mom and Dad ... things that belong with what we mean when we say "Home."

Port Commission To Meet Tonight

An application by W. Donald Smith to conduct aircraft sales and repair operations at the Cumberland Municipal Airport will be considered tonight at a meeting of the Municipal Airport Commission, to be held at 7:30 in City Hall.

Meanwhile, books of Cumberland Airways, Inc., which operated the port for two years ending January 1 have not been made available for a final audit, and therefore no definite steps have been taken to settle the accounts and pay the company the amount owed for buildings.

William J. Graham, company president, has informed Mayor Thomas S. Post he wishes to obtain the $38,000 which the city owes his firm. Under terms of the lease with Cumberland Airways, the city is obligated to reimburse the company for the cost of buildings, less depreciation, within 90 days after termination of the lease. The company is obligated to allow its books to be audited by city representatives.

In December, City Auditor Arthur B. Gibson checked the books but since they were closed December 31 they have not been made available.

L. L. Atkinson, Pittsburgh, company secretary, informed the city yesterday it is not "feasible" to send the books here as records include files, invoices and much correspondence. Atkinson said Graham is expected in Pittsburgh soon and that a meeting will be sought with the commission.

The lease provided that the city is entitled to all profits over $1,000 in the two-year period. A profit of approximately $2,500 was noted in 1946, leaving the city with a credit of $1,500 toward 1947.

Any profit due the city would be deducted from the $38,000 owed the company for the depreciated value of the buildings. The port commission may suggest deducting some $300 or $400, the amount needed to place hangars in repair.

Injuries Are Fatal To Quecreek Miner

SOMERSET Pa.—Ralph D. Shaffer, Quecreek, Pa., miner who was injured in an accident at Saxman Coal and Coke Company last Wednesday died Tuesday in Somerset Community Hospital. Authorities said Shaffer was pinned between a mine motor and cross-timber.

Dr. A. M. Uphouse, Somerset County coroner,, said Shaffer died of pneumonia as the result of a punctured lung. A coroner's inquest will depend on the report of the Mine Inspector C. H. Maize, Dr. Uphouse said.

from the Springs Mutual Telephone Company, a locally owned concern which received calls from the Meyersdale exchange of the Bell system.

Present officers of the Avilton company, besides Robeson, are Charles C. Layman, Longstretch, treasurer; E. Q. Michaels, Avilton, manager, and Norman B. Durst, secretary and exchange operator.

Durst, 39, a cripple, who lives on a farm near Avilton, was the last operator for the company, serving at an antiquated switchboard in his home from November 1, 1944, until he put through the final call last September 6.

Mrs. Laura Wilhelm, the first operator, served only 18 months, and Durst's brother, Sheridan Durst, also a cripple, was an operator for 29 years.

Norman Durst recalled yesterday the outstanding experience of his service as an operator. During the severe winter of 1944, when roads were blocked with snow and travel was nearly impossible on Route 40, he was able to put through a call from his exchange to a rural section of Oklahoma for a stranded motorist, who wanted to inform his family of his whereabouts.

Woman Asks $5,000 In Suit Against Store

A damage suit for $5,000 was filed in Circuit Court yesterday by Mary Mausrath, Lonaconing, against the American Store Company which operates a retail place there.

The suit, docketed by Edward J. Ryan and William L. Wilson, Jr., for the Lonaconing woman, charges she purchased a sack of flour from the store "which was not fit for human consumption."

She claims the flour was purchased October 12, and on October 14, she used a part of it to bake bread. After eating some of the bread she became severely ill, the suit continues, and suffered cramps and other disorders. She further claims injuries to mind and body, physical and mental pain.

The plaintiff declares she was confined to bed for two weeks, suffered stomach disorders for two months and incurred medical expenses. She claims the flour contained harmful ingredients, small bugs and worms.

A suit was also docketed by Harold E. Naughton, attorney for National Discount Corporation, claiming $2,252.96 from Andrew Hamburg, Jr., and Hazel Hamburg.

Earl E. Manges, attorney, entered suit for the Sears Roebuck Company against Clinton Bishop, Twiggtown Road, for $200, claiming a balance due on account of $91.95.

Kangaroos have been reported to jump nearly 400 feet.

NAVY RECRUITING ASSISTANCE ASKED

Pointing out that every American taxpayer is a stockholder in the United States Navy, Lt. Comdr. Charles R. Wherritt, USNR, Tuesday urged members to the Cumberland Rotary Club to aid the Navy in its current "Fill the Fleet" campaign.

Comdr. Wherritt is commanding officer of the Cumberland Organized Naval Reserve Division. He was accompanied by Chief Torpedoman Edgar L. Schrader of the local Navy recruiting station, who showed a sound movie on the 1946-47 Antarctic expedition.

Comdr. Wherritt said although the Navy's present strength is 450,000 men, by July 1 the enlistments of about 232,000 young men who volunteered for service shortly after V-J Day will expire.

The Navy's authorized strength is 395,000 men, and the officer urged that young men between 17 and 30, especially those just out of high school, be urged to consider a career in the Navy.

At present the reserve force numbers about 850,000, many of whom belong to organized reserve units similar to the one in Cumberland, Comdr. Wherritt said.

He added that when the Naval Reserve Armory on McKaig's Hill is ready for use, the unit will train men in eight special classifications and will be one of the finest trade schools in this part of the country.

Washington — In 1935, one in every eight U. S. babies were delivered in hospitals, but in 1945 three out of every four were delivered in hospitals.

Check On Trucking Cargoes Continues

A check on all trucks using highways in this district was being continued yesterday by Maryland State Police and State Roads Commission workers to insure compliance with the loading limitations put into effect last Friday.

Maryland State Police said three trucks, all owned by the Howell Coal Company, 315 North Centre Street, were stopped Tuesday when weighing crews found their cargoes in excess of restrictions.

The company will be required to post bonds in local Trial Magistrates Court, Robert E. Putman, district maintenance engineer of the State Roads Commission, declared, adding the restrictions were put into effect to preserve the highways and not to work a hardship on trucking companies.

Delivers Sermon

Rev. Arthur Scrogum, pastor of the Living Stone Church of the Brethren, delivered the sermon at the Community Lenten service at Second Baptist Church last night. His subject was, "God's Atonement for Sin."

Rev. Allen B. L. Fisher, pastor of Grace Methodist Church, read the Scripture lesson and gave the evening prayer.

The better the job they do for you!

HERE ARE EIGHT of the 28,000 people who are Esso Standard Oil Company today. From Dorothy the telephone operator to Ed, the salesman, they have two things in common...they're mighty good people, in mighty good jobs.

The average length of employment for all our workers is over 14 years. Over 8,400 have been with us over 20 years. Their skill and loyalty on the job help a lot, day after day, in turning out quality products in this highly competitive business.

One reason for this unusually good working team is the unusually good jobs they have. Over 30 years ago this company set out always to be a good outfit to work for...to give the human needs of workers a key place in all planning.

With employees, their unions, and management all working steadily together, this policy has led to many unusual job advantages. It has kept wage rates high. It has led to employee benefit plans which include retirement with life income at 65, cash-savings plans, vacations with pay, generous accident and sickness benefits.

But the important point is how this combination of good workers in good jobs has had good results for so many people...Good for the workers, of course. Good for the company. Good for the thousands of stockholders who own the company. Good for the communities where these people make good taxpayers, good customers of local stores, good neighbors.

And good results for you, in your car or home or factory or on your farm.

Today, for instance, the whole petroleum industry is working overtime to meet the greatest demand for its products in all history—and this staff of skilled, experienced people is your assurance that everything possible is being done with this company's facilities to meet your needs for more and better petroleum products.

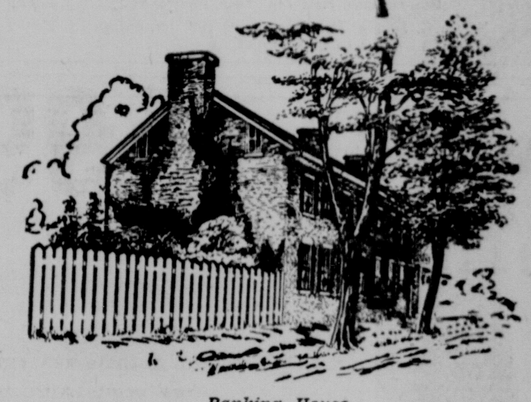
ONE of the most noteworthy events in the history of the development of Cumberland occurred in 1850 when the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal was opened to traffic between this city and Washington, D. C.

The tireless efforts of many men were required to complete the canal to this, its western terminus. Having been started in Georgetown in 1828, the waterway seemed at time destined not to reach Cumberland and many difficulties beset each mile of construction. Although never completed to Ohio as had been originally intended, this famous canal supplied economical transportation of coal from nearby mines to the eastern seaboard for many years and was probably the greatest contributing factor in the growth of the Georges Creek mining area.



Banking House 1838 to 1858

The Cumberland Gaslight Company was organized early in 1854 and on November 10th of that year the city was first lighted by artificial gas—a notable event of its day.

During this period of expansion in Cumberland, the Cumberland Bank of Allegany continued to grow with the community and because of its sound and conservative principles was well able to withstand the severe financial panic of 1857. The First National Bank of Cumberland has never departed from the principles set forth by its predecessors and it has grown, as befits an institution that depends for its success upon its adaptability to present day needs, but it has grown conservatively—and well.

ALONG THE POTOMAC TO WASHINGTON

By J. GLENN BEALL

(Member of Congress from Maryland Sixth District)

Largely through the intelligent efforts of Senator Arthur H Vandenberg, Republican, Michigan, the European Recovery Program last week glided over its first Congressional hurdle. The Senate Foreign Relations Committee last Tuesday, without a dissenting vote, approved an ERP bill which would authorize an expenditure of $5.3 billion for the 12-month period beginning April 1, 1948.

Although the President had asked for an outlay of $6.8 billion for a 15-month period from April 1, it is the consensus of opinion on Capitol Hill that he will be more than pleased to accept the compromise.

The European Recovery Program is scheduled to come up for floor action sometime the first part of March. It is my intention to amble over to the other side of the Capitol and listen to much of the Senate debate so that I can tell you something about the discussion as it takes place.

China Must Help Self

Last week President Truman sent a special message to Congress asking Congress to appropriate $570 million for aid to China. The President was not optimistic about China prospects for the future regardless of the amount of money given her unless the Chinese government undertakes to do something for herself in the way of a program of reforms.

Since almost everyone is interested in one way or another in rents, it is well to mention that the Senate Banking and Currency Committee unanimously approved a bill extending the law now in effect through April 30, 1949. If enacted into law in its present form the bill would: (1) continue the voluntary 15 per cent provision, but prohibit an additional 15 per cent; (2) erase the control for furnished rooms in private homes and on units renting for $225 or more; (3) allow landlords who can prove they are suffering financial loss to increase rents without tenant agreement.

Meanwhile the House Banking and Currency Committee approved extending the present law 30 days. Leaders in the House and Senate agreed on the 30 day extension but the Senate will continue debate on its bill which began Friday.

The Board of County Commissioners of Allegany County has asked me to help them get a Bailey bridge to replace the unsafe foot bridge over Wills Creek at Cumberland. I contacted War Assets, the Army Engineers and the Federal Works Agency hoping they can locate such a bridge.

Stream Pollution

Being a member of the Special Sub-Committee on Stream Pollution, I attended a meeting of that group at which time this subject was discussed thoroughly. The Legislative Council has been asked to draw up legislation which would include the following:

1. Loans should be limited to Inter-State only—not for Intra-State Waters.
2. Research should be made through assistance and supervision of the Public Health Service which would approve all plans.
3. The Federal Works Administration should make all plans and supervise construction.
4. Consideration should be given for an authorization of a loan in the amount of $10 million per year for five years and such money should be allowed to accumulate.
5. Provisions should be made to allow the city or municipality govern after the general plan has been approved.

This subject of clearing the waters of pollution has been kicked about for a long period and I hope that some effective legislation can be adopted as soon as possible.

Due to the shortage of fuel oil I wired the chairman of the Maryland State Roads Commission requesting that the emergency State Roads load limit be lifted for the time being, thus allowing for the delivery of vital fuel oil, and was advised that restrictions would be lifted in such cases.

ALONG THE POTOMAC TO WASHINGTON

By J. GLENN BEALL

(Member of Congress from Maryland Sixth District)

Largely through the intelligent efforts of Senator Arthur H Vandenberg, Republican, Michigan, the European Recovery Program last week glided over its first Congressional hurdle. The Senate Foreign Relations Committee last Tuesday, without a dissenting vote, approved an ERP bill which would authorize an expenditure of $5.3 billion for the 12-month period beginning April 1, 1948.

Although the President had asked for an outlay of $6.8 billion for a 15-month period from April 1, it is the consensus of opinion on Capitol Hill that he will be more than pleased to accept the compromise.

The European Recovery Program is scheduled to come up for floor action sometime the first part of March. It is my intention to amble over to the other side of the Capitol and listen to much of the Senate debate so that I can tell you something about the discussion as it takes place.

China Must Help Self

Last week President Truman sent a special message to Congress asking Congress to appropriate $570 million for aid to China. The President was not optimistic about China prospects for the future regardless of the amount of money given her unless the Chinese government undertakes to do something for herself in the way of a program of reforms.

Since almost everyone is interested in one way or another in rents, it is well to mention that the Senate Banking and Currency Committee unanimously approved a bill extending the law now in effect through April 30, 1949. If enacted into law in its present form the bill would: (1) continue the voluntary 15 per cent provision, but prohibit an additional 15 per cent; (2) erase the control for furnished rooms in private homes and on units renting for $225 or more; (3) allow landlords who can prove they are suffering financial loss to increase rents without tenant agreement.

Meanwhile the House Banking and Currency Committee approved extending the present law 30 days. Leaders in the House and Senate agreed on the 30 day extension but the Senate will continue debate on its bill which began Friday.

The Board of County Commissioners of Allegany County has asked me to help them get a Bailey bridge to replace the unsafe foot bridge over Wills Creek at Cumberland. I contacted War Assets, the Army Engineers and the Federal Works Agency hoping they can locate such a bridge.

Stream Pollution

Being a member of the Special Sub-Committee on Stream Pollution, I attended a meeting of that group at which time this subject was discussed thoroughly. The Legislative Council has been asked to draw up legislation which would include the following:

1. Loans should be limited to Inter-State only—not for Intra-State Waters.
2. Research should be made through assistance and supervision of the Public Health Service which would approve all plans.
3. The Federal Works Administration should make all plans and supervise construction.
4. Consideration should be given for an authorization of a loan in the amount of $10 million per year for five years and such money should be allowed to accumulate.
5. Provisions should be made to allow the city or municipality govern after the general plan has been approved.

This subject of clearing the waters of pollution has been kicked about for a long period and I hope that some effective legislation can be adopted as soon as possible.

Due to the shortage of fuel oil I wired the chairman of the Maryland State Roads Commission requesting that the emergency State Roads load limit be lifted for the time being, thus allowing for the delivery of vital fuel oil, and was advised that restrictions would be lifted in such cases.

Player Betting Is Investigated By Hockey Loop

DETROIT, Feb. 25—(AP)—National Hockey League President Clarence Campbell stepped into an investigation of reported player betting today and came up with what he called "strong circumstantial evidence" against two eastern players.

Working with Detroit police and state authorities, he said he hoped soon to contact a paroled bank robber alleged to be the middle man for the two unnamed players.

Campbell said the reported incident involved only an individual attempt to bet and not even "a hint of an attempt to fix a game."

But it proves, he added, that there is "a big field for investigation."

Campbell emphasized that any player found guilty of "even associating" with gamblers would be banned from hockey for life, whether he did any betting or not.

He pointed out that at his suggestion the league set up a $135,000 player bonus and incentive fund to keep players "from being interested in gambling."

On his arrival here from Montreal Compbell conferred with Detroit Police Commissioner Harry S. Toy. He said Toy gave him all the information he had, but it did not include the names of the two players.

Maine Salmon Caught In Argentine Waters

PORTLAND, Me., Feb. 25. (AP)—Possibly it has something to do with the good neighbor policy.

At any rate, Col. Stanley J. Donovan of Portland reported by mail today he had caught an 11-pound Sebago Lake salmon while fishing with American Ambassador Bruce in an Argentine lake.

A guide told Donovan, he said, the species was introduced from the Maine lake nearly a quarter of a century ago.

Four Opponents Bar Way To NYU's Unbeaten Season

Cann's 25th Team Has Won 18 Games

By LOU GARAVENTE
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Feb. 25—(INS)—New York University's crack basketball team, unbeaten in 18 consecutive games, hopes to celebrate Coach Howard Cann's silver coaching anniversary with a victory for each year.

The Violet court magicians, sole major claimants to an unsullied record, are the 25th NYU team Cann has coached. He describes it as "perhaps my best".

The wreckage of first-class quintets who have fallen before the fast-break trickery and shot-making of the Violets bear testimony that national and olympic fame may be their destiny.

Four opponents each eager to shatter the streak, bar the way to NYU's first undefeated season in 14 years. Tomorrow, tall, aggressive Rutgers will take a crack. They shouldn't win—but they might. The strain is beginning to show just slightly.

Play Irish Monday

Then, on March 1, at Madison Square Garden, the Fighting Irish of Notre Dame will offer the test. Notre Dame, capable of beating any team in the country when "right", (ask Kentucky) always plays over its head at the Garden. Game No. 20 will be the crisis.

Fordham is next with the Violets sure favorites despite the Rams' better-than-fair record.

Game 22 pits the Violet against City College of New York, a traditional and often bitter local rival. The "book" can be thrown out the window on this one. If NYU still is undefeated before the game, this March 9 tussle will be a donnybrook.

Unlike the well-publicized Kentucky Wildcats, NYU hasn't got an All-American hiding in every locker. Instead it has skill, height, poise, and depth—the latter the underlying reason for success.

If the Violets have a legitimate All-America candidate — and New York writers emphatically shout "they do!!"—it is their well-proportioned center, six-foot, seven-inch Adolph Schayes.

The 19-year-old Schayes is Mr. Big under the backboards—both of them. He can run, run, run. He can shoot, he passes off the pivot like a Houdini, and he is excellent on defense. Otherwise he's worthless.

Don Forman, lithe, jack-in-the-box guard is a long-range set-shot artist who holds the 1947-48 Garden scoring record for one game with 35 points against Duke. Capt. Ray Lumpp has a left-handed hook-shot that "hurts". Joe Dolhon is a fine playmaker and shotmaker, and Tom Kelley complements clutch shooting with aggressive backboard excellence.

That's the first five. Three others —Joel Kaufman, Joe Debonis, and Phil Derderian would make the starting team of any other varsity in New York City.

Team Has Everything

The team has everything to be a champion—particularly "heart". The quintet has come from behind several times—notably against Temple and St. John's—to prove that. If the Violets sweep their 22-game schedule, they'll need three more "win" candles. In the NCAA tournament—a tourney which the Violets definitely favor — a team must win three games for the championship.

A national invitation tournament championship requires four games. But what with inflation and the spirit behind their gift to the coach, the Violets wouldn't mind that "one for good measure" triumph.

Bradley And WVU Tangle Saturday

Team With 25-2 Mark Plays At Morgantown

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Feb. 25—The Bradley University Braves, who leave their Illinois reservation for only the fifth time this season to play West Virginia's Mountaineers here Saturday in the feature of a triple-header program, rank among the 10 leading teams in the nation with a 25-2 record and are regarded as almost a sure bet to return to the invitation tournament in New York, where they were bumped out in the opening round last year by Lee Patton's quint, 69-60.

Until they ran into DePaul in Chicago last Saturday, the Braves held No. 7 rating behind New York U. and were second only to Oklahoma A. & M. in the west. Bradley had been stopped but once, that an upset by South Dakota during a strenuous holiday stretch when five games were played in six nights. DePaul became the second team to turn the trick, 67-48.

Over its first 25 games, Bradley maintained a 70.4 scoring average. In three contests, the Peoria cagers went over the 90 point mark, hitting 91 twice against Yale and Arizona and 96 against Loyola of the South. Paul Unruh, sophomore center, was high scorer with a total of 339 points.

In their other three games away from home, the Braves beat Harvard at Boston, Washington at St. Louis and Stanford at Palo Alto. Among their victims at Peoria have been West Texas tate, Texas Christian, San Francisco, San Diego, Denver, Princeton, Dayton and Tulsa.

Patton saw the Denver game during the Christmas holidays and opines that "Bradley was terrific" in winning, 72-54.

CLASS "A" CHAMPIONS—Fort Hill High School's undefeated basketball team has clinched the championship of Class "A" schools in Allegany county and is now qualified to compete in Maryland's District No. 1 tourney in which Hagerstown and Frederick will compete. Fort Hill took the "A" title by beating Allegany twice and Beall once. Members of Coach Henrietta Paupe Snyder's team which has won four games and tied two in the W.M.I. League, are, left to right: FIRST ROW — Ida Mae Cage, June Clark, Delores Twigg, Helena Warner, Wanda Cameron. SECOND ROW — Janet Crabtree, Esther Burch, Donna Decker, Betty DeAngelo, Oleta Conway, Clara Hudson, Doris Adams, Geraldine "Jerry" Kirby and Patty Lewis. THIRD ROW — Coach Snyder, Gladys Davis, Shirley Fier, Betty Brooks, Shirley Riggleman, Mary Miller and Joyce Meyers.

W.V.U. Avenges Earlier Defeat By Presidents

Mounties Easily Win By 73 To 52

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Feb. 25 (AP)—West Virginia University basketball Mountaineers kept hopes alive for a post-season tournament bid here tonight by mercilessly defeating Washington and Jefferson 73 to 52.

The Presidents held leading scorer Eddie Beach to four field goals but couldn't keep pace with other Mountaineers. They became West Virginia's 40th consecutive basketball victim at home, and a crowd of 6,300 watched the rout.

In extending their current streak to seven straight wins the Mountaineers upped their season mark to 14-3 and squared matters for a 52-41 setback suffered at W&J last month.

Piedmont Edges Romney, 29-28

Last Ditch Rally Fails For Losers

PIEDMONT, W. Va., Feb. 25—A coasting Piedmont High School Lions team almost had a last quarter rally nip them in the bud before eking out a 29-28 decision over Romney High School tonight on the locals' court.

Coach "Huck" Miers' passers built up an early 10-2 lead in the first quarter and led 15-8 at halftime. With subs playing the better part of the second and third quarters, Piedmont held a 25-14 lead at the close of the third stanza.

A 14-point rally by Romney just missed nipping the Lions in the final eight minutes.

Piedmont gained their final edge in the Potomac Valley Conference tilt by converting five of seven foul tosses after being outscored from the field, 14-12.

The Sportlight by GRANTLAND RICE

By GRANTLAND RICE
Baseball's Hall of Fame

That smothered growling you may or may not hear is coming from a cluster of old-time ballplayers and old-time sporting writers. It is tied up with baseball's Hall of Fame.

The old-timers are complaining that a flock of younger writers are picking modern players and are packing the dust of forgetfulness on many famous stars of the past. The indictment is worth looking over, for it seems to be true.

For example, among those missing are Mordecai Brown and Johnny Kling, the famous Cub battery of forty years ago that fought Mathewson and Bresnahan to a standstill . . . Kid Nicholls, rated by Christy Mathewson as the best pitcher he ever faced. Nicholls starred in Boston. . . Eagle-eye Jake Beckley of the Reds . . . Harry Heilman . . . Jimmy Foxx. . . two great hitters.

Brown and Kling plus Brown and Archer fed the Giants and other National League teams enough poison to kill off a dozen zoos. As great a pitcher as Matty was, Brownie beat him in their last nine meetings.

It is too late for Brownie now, so far as any personal thrill is concerned but many of his fans would appreciate the delayed and deserved honor.

The longer these forgotten old-timers are left off, the deeper they are shoved back into obscurity. Their chance of making the upland country grows bleaker year after year.

Baseball's Hall of Fame is too great an institution to be overcrowded. A galaxy that knows Ruth, Cobb, Cy Young, Mathewson, Alexander, Walter Johnson, Eddie and Jimmy Collins among so many others should be more carefully watched.

It is a mistake to take in too many at one sitting. It is better to have too few. Once they are in, they are in forever. Certainly a group of stars that doesn't carry the names of Mordecai "Three Finger" Brown and Kid Nicholls can't be called complete.

The dungeon of oblivion is a tough citadel to break open. From now on, the Hall of Fame should be more carefully watched and guarded. It is certainly no frivolous or empty honor. At least it shouldn't be.

A Football Hall of Fame

It has been suggested that a football Hall of Fame be opened. At first glance it seems to be a good idea. At second glance it would be the most amazing complication in sport.

So far there have been well over 1,000 All-America nominations. To chop this list down to 90 or 100 survivors would be a job few would care to tackle. We might check over a partial list of standouts:

Centers—Germany Schultz, Michigan; Mel Hein, Washington State; and N. Y. Giants; Bull Dog Turner, Chicago Bears; Peck, Pittsburgh.

Guards — Pudge Heffelfinger, Yale; Cannon, Notre Dame; Hickman, Tenn.

Backs—Thorpe, Carlisle; Nevers, Stanford; Grange, Illinois; Eckersall, Chicago; Heston, Michigan; Friedman, Michigan; Nagurski, Minn.; Dutch Clarke, Col. and Detroit Lions; Gipp, Notre Dame; McEver, Tenn; Baugh, T. C. U., and Washington Redskins; Luckman, Columbia and Chicago Bears; Mahan, Harvard; Coy, Yale; Pfann and Kaw, Cornell; Guyon and Calac, Carlisle; Oliphant, Purdue and Army; Davis, Army.

This is only a skeleton outfit. It doesn't take in even 10 per cent of the stars from the South and the Southwest. There would have to be a double entry list—those from the colleges and those from the pros.

A football Hall of Fame would have to go back at least 70 years. It would have to start with Walter Camp. It would have to include such coaches as Camp, Rockne, Haughton, Yost, Zuppke, Andy Smith, Howard Jones, Neyland, Bierman, McGugan, Thomas, Little, Crisler, Bell, Leahy, on and on and on.

In the last 70 years there have been at least 2,000 football players who belong around the top. You don't think this is true? Well, each year there are at least 200 football teams who have certain stars. Each year there are over 6,000 football players on good terms, and at least 200 of these are top flight.

What about those players no one ever heard about who pop out with some pro team and wreck the headline stars? The 240-pound unknowns who can tear you apart? Wasn't it Mr. Gray who wrote:

..."Full many a star of purest ray serene
The unknown, unsung bush-league outfits bear.
Full many a Thorpe is born to buck unseen
And waste his rushes on the tank-town air."

A football Hall of Fame is far beyond our reach. The leaders would have to be Thorpe, Nevers, Heffelfinger, Grange, Gipp, Baugh, Luckman, Nagurski (doubled), Hubbard, Hutson, Schultz, Hein, Turner, Hickman, Eckersall, Heston and Fat Henry.

Here we have only seventeen men. But they should belong among the top 20.

"And the greatest of them all, the most valuable for any team," a Texas veteran writes me, "is Sammy Baugh. The most valuable team player that ever lived."

Others tell you Nagurski. Nagurski, Hutson, Baugh, Luckman — who can say?

Lucky Teams Not Revealed By Officials

NYU Will Probably Choose N.C.A.A. Bid

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK, Feb. 25 (AP) — The prized invitations for the National Invitation Basketball tournament were mailed today, but Asa Bushnell, head of the selection committee, refused to name the lucky teams.

"I don't wish to appear uncooperative," Bushnell replied to a query concerning reports that North Carolina State and Western Kentucky already had received feelers. "But I am not at liberty to disclose any information right now other than to say that the invitations are in the mail. However, I expect to have something important to announce tomorrow."

Bradley Is Choice

From another source, it was learned that in addition to N. C. State (23-2) and Western Kentucky (23-1), St. Louis (19-2), De Paul (19-5), Bradley (26-2) and Tulane (19-2), have been invited.

At least one New York quintet, probably City College (14-3) or Long Island University (14-4), will be a participant in the N.I.T. each still has several important games to play, and no doubt, a bid will depend upon how they fare in those games. New York U. (18-0), the only unbeaten college team in the nation, can take its choice of tourneys, but most likely will choose the N.C.A.A.

Other teams looked upon with favor by the committee are Texas (17-4), Bowling Green (24-5), West Virginia (13-3), and La Salle of Philadelphia (18-2). Still others being considered include Seton Hall (18-3), Rhode Island State (16-3) and Muhlenberg (15-3).

From Raleigh, N. C., home of N. C. State, the school's athletic director, J. L. Von Glahn was quoted as saying that the Wolfpack had received a "feeler" last week from the N.I.T. officials.

Western Kentucky Bid

Another report from Bowling Green, Ky., has Western Kentucky receiving a telegraphic bid to the N.I.T., but it has not been confirmed.

Meanwhile, two teams, Holy Cross and Kentucky have accepted invitations to the N.C.A.A. and will compete in the eastern half at Madison Square Garden. Holy Cross is the defending N.C.A.A. champion and will represent District 1. Kentucky, winner of 26 of its 28 starts, will represent District 3.

The six other N.C.A.A. berths will be decided mainly on the finishes in the various major conferences.

Spinelli Resigns From Mitt Guild; Quits Managing

NEW YORK, Feb. 25 (AP) — Mike Spinelli, manager of the late Sam Baroudi, today resigned from the Boxing Managers Guild at the request of the organization. He said he was retiring from the fight business.

After a brief session of the 10-man board of governors, Spinelli signed the following statement:

"Members of the New York Boxing Managers Guild,

"At your request, I hereby tender my resignation from the Boxing Managers Guild of New York and further state that I am abandoning management of boxers.

"Mike Spinelli."

Spinelli was the first member ousted from the guild although several applications for membership had been turned down.

President Charley Johnston of the guild called the meeting to investigate reported actions of Spinelli in Chicago where Baroudi died after a fight with Ezzard Charles last Friday.

The managers heard Spinelli's own story of why he had attempted to leave Chicago with the fighter's purse while he was dying in a hospital.

Player Betting Is Investigated By Hockey Loop

DETROIT, Feb. 25—(AP)—National Hockey League President Clarence Campbell stepped into an investigation of reported player betting today and came up with what he called "strong circumstantial evidence" against two eastern players.

Working with Detroit police and state authorities, he said he hoped soon to contact a paroled bank robber alleged to be the middle man for the two unnamed players.

Campbell said the reported incident involved only an individual attempt to bet and not even "a hint of an attempt to fix a game."

But it proves, he added, that there is "a big field for investigation."

Campbell emphasized that any player found guilty of "even associating" with gamblers would be banned from hockey for life, whether he did any betting or not.

He pointed out that at his suggestion the league set up a $135,000 player bonus and incentive fund to keep players "from being interested in gambling."

On his arrival here from Montreal Compbell conferred with Detroit Police Commissioner Harry S. Toy. He said Toy gave him all the information he had, but it did not include the names of the two players.

Maine Salmon Caught In Argentine Waters

PORTLAND, Me., Feb. 25. (AP)—Possibly it has something to do with the good neighbor policy.

At any rate, Col. Stanley J. Donovan of Portland reported by mail today he had caught an 11-pound Sebago Lake salmon while fishing with American Ambassador Bruce in an Argentine lake.

A guide told Donovan, he said, the species was introduced from the Maine lake nearly a quarter of a century ago.

Four Opponents Bar Way To NYU's Unbeaten Season

Cann's 25th Team Has Won 18 Games

By LOU GARAVENTE
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Feb. 25—(INS)—New York University's crack basketball team, unbeaten in 18 consecutive games, hopes to celebrate Coach Howard Cann's silver coaching anniversary with a victory for each year.

The Violet court magicians, sole major claimants to an unsullied record, are the 25th NYU team Cann has coached. He describes it as "perhaps my best".

The wreckage of first-class quintets who have fallen before the fast-break trickery and shot-making of the Violets bear testimony that national and olympic fame may be their destiny.

Four opponents each eager to shatter the streak, bar the way to NYU's first undefeated season in 14 years. Tomorrow, tall, aggressive Rutgers will take a crack. They shouldn't win—but they might. The strain is beginning to show just slightly.

Play Irish Monday

Then, on March 1, at Madison Square Garden, the Fighting Irish of Notre Dame will offer the test.

Notre Dame, capable of beating any team in the country when "right", (ask Kentucky) always plays over its head at the Garden. Game No. 20 will be the crisis.

Fordham is next with the Violets sure favorites despite the Rams' better-than-fair record.

Game 22 pits the Violet against City College of New York, a traditional and often bitter local rival. The "book" can be thrown out the window on this one. If NYU still is undefeated before the game, this March 9 tussle will be a donnybrook.

Unlike the well-publicized Kentucky Wildcats, NYU hasn't got an All-American hiding in every locker. Instead it has skill, height, poise, and depth—the latter the underlying reason for success.

If the Violets have a legitimate All-America candidate — and New York writers emphatically shout "they do!!"—it is their well-proportioned center, six-foot, seven-inch Adolph Schayes.

The 19-year-old Schayes is Mr. Big under the backboards—both of them. He can run, run, run. He can shoot, he passes off the pivot like a Houdini, and he is excellent on defense. Otherwise he's worthless.

Don Forman, lithe, jack-in-the-box guard is a long-range set-shot artist who holds the 1947-48 Garden scoring record for one game with 35 points against Duke. Capt. Ray Lumpp has a left-handed hookshot that "hurts". Joe Dolhon is a fine playmaker and shotmaker, and Tom Kelley complements clutch shooting with aggressive backboard excellence.

That's the first five. Three others —Joel Kaufman, Joe Debonis, and Phil Derderian would make the starting team of any other varsity in New York City.

Team Has Everything

The team has everything to be a champion—particularly "heart". The quintet has come from behind several times—notably against Temple and St. John's—to prove that.

If the Violets sweep their 22-game schedule, they'll need three more "win" candles. In the NCAA tournament—a tourney which the Violets definitely favor — a team must win three games for the championship.

A national invitation tournament championship requires four games. But what with inflation and the spirit behind their gift to the coach, the Violets wouldn't mind that "one for good measure" triumph.

Bradley And WVU Tangle Saturday

Team With 25-2 Mark Plays At Morgantown

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Feb. 25—The Bradley University Braves, who leave their Illinois reservation for only the fifth time this season to play West Virginia's Mountaineers here Saturday in the feature of a triple-header program, rank among the 10 leading teams in the nation with a 25-2 record and are regarded as almost a sure bet to return to the invitation tournament in New York, where they were bumped out in the opening round last year by Lee Patton's quint, 69-60.

Until they ran into DePaul in Chicago last Saturday, the Braves held No. 7 rating behind New York U. and were second only to Oklahoma A. & M. in the west. Bradley had been stopped but once, that an upset by South Dakota during a strenuous holiday stretch when five games were played in six nights. DePaul became the second team to turn the trick, 67-48.

Over its first 25 games, Bradley maintained a 70.4 scoring average. In three contests, the Peoria cagers went over the 90 point mark, hitting 91 twice against Yale and Arizona and 96 against Loyola of the South. Paul Unruh, sophomore center, was high scorer with a total of 339 points.

In their other three games away from home, the Braves beat Harvard at Boston, Washington at St. Louis and Stanford at Palo Alto. Among their victims at Peoria have been West Texas tate, Texas Christian, San Francisco, San Diego, Denver, Princeton, Dayton and Tulsa.

Patton saw the Denver game during the Christmas holidays and opines that "Bradley was terrific" in winning, 72-54.

CLASS "A" CHAMPIONS—Fort Hill High School's undefeated basketball team has clinched the championship of Class "A" schools in Allegany county and is now qualified to compete in Maryland's District No. 1 tourney in which Hagerstown and Frederick will compete. Fort Hill took the "A" title by beating Allegany twice and Beall once. Members of Coach Henrietta Paupe Snyder's team which has won four games and tied two in the W.M.I. League, are, left to right: FIRST ROW — Ida Mae Cage, June Clark, Delores Twigg, Helena Warner, Wanda Cameron. SECOND ROW — Janet Crabtree, Esther Burch, Donna Decker, Betty DeAngelo, Oleta Conway, Clara Hudson, Doris Adams, Geraldine "Jerry" Kirby and Patty Lewis. THIRD ROW — Coach Snyder, Gladys Davis, Shirley Fier, Betty Brooks, Shirley Riggleman, Mary Miller and Joyce Meyers.

The Sportlight by GRANTLAND RICE

By GRANTLAND RICE
Baseball's Hall of Fame

That smothered growling you may or may not hear is coming from a cluster of old-time ballplayers and old-time sporting writers. It is tied up with baseball's Hall of Fame.

The old-timers are complaining that a flock of younger writers are picking modern players and are packing the dust of forgetfulness on many famous stars of the past. The indictment is worth looking over, for it seems to be true.

For example, among those missing are Mordecai Brown and Johnny Kling, the famous Cub battery of forty years ago that fought Mathewson and Bresnahan to a standstill . . . Kid Nicholls, rated by Christy Mathewson as the best pitcher he ever faced. Nicholls starred in Boston. . . Eagle-eye Jake Beckley of the Reds . . . Harry Heilman . . . Jimmy Foxx. . . two great hitters.

Brown and Kling plus Brown and Archer fed the Giants and other National League teams enough poison to kill off a dozen zoos. As great a pitcher as Matty was, Brownie beat him in their last nine meetings.

It is too late for Brownie now, so far as any personal thrill is concerned but many of his fans would appreciate the delayed and deserved honor.

The longer these forgotten old-timers are left off, the deeper they are shoved back into obscurity. Their chance of making the upland country grows bleaker year after year.

Baseball's Hall of Fame is too great an institution to be overcrowded. A galaxy that knows Ruth, Cobb, Cy Young, Mathewson, Alexander, Walter Johnson, Eddie and Jimmy Collins among so many others should be more carefully watched.

It is a mistake to take in too many at one sitting. It is better to have too few. Once they are in, they are in forever. Certainly a group of stars that doesn't carry the names of Mordecai "Three Finger" Brown and Kid Nicholls can't be called complete.

The dungeon of oblivion is a tough citadel to break open. From now on, the Hall of Fame should be more carefully watched and guarded. It is certainly no frivolous or empty honor. At least it shouldn't be.

A Football Hall of Fame

It has been suggested that a football Hall of Fame be opened. At first glance it seems to be a good idea. At second glance it would be the most amazing complication in sport.

So far there have been well over 1,000 All-America nominations. To chop this list down to 90 or 100 survivors would be a job few would care to tackle. We might check over a partial list of standouts:

Centers—Germany Schultz, Michigan; Mel Hein, Washington State; and N. Y. Giants; Bull Dog Turner, Chicago Bears; Peck, Pittsburgh.

Guards — Pudge Heffelfinger, Yale; Cannon, Notre Dame; Hickman, Tenn.

Backs—Thorpe, Carlisle; Nevers, Stanford; Grange, Illinois; Eckersall, Chicago; Heston, Michigan; Friedman, Michigan; Nagurski, Minn.; Dutch Clarke, Col. and Detroit Lions; Gipp, Notre Dame; McEver, Tenn; Baugh, T. C. U., and Washington Redskins; Luckman, Columbia and Chicago Bears; Mahan, Harvard; Coy, Yale; Pfann and Kaw, Cornell; Guyon and Calac, Carlisle; Oliphant, Purdue and Army; Davis, Army.

This is only a skeleton outfit. It doesn't take in even 10 per cent of the stars from the South and the Southwest. There would have to be a double entry list—those from the colleges and those from the pros.

A football Hall of Fame would have to go back at least 70 years. It would have to start with Walter Camp. It would have to include such coaches as Camp, Rockne, Haughton, Yost, Zuppke, Andy Smith, Howard Jones, Neyland, Bierman, McGugan, Thomas, Little, Crisler, Bell, Leahy, on and on and on.

In the last 70 years there have been at least 2,000 football players who belong around the top. You don't think this is true? Well, each year there are at least 200 football teams who have certain stars. Each year there are over 6,000 football players on good terms, and at least 200 of these are top flight.

What about those players no one ever heard about who pop out with some pro team and wreck the headline stars? The 240-pound unknowns who can tear you apart? Wasn't it Mr. Gray who wrote:

..."Full many a star of purest ray serene
The unknown, unsung bush-league outfits bear.
Full many a Thorpe is born to buck unseen
And waste his rushes on the tank-town air."

A football Hall of Fame is far beyond our reach. The leaders would have to be Thorpe, Nevers, Heffelfinger, Grange, Gipp, Baugh, Luckman, Nagurski (doubled), Hubbard, Hutson, Schultz, Hein, Turner, Hickman, Eckersall, Heston and Fat Henry.

Here we have only seventeen men. But they should belong among the top 20.

"And the greatest of them all, the most valuable for any team," a Texas veteran writes me, "is Sammy Baugh. The most valuable team player that ever lived."

Others tell you Nagurski, Nagurski, Hutson, Baugh, Luckman — who can say?

Lucky Teams Not Revealed By Officials

NYU Will Probably Choose N.C.A.A. Bid

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK, Feb. 25 (AP) — The prized invitations for the National Invitation Basketball tournament were mailed today, but Asa Bushnell, head of the selection committee, refused to name the lucky teams.

"I don't wish to appear uncooperative," Bushnell replied to a query concerning reports that North Carolina State and Western Kentucky already had received feelers. "But I am not at liberty to disclose any information right now other than to say that the invitations are in the mail. However, I expect to have something important to announce tomorrow."

Bradley Is Choice

From another source, it was learned that in addition to N. C. State (23-2) and Western Kentucky (23-1), St. Louis (19-2), De Paul (19-5), Bradley (26-2) and Tulane (19-2), have been invited.

At least one New York quintet, probably City College (14-3) or Long Island University (14-4), will be a participant in the N.I.T. each still has several important games to play, and no doubt, a bid will depend upon how they fare in those games. New York U. (18-0), the only unbeaten college team in the nation, can take its choice of tourneys, but most likely will choose the N.C.A.A.

Other teams looked upon with favor by the committee are Texas (17-4), Bowling Green (24-5), West Virginia (13-3), and La Salle of Philadelphia (18-2). Still others being considered include Seton Hall (18-3), Rhode Island State (16-3) and Muhlenberg (15-3).

From Raleigh, N. C., home of N. C. State, the school's athletic director, J. L. Von Glahn was quoted as saying that the Wolfpack had received a "feeler" last week from the N.I.T. officials.

Western Kentucky Bid

Another report from Bowling Green, Ky., has Western Kentucky receiving a telegraphic bid to the N.I.T., but it has not been confirmed.

Meanwhile, two teams, Holy Cross and Kentucky have accepted invitations to the N.C.A.A. and will compete in the eastern half at Madison Square Garden. Holy Cross is the defending N.C.A.A. champion and will represent District 1. Kentucky, winner of 26 of its 28 starts, will represent District 3.

The six other N.C.A.A. berths will be decided mainly on the finishes in the various major conferences.

Spinelli Resigns From Mitt Guild; Quits Managing

NEW YORK, Feb. 25 (AP) — Mike Spinelli, manager of the late Sam Baroudi, today resigned from the Boxing Managers Guild at the request of the organization. He said he was retiring from the fight business.

After a brief session of the 10-man board of governors, Spinelli signed the following statement:

"Members of the New York Boxing Managers Guild,

"At your request, I hereby tender my resignation from the Boxing Managers Guild of New York and further state that I am abandoning management of boxers.

"Mike Spinelli."

Spinelli was the first member ousted from the guild although several applications for membership had been turned down.

President Charley Johnston of the guild called the meeting to investigate reported actions of Spinelli in Chicago where Baroudi died after a fight with Ezzard Charles last Friday.

The managers heard Spinelli's own story of why he had attempted to leave Chicago with the fighter's purse while he was dying in a hospital.

Income Tax Primer

Interest And Certain Tax Payments Offer Possibility Of Large Saving

By ALEXANDER R. GEORGE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25—(AP)—Your biggest chance to reduce the tax on your 1947 income may be in deductions for interest paid on a home loan, plus certain tax payments.

You list deductions on your return only if you use the long Form 1040. If you use the short Form 1040 or the withholding statement as a return, tax tables automatically provide a total deduction amounting to about 10 per cent of your income.

Therefore, if you have allowable deductions amounting to more than 10 per cent of income, you save tax money by using the long form and listing your deductions. Any person may use the long form.

Two classes of taxpayers must use the long form: (1) Those with income of $5,000 or more in 1947 and (2) those who list deductions such as tax and interest payments, losses from fire, storm or theft, contributions, and medical expenses.

You may deduct that portion of your medical expenses which exceeds five per cent of your income.

Persons with incomes of $5,000 or more who use the long Form 1040 may take a flat $500 allowance for deductions instead of listing their deductions. Where allowable deductions are not more than $500, it's to your advantage to take the regular $500 allowance.

The law permits the deduction of most kinds of interest payments. You may deduct money paid as interest on a home mortgage of a personal loan, on installment purchases of an automobile, radio or other articles.

In order to be deductible, it is not necessary that the debt be secured by a lie nor a mortgage but there must be a legal obligation on the taxpayer to pay the interest. You may not deduct interest paid on behalf of a relative or friend to prevent foreclosure of a loan unless you were liable for the interest under the terms of the loan as a comaker or an indorser of his note.

Many kinds of tax payments are deductible. Several others are not. You may deduct amounts paid on state income taxes, most property taxes, auto license taxes. Also state gasoline taxes in more than 40 states.

You are not allowed to deduct: Federal incomes taxes, federal gasoline taxes, federal taxes on furs, jewelry, liquor, cigarettes, toilet articles and the like. Federal employment (social security) taxes may be deducted by an employer. Such taxes withheld from the wages of an employe may not be deducted by the employe.

You are not permitted to deduct federal taxes on admission, transportation, telephone and telegraph and safe deposit boxes unless they are incurred in carrying on a trade or business or are attributable to rents and royalties.

You may deduct state or local retail sales taxes if under the laws of your state or locality they are imposed directly upon you as a consumer. If those taxes are imposed directly upon the retailer and passed on to you as a consumer, you may deduct them only if the amount of the tax is measured by the pdice of the article or by a sum per unit of the article sold.

Taxes for local benefits such as assessments for streets, sidewalks, sewage and other local improvements which tend to increase the value of your property are not deductible "except amounts allocable to maintenance or interest charges."

You may not deduct as taxes charges for governmental services such as municipal water bills, parking meter charges, service fees and the like. However, these are deductible as business expenses if incurred in a business or trade.

Contributions to charitable, religious, educational, scientific and literary organizations are deductible if made for a public purpose and not for a personal purpose. Typical deductible contributions are those to Communisty Chests, the Red Cross, church assessments, pew rents, the Boy Scouts and like organizations.

Contributions to a domestic fraternal society are deductible only if the contributions are to be used for charitable, religious, educations, scientific and literary purposes. And provided no part of the organization's earnings benefit a private shareholder or individual.

Gifts of money or other property to an individual in need are not deductible.

Creomulsion blends beechwood creosote by special process with other time tested medicines for coughs. It contains no narcotics.

No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough, permitting rest and sleep, or you are to have your money back. (Adv.)

Income Tax Primer

Interest And Certain Tax Payments Offer Possibility Of Large Saving

By ALEXANDER R. GEORGE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25—(AP)—Your biggest chance to reduce the tax on your 1947 income may be in deductions for interest paid on a home loan, plus certain tax payments.

You list deductions on your return only if you use the long Form 1040. If you use the short Form 1040 or the withholding statement as a return, tax tables automatically provide a total deduction amounting to about 10 per cent of your income.

Therefore, if you have allowable deductions amounting to more than 10 per cent of income, you save tax money by using the long form and listing your deductions. Any person may use the long form.

Two classes of taxpayers must use the long form: (1) Those with income of $5,000 or more in 1947 and (2) those who list deductions such as tax and interest payments, losses from fire, storm or theft, contributions, and medical expenses.

You may deduct that portion of your medical expenses which exceeds five per cent of your income.

Persons with incomes of $5,000 or more who use the long Form 1040 may take a flat $500 allowance for deductions instead of listing their deductions. Where allowable deductions are not more than $500, it's to your advantage to take the regular $500 allowance.

The law permits the deduction of most kinds of interest payments. You may deduct money paid as interest on a home mortgage of a personal loan, on installment purchases of an automobile, radio or other articles.

In order to be deductible, it is not necessary that the debt be secured by a lie nor a mortgage but there must be a legal obligation on the taxpayer to pay the interest. You may not deduct interest paid on behalf of a relative or friend to prevent foreclosure of a loan unless you were liable for the interest under the terms of the loan as a co-maker or an indorser of his note.

Many kinds of tax payments are deductible. Several others are not. You may deduct amounts paid on state income taxes, most property taxes, auto license taxes, Also state gasoline taxes in more than 40 states.

You are not allowed to deduct: Federal incomes taxes, federal gasoline taxes, federal taxes on furs, jewelry, liquor, cigarettes, toilet articles and the like. Federal employment (social security) taxes may be deducted by an employer. Such taxes withheld from the wages of an employe may not be deducted by the employe.

You are not permitted to deduct federal taxes on admission, transportation, telephone and telegraph and safe deposit boxes unless they are incurred in carrying on a trade or business or are attributable to rents and royalties.

You may deduct state or local retail sales taxes if under the laws of your state or locality they are imposed directly upon you as a consumer. If those taxes are imposed directly upon the retailer and passed on to you as a consumer, you may deduct them only if the amount of the tax is measured by the pdice of the article or by a sum per unit of the article sold.

Taxes for local benefits such as assessments for streets, sidewalks, sewage and other local improvements which tend to increase the value of your property are not deductible "except amounts allocable to maintenance or interest charges."

You may not deduct as taxes charges for governmental services such as municipal water bills, parking meter charges, service fees and the like. However, these are deductible as business expenses if incurred in a business or trade.

Contributions to charitable, religious, educational, scientific and literary organizations are deductible if made for a public purpose and not for a personal purpose. Typical deductible contributions are those to Communisty Chests, the Red Cross, church assessments, pew rents, the Boy Scouts and like organizations.

Contributions to a domestic fraternal society are deductible only if the contributions are to be used for charitable, religious, educations, scientific and literary purposes. And provided no part of the organization's earnings benefit a private shareholder or individual.

Gifts of money or other property to an individual in need are not deductible.

James P. Lazatti, executive secretary of the Maryland Veterans Housing Commission has approved the form, and in commenting on it said, "I have shown this questionnaire to a number of people, and the consensus of opinion is it is the best and most complete form of its kind ever prepared for such a survey."

Lazatti, as well as the heads of veterans organizations in this county, urge all veterans who receive it, to fill it out and return promptly. If additional forms are needed they can be obtained at any headquarters of a veterans organization.

He did it with the seven-word statement: "I have decided to remain at Wesleyan," and steadfastly refused to say anything further.

There has never been any official information that Daniels was offered the Yale job, but neither has there been any denial that he was given serious consideration or that he had a long huddle with Yale athletic officials last weekend.

Bus Union

shop workers wages range from 85 cents an hour to $1.15 an hour.

The differential demands, according to Elliott, are for a one-cent increase on the night shift and a four-cent increase on the cateye shift. The present rates are four cents on the night shift and six cents on the cateye shift, Elliott explained.

Want Improved Vacations

The workers now receive one week's vacation after one year and two weeks after five years, according to Elliott, who said present demands are for one week after one year, two weeks after two years and three weeks after five years.

The union shop clause would require all employes to join the union after they have worked for the company for one month, Elliott stated.

The United States Conciliation Service was notified of the negotiations, according to union representives, but were advised that a peaceful settlement was expected.

The 10-cent offer, according to Elliott, is on condition that the drivers give up the $85 clothing allowance that it won during last year's negotiations, when the drivers and maintenance men were on strike for three weeks.

The 13½ hours spent in meetings during the past few days, according to Elliott, gained nothing so far as a settlement is concerned.

School Board

A library and a cafeteria elevator needed at Allegany High School would cost $50,000, according to the Board.

Wilkinson said the needs marked "urgent and immediate" by the Board were improvements for Flintstone, Columbia Street, Mt. Royal, McCoole, Corriganville, Midland, Gephart, Bruce, Allegany and Cresaptown.

Wilkinson said the commissioners will have to take under advisement other ways to finance the $2,000,000 bond issue, but declared he would have no statement to make until after the commissioners' meeting Friday.

HOUSE CLEANING TRICKS

Washing painted walls and woodwork is the one house cleaning task most disliked by homemakers. But even it can be simplified by using equipment that saves both time and steps. A new galvanized steel twin pail set—two convenient, rust-proof pails fastened together by a carrying handle—keeps both wash and rinse water within arm's reach. This means that the washing and rinsing of woodwork, floors and even furniture can be accomplished with direct, timesaving motions, helping to complete spring house cleaning in record time.

HOUSE CLEANING TRICKS

Washing painted walls and woodwork is the one house cleaning task most disliked by homemakers. But even it can be simplified by using equipment that saves both time and steps. A new galvanized steel twin pail set—two convenient, rust-proof pails fastened together by a carrying handle—keeps both wash and rinse water within arm's reach. This means that the washing and rinsing of woodwork, floors and even furniture can be accomplished with direct, timesaving motions, helping to complete spring house cleaning in record time.

FROSTBURG — William Prichard and Joseph Michael Donahue were admitted to Frostburg Lodge No. 470, B.P.O. Elks, Tuesday night in the presence of one of the largest number of local and visiting Elks attending any meeting of Frostburg Lodge in many years. The ritualistic work was exemplified by the officers of Cumberland Lodge No. 63, headed by Exalted Ruler Marcellus Mullan.

The Cumberland officers were accompanied by their glee club and organist, who presented selections under the direction of their leader, Earl Nonnenmann.

The 14-man delegation from Uniontown was headed by Orval A. Bowen, exalted ruler, and C. A. Shook, past district deputy grand exalted ruler for Southern Pennsylvania. The Bedford, Pa., group included Clifton Lehr, a former resident of Frostburg. His son, Carl Lehr, was the esquire on the Cumberland degree team. John D. Roberts, a former resident of Frostburg, was the lone representative from Houston.

Among the speakers were District Deputy Shook, Uniontown, Pa.; John Mosner and Dr. Albert Cook, past exalted rulers of Cumberland Lodge No. 63, and A. Charles Stewart, past grand trustee of the National Order of Elks. A buffet supper was served.

Campaign To Start

A public meeting, under auspices of the Frostburg Lions Club, will be held tonight at 7:45 o'clock in City Hall to open the campaign to raise funds for the Arion Band, with the goal set at $5,000.

The advance gifts committee, consisting of former County Commissioner S. W. Green and William Dolder, will make a report on their canvassing of the district, including retail stores.

Fraternal, civic and service groups who volunteered to assist in the drive, are urged to send representatives to the meeting.

Record Achieved

At a meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association of the Elementary School of Frostburg State Teachers College Monday, the membership committee reported it has secured 93 per cent of the parents as members, a record for the state and possibly for the entire country. Mrs. Richard Hawkins is chairman.

Harry M. Davis and J. Fred Ash were appointed to represent the association at the meeting to be held in City Hall tonight to raise funds for the Arion Band.

Brush Burners Are Warned About Carelessness During Fire Season

Great care should be taken while burning brush or doing any outside burning, Lester McClung, district forester of the West Virginia Conservation Commission's Division of Forestry, said yesterday.

He pointed out the fact that a brush burning permit is required during the period between March 20 and May 20, the statutory fire season, and that recent snows have had only a temporary effect on burning conditions.

Outside burning can be done before fire season without a permit without violating any law so long as the fire is kept under control and attended until it has burned out. McClung sounded the warning that a violation results when the fire escapes to the lands of another or is abandoned before it is dead out. These laws apply during the entire year and not only to the legal fire season.

In an effort to reduce both the number of violations and the number of forest fires, McClung suggests the following:

1. Do not burn brush, or anything else, unless absolutely necessary.
2. If you must burn brush try to get it done before March 20.
3. If you must burn brush during fire season get a brush burning permit from one of the local forest protectors.
4. Have sufficient help available to do the burning safely.
5. Keep some tools and water available.
6. Burn brush during the calm of the evening rather than during high winds.
7. Choose a day shortly after a rain instead of one during a very dry period.

The main appeal made by McClung is to get brush burned before the risk of burning safely is so great. He suggests that all material possible be left to control gully erosion and restore top soil to the land.

Brush Burners Are Warned About Carelessness During Fire Season

Great care should be taken while burning brush or doing any outside burning, Lester McClung, district forester of the West Virginia Conservation Commission's Division of Forestry, said yesterday.

He pointed out the fact that a brush burning permit is required during the period between March 20 and May 20, the statutory fire season, and that recent snows have had only a temporary effect on burning conditions.

Outside burning can be done before fire season without a permit without violating any law so long as the fire is kept under control and attended until it has burned out. McClung sounded the warning that a violation results when the fire escapes to the lands of another or is abandoned before it is dead out. These laws apply during the entire year and not only to the legal fire season.

In an effort to reduce both the number of violations and the number of forest fires, McClung suggests the following:

1. Do not burn brush, or anything else, unless absolutely necessary.
2. If you must burn brush try to get it done before March 20.
3. If you must burn brush during fire season get a brush burning permit from one of the local forest protectors.
4. Have sufficient help available to do the burning safely.
5. Keep some tools and water available.
6. Burn brush during the calm of the evening rather than during high winds.
7. Choose a day shortly after a rain instead of one during a very dry period.

The main appeal made by McClung is to get brush burned before the risk of burning safely is so great. He suggests that all material possible be left to control gully erosion and restore top soil to the land.

Potomac State Singers Have Busy Schedule

Players Club Offers "Dear Ruth" Tonight

By JUNE B. ROLLEY

KEYSER, W. Va., — With seven trips scheduled, the Potomac State Singers will have a busy season this spring. The following itinerary for the spring tour has been announced by Leonard G. Withers, head of the music department.

The first trip is tentatively scheduled for March 21, when the group will visit the high schools at Moorefield, Petersburg and Franklin. On April 6, programs will be given in high schools at Martinsburg and Berkeley Springs and at the Veterans' Hospital, Martinsburg.

On April 9 the chorus will visit high schools at Terra Alta, Oakland and Kingwood. The group will appear before an audience of Rotarians at Bedford, Pa., on April 11, and at Thomas, Davis and Parsons High Schools April 13.

Programs will also be given at Allegany High School Cumberland, and Ridgeley High School on the morning of April 15 with an afternoon recital scheduled for Fort Hill Cumberland, on that date.

The three-day trip will begin April 21 with programs to be presented for the townspeople of Parkersburg, sponsored by the First Methodist Church Choir; and the high schools at Pennsboro, West Union, Clarksburg, Bridgeport and Grafton.

Rehearsals are being held twice weekly in preparation for the spring season. Many new and well known selections are being included in the program.

Play Offered Tonight

Tonight at 8:15 the curtain on Potomac State Schools auditorium stage will go up for the Players Club's production of "Dear Ruth," a two-act comedy. Presentations of this popular comedy will follow on Friday and Saturday nights at the same time.

Members of the cast as previously announced by Dr. Elizabeth Atwater, director, and head of the Speech department of the school, include Ione Rannalls, McMillan Twigg, Toni Dayton, Charles McColley, Joan Yokum, Britton Shaffer, Darl Jewell, Hannah Wagoner, Charles LaSerte and Jack Welling.

Named for positions on the production staff are Paul Henck, business manager, assisted by James Hammond; Thomas Wild, state manager, assisted by John Chapman and William Thayer; Thomas Conlon, assisted by Mildred Popovich and Charles Spooler make up the publicity staff; Earl Johnson, Robert Spooler, and Paul Henck, programs. Robert Price and Helen Gleeson will be in charge of makeup. Prompters include Yolanda Colabreses, Anna Lee Clower, and Eleanor Grimes. Robert Spooler will be in charge of the curtain and Kenneth Smith, Betty Reid, Barbara Powell, Steve Roach and Romona Gregory will usher.

Albert Willhide, who is in charge of campus maintenance, with the assistance of Loraine Sines, has completed the work on the set.

Seek Witnesses In Arson Case

Local authorities are trying to locate a young couple in a 1947 cream-colored four-door sedan, who reported the residence at 416 South Mineral Street to be afire last Friday night. It is reported this couple saw someone come from the basement window of the dwelling, which would be evidence in the case of James Brooks, 60-year-old colored man, being held in the Mineral County Jail for action of the April term of grand jury. Brooks was charged with first degree arson at a hearing before Justice of the Peace Madalyn Bazzle Saturday afternoon and is being held under a $3,500 bond.

News Briefs

Charles Hott, Keyser, who was charged with obtaining money under false pretenses, repaid $52 to J. C. Williams, Keyser, at a hearing before Justice of the Peace Madalyn Bazzle, Tuesday.

E. O. Rawlings, a former resident of Akron, Ohio, who now resides in Keyser, made full restitution in the amount of $78 to the Taylor Hotel, Akron, who charged he owed a lodging bill in that amount. Rawlings was arrested by city police Saturday night and posted a $500 bond for his hearing before Justice Bazzle Tuesday.

Paul Bray, Ridgeley, paid a fine of $10 and costs when he learned a warrant was issued for his arrest charging him with being intoxicated. The warrant was not served inasmuch as Bray sent the fine to Justice Bazzle through his lawyer.

Fred Allen Will Act Role On MBS With Child Actress

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—Fred Allen, according to all the advance scheduling as announced, is to appear in an MBS program Thursday night, specifically the Family Theater at 10. He will be the guest host as Margaret O'Brien acts out "Life's a Circus."

Russell Maloney, writer, humorist and sometimes called an "assessor literature," is now running the CBS Of Men and Books at 6:15. He got the job after making a couple of guest appearances which apparently went along right well.

David Niven is to do the guest visiting to Al Jolson's Music Hall on MBC at 9. Oscar Levant also is a regular in this one. You know, he's ex-Information Please.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and Philip Reed of General Electric are to discuss "Labor's Stake in the European Recovery Program" via MBS at 8:15 for 15 minutes . . . Also listed as a Friday night broadcaster is Sen. Elbert Thomas of Utah. He's to talk about "The St. Lawrence Seaway" for ABC at 10:30 from Washington.

Walter O'Keefe's double or nothing of CBS at 3 is to have something different, it hopes. The program's being called a leap year party and the wives of the principles are to be on hand. For instance Roberta O'Keefe will be the M.S., Mrs. Harry Spears will do the directing and Mrs. Murray Wagner will be the announcing announcer. In making way for this one, the program has been going through a regular build-up process, both on the air and off.

SALLY'S SALLIES

"If you can't do anything else, enter a plea of insanity!"

RADIO IN REVIEW

By JOHN CROSBY

Look, Herman—Culture!

By act of Congress the Federal Communications Commission exercises the right to censor radio only in regard to profanity and obscenity and in this matter radio censors itself with sweeping vigilance. Fred Allen once observed wryly: "Heck is a word invented by the National Broadcasting Company which doesn't recognize either hell or the Columbia Broadcasting System.

John Crosby

Anything stronger than heck, it is believed in radio circles, would provoke thunderbolts which would leave the RCA Building in ashes. Therefore, I was greatly interested to note that Dorothy McGuire in the Theater Guild on the Air production of "Romeo and Juliet" was permitted to say—in reference to Juliet's aged nurse—"Ancient damnation!" No other writer but Shakespeare could get away with this deplorable language but "Romeo and Juliet" has been around a long time and presumably has been sanctified by time.

This dispensation puts Mr. Shakespeare in the charmed circle—and a very exclusive circle it is—of writers accorded special privileges by virtue of their eminent literary rank. To my knowledge there is only one other writer in this select circle—the distinguished author of "Gone With the Wind" Miss Margaret Mitchell. While "G. With the W." was being filmed, its producer, David O. Selznick, dropped all his activities to come to New York to plead personally with Will Hays to be permitted to use the sentence: "I don't give a damn" at the very end of the picture. By film tradition this line should have been changed to "I don't give a darn" or "I don't give a hoot."

Mr. Selznick's argument was that bowdlerization would throw the end of the film out of key. The arguments he marshalled in support of this theory, in logic, in comprehensiveness and in the sheer sweep of eloquence, surpassed many of those handed down in the United States Supreme Court. In the end he won out and Mr. Clark Gable was permitted to express himself fully and profanely.

Well, it took Shakespeare ten years to attain the sacrosanct status of Miss Mitchell and I feel that this small footnote in our literary history shouldn't pass unnoticed.

As another footnote to our cultural history, the Theater Guild on the Air reports in some bewilderment that its most popular offerings, according to the Hooper ratings, are its heaviest plays. The most popular play the Guild ever broadcast was "The Straw," an exceedingly somber work by Eugene O'Neill which might ordinarily be expected to drive listeners away in droves. The second most popular was Lillian Hellman's "The Little Foxes" which is no light comedy either.

The Theater Guild doesn't quite know what to make of this but rather wistfully takes it as an indication of an unslaked thirst for culture in this country. This view, I believe, requires some modification. Mr. O'Neill, one of those rare persons who owns a Nobel prize as well as a whole shelf of Pulitzer prizes, possesses not only snob appeal but great curiosity value. His prestige is of the sort usually accorded only the dead and consequently the listener might be prompted to listen just to find out what the fuss is all about.

O'Neill has always been a rather upsetting experience to the old line showmen. He is not only the best of American playwrights but also, contrary to all traditions, one of the richest. Back in the late '20's, many a producer put together a show which contained all the ingredients of popular success—lots of pretty girls in virtually no clothes, lots of gamey jokes, a comedian who fell down—and then lost his shirt on it. Meanwhile, in the next block, an O'Neill play of unrelieved tragedy was turning customers away in violation of all the rules of entertainment. It was enough to drive a man right back into the button-hole business.

One last note and we'll leave culture alone for a week or so. The British Broadcasting Corporation, which in the last year has run amok in the field of culture, recently broadcast Chaucer's "Troilus and Criseyde" which is comparable to broadcasting "The Frogs" in the original Greek. In print "Troilus and Criseyde" is almost undecipherable but in understanding hands it develops that Chaucer did after all write English and that he wrote it with immense vigor and color. Chaucer, I should say, would be an interesting test for American audiences. If, as the Theater Guild's experience suggests, the Hooper rating is determined by literary reputation, Chaucer's Hooper should be up around Bob Hope's.

Market, For First Time In Month, Advances For Two Straight Days

NEW YORK, Feb. 25—(AP)—For the first time in nearly a month, the stock market has advanced for two straight days.

Today's rally was moderate and final prices were under the day's best in most cases.

The Associated Press 60-stock composite moved up .2 of a point to 61.2. Of 945 issues appearing on the ticker, 523 pushed ahead and 195 declined.

Wider climbs were recorded for Skelly Oil, up 4½ at 104½; Pacific Western Oil, ahead 2¾ at 49; Mission Corporation, 2¼ at 49¾; Amerada Petroleum, 2¾ at 87, and Ruberoid, 2½ at 58½.

Ahead major fractions to more than a point were Chrysler at 86¼, Firestone at 44⅞, Rock Island preferred 49½, Atlantic Coast Line 46, Texas Pacific Land Trust 32½, Gulf Oil 61, Johns-Manville 37, Union Carbide 97¼, Deere 37⅝, Kennecott (ex-dividend) 43½, and Godrich 52¼. Dipping into lower ground at the end were General Motors, Republic Steel, Santa Fe, American Can and Eastern Air Lines, all with fractional losses.

There was a good scattering of gains of a point or better in today's quiet bond market.

Railroad issues drew the most interest. Fractional price changes dominated.

Government bonds were quiet. The Associated Press index of 10 foreign bonds was down almost half a point to 65.3, a new 1947-48 low.

Norfolk and Southern convertible 5s closed 2¼ ahead at 55¼ as the railway declared full interest on its five per cent income bonds.

Fire Fighting Round And Round

CAMPTONVILLE, Calif. (AP)—A fire alarm here turned out to be one of the most roundabout in history.

Radio fan Elkanah Stoddard, up early to work his ham station, saw a grass fire on a nearby ridge. It was too early to raise anyone at the Forest Service by phone, so he got on the air with an SOS.

This was heard by the monitoring station of the Federal Communications Commission at Grand Island, Neb., which relayed the call to their station on San Francisco Bay at San Leandro, 150 miles from this small Sierra foothill town.

The San Leandro FCC station notified the local highway patrol, which called headquarters at Sacramento, which told the highway patrol at Downieville only 15 miles from here.

Fire fighters were sent. By that time the fire was out.

Lettuce Beats Love In Berlin Parks Again

BERLIN (AP)—By order of the American military government, the parks of Berlin again will be devoted this spring to potato and cabbage patches rather than lovers' lanes.

Slapping down a spreading rumor that parks and public squares would again revert to grass and trees and statuary, the A.M.G. ordered no letup in the vegetable garden program in the U. S. sector of the city in view of the continuing world food shortage.

U. S. food officials said only in a few places in the center of the city, such as Leipziger platz, would vegetable planting be discontinued and that because of poor soil and other conditions not conducive to good yields.

Hair On Your Chest Means Less On Head

NEW YORK, (AP)—The man with hair on his chest may be more likely to grow bald.

H. Harris, of Cambridge, Eng., finds that baldness is more frequent in men with abundant hair on chest, arms, legs, and abdomen than in men with little body hair growth. He surveyed the hairiness of 600 men, including a group who were slightly bald and a group who were really bald, the journal of Modern Medicine reports.

There's still nothing you can do about it. Inheritance determines how much hair you'll have on your chest, and how long you'll keep the hair on your head, Harris said.

Staying After School Is Outside The Law

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP)—Keeping a child after school in Wyoming may not be legal, but neither is it illegal.

A parent telephoned Miss Edna B. Stolt, state superintendent of schools, and demanded to know if it were "legal" for a teacher to keep a child after classes.

Miss Stolt said so far as she knew, there was no law against it.

"That's all I wanted to know," the parent declared.

U. S. Sheep Decline

CEDAR RAPIDS, Ia.—(AP)—The number of sheep in the United States now is at the lowest point since 1867, A. J. Dexter, of the Northern Pacific Railway, told sheep feeders and producers here. Dexter blamed the decline of sheep in part to a drop in the fertility of American ewes.

Fred Allen Will Act Role On MBS With Child Actress

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—Fred Allen, according to all the advance scheduling as announced, is to appear in an MBS program Thursday night, specifically the Family Theater at 10. He will be the guest host as Margaret O'Brien acts out "Life's a Circus."

Russell Maloney, writer, humorist and sometimes called an "assessor literature," is now running the CBS Of Men and Books at 6:15. He got the job after making a couple of guest appearances which apparently went along right well.

David Niven is to do the guest visiting to Al Jolson's Music Hall on MBC at 9. Oscar Levant also is a regular in this one. You know, he's ex-Information Please.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and Philip Reed of General Electric are to discuss "Labor's Stake in the European Recovery Program" via MBS at 8:15 for 15 minutes . . . Also listed as a Friday night broadcaster is Sen. Elbert Thomas of Utah. He's to talk about "The St. Lawrence Seaway" for ABC at 10:30 from Washington.

Walter O'Keefe's double or nothing of CBS at 3 is to have something different, it hopes. The program's being called a leap year party and the wives of the principles are to be on hand. For instance Roberta O'Keefe will be the M.S., Mrs. Harry Spears will do the directing and Mrs. Murray Wagner will be the announcing announcer. In making way for this one, the program has been going through a regular build-up process, both on the air and off.

SALLY'S SALLIES

RADIO IN REVIEW

By JOHN CROSBY

Look, Herman—Culture!

By act of Congress the Federal Communications Commission exercises the right to censor radio only in regard to profanity and obscenity and in this matter radio censors itself with sweeping vigilance. Fred Allen once observed wryly: "Heck is a word invented by the National Broadcasting Company which doesn't recognize either hell or the Columbia Broadcasting System.

John Crosby

Anything stronger than heck, it is believed in radio circles, would provoke thunderbolts which would leave the RCA Building in ashes. Therefore, I was greatly interested to note that Dorothy McGuire in the Theater Guild on the Air production of "Romeo and Juliet" was permitted to say—in reference to Juliet's aged nurse—"Ancient damnation!" No other writer but Shakespeare could get away with this deplorable language but "Romeo and Juliet" has been around a long time and presumably has been sanctified by time.

This dispensation puts Mr. Shakespeare in the charmed circle—and a very exclusive circle it is—of writers accorded special privileges by virtue of their eminent literary rank. To my knowledge there is only one other writer in this select circle—the distinguished author of "Gone With the Wind", Miss Margaret Mitchell. While "G. With the W." was being filmed, its producer, David O. Selznick, dropped all his activities to come to New York to plead personally with Will Hays to be permitted to use the sentence: "I don't give a damn" at the very end of the picture. By film tradition this line should have been changed to "I don't give a darn" or "I don't give a hoot."

Mr. Selznick's argument was that bowdlerization would throw the end of the film out of key. The arguments he marshalled in support of this theory, in logic, in comprehensiveness and in the sheer sweep of eloquence, surpassed many of those handed down in the United States Supreme Court. In the end he won out and Mr. Clark Gable was permitted to express himself fully and profanely.

Well, it took Shakespeare ten years to attain the sacrosanct status of Miss Mitchell and I feel that this small footnote in our literary history shouldn't pass unnoticed.

As another footnote to our cultural history, the Theater Guild on the Air reports in some bewilderment that its most popular offerings, according to the Hooper ratings, are its heaviest plays. The most popular play the Guild ever broadcast was "The Straw," an exceedingly somber work by Eugene O'Neill which might ordinarily be expected to drive listeners away in droves. The second most popular was Lillian Hellman's "The Little Foxes" which is no light comedy either.

The Theater Guild doesn't quite know what to make of this but rather wistfully takes it as an indication of an unslaked thirst for culture in this country. This view, I believe, requires some modification. Mr. O'Neill, one of those rare persons who owns a Nobel prize as well as a whole shelf of Pulitzer prizes, possesses not only snob appeal but great curiosity value. His prestige is of the sort usually accorded only the dead and consequently the listener might be prompted to listen just to find out what the fuss is all about.

O'Neill has always been a rather upsetting experience to the old line showmen. He is not only the best of American playwrights but also, contrary to all traditions, one of the richest. Back in the late '20's, many a producer put together a show which contained all the ingredients of popular success—lots of pretty girls in virtually no clothes, lots of gamey jokes, a comedian who fell down—and then lost his shirt on it. Meanwhile, in the next block, an O'Neill play of unrelieved tragedy was turning customers away in violation of all the rules of entertainment. It was enough to drive a man right back into the buttonhole business.

One last note and we'll leave culture alone for a week or so. The British Broadcasting Corporation, which in the last year has run amok in the field of culture, recently broadcast Chaucer's "Troilus and Criseyde" which is comparable to broadcasting "The Frogs" in the original Greek. In print "Troilus and Criseyde" is almost undecipherable but in understanding hands it develops that Chaucer did after all write English and that he wrote it with immense vigor and color. Chaucer, I should say, would be an interesting test for American audiences. If, as the Theater Guild's experience suggests, the Hooper rating is determined by literary reputation, Chaucer's Hooper should be up around Bob Hope's.

Fire Fighting Round And Round

CAMPTONVILLE, Calif. (AP)—A fire alarm here turned out to be one of the most roundabout in history.

Radio fan Elkanah Stoddard, up early to work his ham station, saw a grass fire on a nearby ridge. It was too early to raise anyone at the Forest Service by phone, so he got on the air with an SOS.

This was heard by the monitoring station of the Federal Communications Commission at Grand Island, Neb., which relayed the call to their station on San Francisco Bay at San Leandro, 150 miles from this small Sierra foothill town.

The San Leandro FCC station notified the local highway patrol, which called headquarters at Sacramento, which told the highway patrol at Downieville only 15 miles from here.

Fire fighters were sent. By that time the fire was out.

Lettuce Beats Love In Berlin Parks Again

BERLIN (AP)—By order of the American military government, the parks of Berlin again will be devoted this spring to potato and cabbage patches rather than lovers' lanes.

Slapping down a spreading rumor that parks and public squares would again revert to grass and trees and statuary, the A.M.G. ordered no letup in the vegetable garden program in the U. S. sector of the city in view of the continuing world food shortage.

U. S. food officials said only in a few places in the center of the city, such as Leipziger platz, would vegetable planting be discontinued and that because of poor soil and other conditions not conducive to good yields.

Hair On Your Chest Means Less On Head

NEW YORK, (AP)—The man with hair on his chest may be more likely to grow bald.

H. Harris, of Cambridge, Eng., finds that baldness is more frequent in men with abundant hair on chest, arms, legs, and abdomen than in men with little body hair growth. He surveyed the hairiness of 600 men, including a group who were slightly bald and a group who were really bald, the journal of Modern Medicine reports.

There's still nothing you can do about it. Inheritance determines how much hair you'll have on your chest, and how long you'll keep the hair on your head, Harris said.

Staying After School Is Outside The Law

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP)—Keeping a child after school in Wyoming may not be legal, but neither is it illegal.

A parent telephoned Miss Edna B. Stolt, state superintendent of schools, and demanded to know if it were "legal" for a teacher to keep a child after classes.

Miss Stolt said so far as she knew, there was no law against it.

"That's all I wanted to know," the parent declared.

U. S. Sheep Decline

CEDAR RAPIDS, Ia.—(AP)—The number of sheep in the United States now is at the lowest point since 1867, A. J. Dexter, of the Northern Pacific Railway, told sheep feeders and producers here. Dexter blamed the decline of sheep in part to a drop in the fertility of American ewes.

KEEPING UP WITH HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 25—(INS)—Hollywood did not start beating the tom-toms about the plight of the American Indians without intending to do something about it.

Louella Parsons

Several of our producers are planning movies on this subject — but the first to get going is Harry Sherman, better known as "Pop."

Sherman now is in Winslow, Ariz., with writers getting material for an original story about an Indian hero of World War II, who returns to his tribe and tries to better their deplorable living conditions.

Joel McCrea will be the tall, dark and handsome hero.

Richard Hart, who came straight to Hollywood from the stage after a Broadway hit, "Dark Of the Moon," has asked M-G-M for his release. He feels there are too many other male stars on the lot. Hart received rather a bad break with his first picture, "Desire Me," with Greer Garson. That's because the picture was remade with two directors. But that was no one's fault. That happens in the best of regulated studios.

Then Richard was put in "B.F.'s Daughter," with Barbara Stanwyck, and that is a good part. Now he wants to free lance, and pick out his own stories.

Mike Curtiz was heartbroken when it was decided not to make "The 49ers." He has spent so much time studying the history of California. But there didn't seem any way to make it without a cost of $5,000,000 which is, at this time, prohibitive.

But Jack Warner, who is as eager as Mike to bring "The 49ers" to the screen, has had his offices working with the Curtiz office until now $2,000,000 has been whittled off the original sum. If the budget can be brought down to a reasonable amount it will be made.

Chatter in Hollywood: Can it be that Diana Lynn and Bob Neal are planning to be married in Mexico City? They flew there earlier in the week. They will be chaperoned by Diana's secretary, Eileen Horn who went by train because she doesn't like to fly.

I am told that Diana's mother is very much against her daughter making the trip at this time. I believe when the Lynn girl does get married, she'll marry all of a sudden, but her friends hope it won't be out of her own country.

A new book, "The Tender men," by Willa Gibbs, exposes the inside workings of the Communist Party.

If it is made into a picture 25 per cent of the receipts will be turned back to be used in fighting communism in this country.

S. Sylvan Simon, who made the last two Red Skelton pictures at Columbia and Metro, is negotiating for the book and if he gets it he will, of course, carry out the request of the author.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Mrs. Danny Kaye likes comedians. She was with Keenan Wynn at Le Paliion, and they were having a million laughs. It was nice to see Sylcia happy again.

Mrs. Phyllis Vanderbilt, the ex-Mrs. Neely, is laid up with a broken foot.

Carlos Ramirez, well known singer, became the father of a seven pound daughter in New York last week.

Myrna Loy has cancelled her reservation to Europe. Gene Markey has been down with virus X, and she wouldn't leave him, like the good wife she is, so they are coming back to Hollywood.

Niven Busch, who authorized the controversial "Duel In the Sun," has written another novel with a New Mexico background. No, I don't believe David Selznick will buy it.

Nigel Bruce plans to be in London when his daughter, Jennifer, has her baby in May. He is leaving as soon as he finishes his current movie, "Julia Misbehaves."

Fibber McGee and Molly (Jim and Marion Jordan) are being urged to make another picture. They haven't been on the screen for four years.

The Walter Wangers have been entertaining Lord and Lady Linlithgow and their daughter, Joan. Lord Linlithgow was former governor-general of India. He, his wife and daughter are all over six feet tall.

Franchot Tone has promised his nine-year-old sister-in-law, who lives with him and his wife, that she can be in his next picture. The youngster is just crazy about the movies.

That's all today.

IN MEMORIAM

JAMES—Emma. In loving memory of a dear Mother and Wife, who passed on to her Eternal Home, February 26, 1945.
February brings sad memories
Of a loved one gone to rest,
But she'll always be remembered
By the ones who loved her best.
Sadly missed by HUSBAND, CHILDREN and GRANDCHILDREN.

In loving memory of my mother, Annie O'Donnell, who passed away 4 years ago, February 26th 1944.
Could I but have one gift from God,
Mother, I would ask for you
To live again those happy hours
I used to spend with you.
'Tis lonesome here without you,
And sad the weary way,
For life is not the same to me
Since the day you went away.
Sadly missed by her daughter, RUTH DURKIN.

In loving memory of Mrs. Marjorie Newhouse Byrne, who passed away February 26, 1944.
Four sad years have passed,
Many a sun has set,
But still we love and long for you
And never will forget.
In our hearts your memory lingers,
Always tender, fond and true.
There's not a day, dear Marjorie,
We do not think of you.
Sadly missed by her MOTHER, SISTERS, HUSBAND and SON.

CARD OF THANKS

We take this means of expressing our sincere appreciation to our relatives and friends, who were so kind to us in our recent bereavement, the death of my beloved wife and our mother, Mrs. Evelyn Weir Wilhelm. We also wish to thank the Rev. John F. Stacks, the choir, those who sent floral tributes and those who loaned cars for the funeral.
Her husband, MR. HARRY WILHELM;
Daughter, MRS. CECIL LLEWELLYN,
And Son, MR. WILLIAM SMITH.

IN MEMORIAM

JAMES—Emma. In loving memory of a dear Mother and Wife, who passed on to her Eternal Home, February 26, 1945.
February brings sad memories
Of a loved one gone to rest,
But she'll always be remembered
By the ones who loved her best.
Sadly missed by HUSBAND, CHILDREN and GRANDCHILDREN.

In loving memory of my mother, Annie O'Donnell, who passed away 4 years ago, February 26th, 1944.
Could I but have one gift from God,
Mother, I would ask for you
To live again those happy hours
I used to spend with you.
'Tis lonesome here without you,
And sad the weary way,
For life is not the same to me
Since the day you went away.
Sadly missed by her daughter, RUTH DURKIN.

In loving memory of Mrs. Marjorie Newhouse Byrne, who passed away February 26, 1944.
Four sad years have passed,
Many a sun has set,
But still we love and long for you
And never will forget.
In our hearts your memory lingers,
Always tender, fond and true.
There's not a day, dear Marjorie,
We do not think of you.
Sadly missed by her MOTHER, SISTERS, HUSBAND and SON.

CARD OF THANKS

We take this means of expressing our sincere appreciation to our relatives and friends, who were so kind to us in our recent bereavement, the death of my beloved wife and our mother, Mrs. Evelyn Weir Wilhelm. We also wish to thank the Rev. John F. Stacks, the choir, those who sent floral tributes and those who loaned cars for the funeral.
Her husband, MR. HARRY WILHELM;
Daughter, MRS. CECIL LLEWELLYN,
And Son, MR. WILLIAM SMITH.

Bus Union Terms Strike Unavoidable After Deadlock In Contract Talks

Union Official Positive Men Will Reject PE Company Proposal; No Meetings Planned

Negotiations by the AFL bus drivers union with the Potomac Edison Company for a new contract to replace one expiring at midnight Sunday "broke completely" last night, union representatives said, adding that a strike "appears unavoidable."

The company, according to John M. Elliott, international representative called here to assist Local 1110, Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes of America, AFL, failed to make an offer during a seven-hour meeting yesterday and indicated that no further meetings will be called.

Elliott said the company made one offer during the first meeting last month which is equivalent to a six and three-quarter cents an hour increase, but the membership refused it.

Henry W. Price, PE's Cumberland district manager, said later the company submitted the union "an offer of 12 cents with some changes in the allowed time."

He declined to elaborate on his statement, but confirmed the union statement that no further meetings are scheduled.

Elliott, contacted to clarify the difference in figures, said the company proposed to take two cents off the report time and turn-in time and add that amount to the 10-cent hourly rate, thus raising that figure to 12 cents but actually providing an increase of only six and three-quarter cents an hour.

"It's a plain case," Elliott said, "of robbing Peter to pay Paul."

Four Issues

The company, according to Elliott, offered a 10-cent hourly pay hike, but indicated that it would discontinue an $85 clothing allowance in effect under the present contract. The $85 allowance, according to Elliott, would amount to reducing the 10 cent offer by three and a quarter cents.

At the end of yesterday's meeting, the fourth in the present negotiating series, Elliott said the disputed points were a demand by the union for a flat 18-cent hourly pay hike for drivers and maintenance men alike, demands for a hike in the differential pay for shop workers on the night and cateye shifts, increased vacation time after one year, and a union shop. The company has rejected each demand, Elliott declared.

The original offer of the company will be submitted to the membership at a meeting scheduled for 2 a. m., Sunday, Elliott said, adding that he is positive the proposal will be refused.

"As I see the picture now," Elliott stated, "I see no hope of avoiding a strike at this time. I have repeatedly tried to prevail on the company to submit the disputed questions to arbitration where both parties' views could be presented and a decision of the board of arbitration given."

In elaborating on the disputed questions, Elliott said the drivers are at present receiving $1.07 and the

C. And P. To Begin Installation Of Telephones On Route 40 In Garrett

$68,000 Project Starts Tomorrow

At the request of residents in the Avilton area of Garrett County, the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company will begin installation of telephones along Route 40 tomorrow, Howard M. Smith, manager of the local C. and P. office, announced last night.

That area has been without telephone service since last September, when the rural system of the Avilton Mutual Telephone Company, organized in 1914, was discontinued because of high costs and scarcity of labor and materials.

Early in 1946, Smith said, his company was advised by H. H. Robeson, president of the Avilton concern, that the latter firm would be unable to continue its telephone service.

At Robeson's request and that of his subscribers, the C. and P. began making plans to serve the area. Work of stringing lines was started last December, Smith said.

Cost Estimated At $68,000

He stated that the project is estimated to cost $68,000. Among other items, it requires erecting a total of over 900 telephone poles.

At present, the C. and P. will serve Route 40 to Meadow Mountain only, but this summer the company plans to build lines south of Route 40 and north to the community of Finzel.

The Avilton area will be served from the Frostburg exchange, Smith said.

He emphasized that all requests for service cannot be filled immediately because the Frostburg cable out of which the lines would go to serve the area is operating at full capacity. A larger cable will be installed in the spring.

Until that time, Smith said, telephone facilities along Route 40 will not be adequate to provide service for all who want it. He added that about 50 requests for service in the entire area have been received by the company.

The Avilton Mutual Telephone Company was chartered in 1915, with the late Daniel B. Warn as president. Former State Senator William A. Gunter, then fresh from law school, was the first attorney.

Gunter recalled yesterday that the Avilton company was his first corporate client, and that his retainer was $25 a year.

He said the company officials held 12 meetings the first year at the Pope School and he had to pay $4 for transportation from Frostburg to each meeting, a total of $48.

Although he was left $23 "in the red," Gunter said, the experience was valuable and personal relations with the officials were pleasant.

The charge for telephone service on the rural line was $1.50 per month for each subscriber. Dave Gunter, manager of the inn at Guntertown and one of the subscribers, said the rate was one of the cheapest in the United States.

Had 39 Telephones

At one time the company had 39 telephones on its system, but severe winters, accompanied by deep snows and high winds in Garrett County, made it increasingly difficult to restore broken poles and damaged lines. One by one the subscribers dropped off until only six remained last September.

The area served by the old company included the section along Route 40 from the Allegany County line to the stone house about four miles east of Grantsville, and the territory south of Route 40, including the New Germany and Avilton sections.

At Grantsville the Avilton Company made and received their calls

PAIN KILLER — Dr. Robert A. Hingson, Memphis, Tenn., who is noted for his work in developing caudal analgesia and is the discoverer of the Hypo-Spray, a painless method of administering hypodermics without a needle, will speak to the Allegany Garrett County Medical Society tomorrow night on "Recent Developments in Control of Pain."

Noted Physician Will Speak Here

Dr. Robert A. Hingson, head of the department of anesthesia of the University of Tennessee, Memphis, will discuss "Recent Developments in the Control of Pain" at a dinner meeting of the Allegany-Garrett Medical Society tomorrow at 6 p. m. at the Cumberland Country Club.

Dr. Hingson, who will become associate professor of obstetrics at Johns-Hopkins University on July 1, is also director of graduate courses at the Memphis institution which offers post-graduate instruction in anesthesiology pertaining to obstetrics.

He is particularly noted for his work in developing continuous caudal analgesia as a method for the relief of pain and the management of child birth.

This work has received wide recognition and discussion and has done much to center the attention of both the public and the medical profession on the desirability of safe and efficient pain relief in obstetrics.

Dr. Hingson is also the discoverer of the Hypo-Spray, which administers hypodermics without the use of a needle.

Keyser Woman Married 3 Times, Virginian Says

A former Keyser woman last night was accused of being married to at least two other men by her Roanoke, Va., husband who appeared at Keyser Police Station with a "flower-trimmed" marriage license and requested police action, West Virginia authorities reported.

Identified as Franklin Oscar Grimes, Mayor John F. Freeland, Keyser, said the man told police he began checking the records of his wife of two months when she failed to return to Roanoke from a funeral she attended in Keyser.

Grimes produced a marriage license and an insurance policy to show that his wife is involved with two other men, Mayor Freeland said, adding that the woman was known in Keyser as Edith Juanita Croyle, about 30.

The husband told police he went to the home of the girl's mother, Mrs. Emma Croyle, Tuesday to inquire about his wife, but was informed that "she is over in Rawlings, Md. with her husband, Henry Flanigan."

Mayor Freeland said Grimes produced a marriage license issued in Maryland that showed Juanita Edith Croyle became the wife of Henry Clay Flanigan at Rawlings, Md., in 1937.

On the marriage license obtained in Virginia to marry Grimes, police said the woman identified herself as Miss Juanita Edith McDonald, 29. The license was signed by a minister on January 19, this year, Mayor Freeland said.

Grimes also produced an insurance policy, according to Mayor Freeland, that identified the woman as the wife of Howard I. Gamble. The Mayor said the policy was drawn on the woman and named the husband as the beneficiary. Payments were made on the policy in Wilmington, Del., during 1946, authorities stated.

The Roanoke man told police he met his wife while she was rooming with his sister in Virginia. Shortly after they were married, police quoted him as saying, his wife received word that her step-father died. She left immediately for Keyser, Grimes declared.

When she failed to return in a reasonable time, police quoted Grimes as saying, he opened a suitcase belonging to his wife and discovered the insurance policy and additional marriage license.

Mayor Freeland said Grimes was sent to Maryland yesterday to investigate reports that his wife was living in Rawlings, but Trooper First Class A. M. Spioch, Maryland State Police, declared he advised the man to return to Virginia and initiate the investigation since any charge would have to be made by Virginia authorities.

Highway Loading Restrictions Are Eased On 10 More State Roads

Emergency loading restrictions for trucks traveling on Maryland highways were lifted yesterday on 10 more state highways, G. Bates Chaires, district engineer of the State Roads Commission, said last night.

Meanwhile, Chaires reported there have been 125 violations of restrictions in this district, which includes Allegany, Garrett, Frederick and Washington Counties.

Limits were withdrawn from trucks traveling the following roads:

U. S. Route 11 from Hagerstown north of the Pennsylvania state line.

State Route 150 from Baltimore to Martin's Boulevard.

State Route 151 from Baltimore to Sparrows Point.

State Route 700 from U. S. Route 40 to State Route 150.

State Route 147 from Baltimore to U. S. Route 1.

State Route 216 from Highland to Laurel. On this highway, bridge over the Patapsco River is posted for 20,000 pounds.

State Route 175 from U. S. Route 1 to State Route 103.

State Route 542 from Baltimore to Joppa Road.

State Route 148 from State Route 147 to U. S. Route 1.

Chaires said highways in the northern part of the Eastern Shore and in Southern Maryland suffered the most damage.

Telephone Union Conference To Be Held In Baltimore

Md. Group Likely To Set Pattern In East

Policies that likely will set the pattern for negotiation of contracts for telephone plant workers' unions in 10 eastern states will be discussed at a three-day conference, March 3 to 5, in Baltimore, according to Robert O. Slemmer, vice president of the Maryland Federation of Telephone Workers (Independent).

The Maryland union, according to Slemmer, will discuss bargaining policies with representatives from nine other eastern states before opening negotiations to replace its own present agreement with the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company of Baltimore City, which expires April 30.

Since the Maryland contract, which covers 2,000 telephone workers, is the first to expire in the East, and among the first in the nation, Slemmer said its policies probably will be copied by the other unions when they open negotiations in the near future.

Expected to attend the meeting besides the Maryland delegation are representatives from New Jersey, Pennsylvania, New York and the six New England states, according to Slemmer, who said approximately 65,000 plant workers of telephone companies throughout the East will be represented.

Negotiations to replace the Maryland contract are expected to start shortly after the Baltimore conference, Slemmer declared, adding "we are hopeful that the contract will be settled this year without a recurrence of the work stoppage that idled workers for three weeks last year."

The MFTW members were finally awarded a $3 across-the-board increase for Baltimore City workers and a $2 across-the-board increase for state workers by an impartial board of arbitration to which the union demands were submitted.

Slemmer, a Cumberland resident who is the MFTW Western Council representative, was re-elected vice president of the Maryland Federation at a board of governors meeting held in Baltimore February 13. H. D. Jones was elected president, W. E. Fisher was re-elected secretary, and D. F. Edwards, Sr., treasurer. All are Baltimore City residents.

Judy Brought Here On Larceny Charge

Local authorities said last night the third member of a trio charged with larceny in the theft of about $200 worth of brass bearings from railroad cars in the Baltimore and Ohio yards last October was returned here Tuesday night from Baltimore, where he was arrested by Baltimore City Police.

The man, identified by police as Jesse Judy, 32, Baltimore, formerly of the Oldtown Road section, was brought back to Cumberland by Deputy Sheriffs William Orr and William Chappell.

Judy was held overnight in the county jail for questioning yesterday morning in the State's Attorney's office, after which he was released on $500 bond for a trial in Circuit Court. Date of the trial has not been set.

Judy and two local men, identified as Albert E. Barnes, 22, and Paul Gray, 25, were indicted by the January grand jury on the larceny charge.

Barnes, whose case was disposed of during the January term, received a suspended sentence. The other two men were indicted in absentia.

Gray, who was arrested by Baltimore authorities about a week ago, has also been released on $500 bond pending a trial in Circuit Court.

Arbitration Cases Are Completed Here

Hearings before Sidney A. Wolff, New York, on two arbitration cases between Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, CIO, and the Celanese Corporation of America ended Tuesday at noon when the company withdrew one case and the union asked for a continuance of the second, it was reported last night.

The first case, involving separation pay for Francis S. Newman and Loren W. Breedlove, was withdrawn by the Celanese Corporation on the grounds that subsequent to their furloughs last year, technological changes have been made at the Amcelle plant which would preclude their chances for jobs, thus making them eligible for separation pay.

In the second case, a union request for interpretation of clause S-13 in the contract governing recalls after emergency shutdowns, the union asked that the case be continued. It was understood that the case might come up at a later date.

Relocating Armory Road Discussed

Possible relocation and grading of the road leading to the Naval Armory on McKaig's Hill were discussed yesterday by Naval Reserve officials and City Engineer Ralph L. Rizer.

Comdr. W. D. Horton, civil engineer for Naval Reserve in the Fifth Naval District, from Norfolk, Va.; Lt. Comdr. Walter N. Hedrick, organizing officer of the Cumberland Organized Naval Reserve Division, and Charles Nuzum, local consulting engineer, attended the conference.

Plant To Make Water Line Pipe Being Set Up

Operations To Start Early In April

Work has begun on construction of a plant near the Western Maryland Railway yards in Ridgeley, W. Va., where the concrete pipe to be used in the second water line from Lake Gordon to the city will be made, according to Edwin E. Phoenix.

Phoenix is a superintendent for the Lock Joint Pipe Company, East Orange, N. J., which has an arrangement with the Cumberland Contracting Company to provide the necessary concrete pipe.

The Cumberland Contracting Company, with a low bid of $744,838, was awarded the contract for construction of the water line by the Mayor and Council last November.

Phoenix said he has arranged to lease five and three-quarters acres of land from the Western Maryland Railway to provide a site for the plant.

Erection of three frame shelters for steel fabrication work has already started, as well as construction of a "steam box" structure of weatherboard siding, 150 by 20 feet, for concrete pouring and steam curing, Phoenix said.

He explained the latter structure will contain three 50-foot compartments, since that part of the operation will be carried on in a three-day cycle. The "steam box" structure will be 16 feet high to allow for casting pipe in 16-foot lengths.

The superintendent, who will remain here to conduct the pipe-making operation, said the plant will probably employ about 50 men, the majority of them from local unions. Only a few key men from New Jersey will be needed, he explained.

Phoenix said it is hoped to begin operations by the first of April. The plant will be designed to produce 40 pipe lengths per day, or 640 feet.

About 42,000 feet of pipe will be required for the entire water line, and Phoenix said manufacture is expected to be completed in the early fall.

The reinforced steel cylinder concrete pipe will be 36 inches in diameter.

Keyser Mill Plans Union Shop Vote

The first union shop election to be scheduled in this area since the passage of the Taft-Hartley Labor law will be held soon for members of a sub-local of Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, CIO.

John G. Thomas, business manager, said the vote will be conducted in the Potomac Worsted Spinning Mill, Keyser, W. Va., on Friday, March 5.

The election, to be conducted under the auspices of the National Labor Relations Board, will be held in the plant from noon until 12:45 p. m. for the 54 employes eligible to vote.

The new labor law requires a vote of 51 per cent of hourly rated employes and not a mere majority of votes cast.

Similar balloting is required by the law prior to the termination of each year's contract, the union said.

C. AND P. REPORTS RECORD REVENUE

BALTIMORE, Feb. 25 (AP) — President Randolph Maddox of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co., of Baltimore said in his annual report today the ratio of income to invested capital declined to its lowest point in history in 1947.

The revenue, $37,023,377, is the largest the company has ever had, he said.

Total operating expenses and taxes amounted to $34,731,156, leaving a net operating income of $2,292,221. After other expenses, the company had a net income of $2,110,800, at the rate of $3.52 per common share, compared with $4.88 in 1946.

Service in 1947 was partially restored to prewar standards, Maddox said.

The public Service Commission approved rate increases last year amounting to $5,289,695 annually.

Maddox said total construction in progress in 1948 amounts to $10,800,000, and includes an 8-story addition to the Baltimore headquarters building, new buildings for Cumberland, Towson, Catonsville; an addition at Annapolis; and toll cable installations for Rockville, Frederick, Pikesville, Westminster and Salisbury.

Affiliated companies serve Virginia, West Virginia and the District of Columbia.

26 TWUA Delegates To Attend Meeting

The nomination and election of 26 delegates to the biennial convention of Textile Workers Union of America, CIO, will be held at a special membership meeting of the union Wednesday, March 3, at 7:30 p. m.

The convention will be held in Atlantic City April 27 to May 1 and Playford Aldridge, union president, said Local 1874 delegates will charter a special bus for the trip.

Members who are unable to cast ballots for the delegates Wednesday night because of night shift work may vote at the union hall Thursday from 10 a. m. to noon.

Local 1874, the largest single unit in the TWUA, will send a full delegation to the convention.

School Board Considering Five-Year County-Wide Improvement Program

Cost Of Project Is Estimated At About $485,000, Wilkinson Says; Plans Outlined

The Board of Education has under advisement a county-wide five-year school improvement program that will cost approximately $485,000, which would be paid for out of an annual $100,000 incentive fund, Charles N. Wilkinson, president of the Allegany County Board of Commissioners, said last night.

Wilkinson said he was informed of the program when the commissioners met with the Board of Education Tuesday to request that the incentive fund be turned over to the county to finance a $2,000,000 bond issue to erect three new schools.

The biggest improvement on the program, according to Wilkinson, is scheduled for Bruce High School, Westernport, where the Board of Education plans to spend $175,000. Requirements there are listed as an auditorium and a cafeteria.

A four-room addition plus a farm shop were listed as needed at Oldtown High School, which the Board explained could be provided for approximately $85,000.

Other Needs Cited

Need for a new playground at Humbird Street School was included in the project with cost of purchasing the required ground estimated at $10,000. Cost of repairs at Virginia Avenue School where flooring is reportedly bad were listed at $6,000.

A $25,000 improvement was listed for Columbia Street School where the board indicated a cafeteria and music room are needed. Partitioning a basement at West Side School was listed at $6,000.

A $12,000 project is contemplated for Mt. Royal School, which would permit moving the auditorium to the basement floor and partitioning the present auditorium so that two additional rooms would be acquired.

Needs at Cresaptown were listed as a cafeteria, which the board estimated could be erected at a cost of $8,000. According to Wilkinson the board listed need for two rooms at McCoole to take care of the increasing enrollment and estimated the work could be completed at a cost of $30,000.

An additional $15,000 was listed as needed for improvements at Midland School, where the Board indicated a cafeteria and two class rooms are needed. At present there is on deposit $20,000 for the project, Wilkinson said the commissioners were informed, but the project is expected to cost $35,000.

Need for a general purpose room at Corriganville that could be used as a cafeteria-auditorium was listed, as well as additions for a health room and inside toilets. The estimated cost was $35,000.

An addition of four class rooms and a cafeteria is needed at East Side School, according to the board, which estimated cost at $75,000. Gephart School is also listed as needing two additional class rooms at an estimated cost of $30,000.

Beall Repairs Noted

Extensive repairs at Beall Elementary School are estimated to cost $15,000. Two additional class rooms are needed at LaVale, according to the Board, despite the fact that two are now being erected. Cost is estimated at $35,000.

Father Reinhart Is Injured When Car Strikes Tree

Native of Cumberland Is In Fair Condition

HAGERSTOWN, Feb. 25 (AP) — Rev. Thomas D. Reinhart, 68, pastor of St. Anthony's Shrine, Emmitsburg, was injured seriously today when his automobile hit a tree near here, officials at Washington County Hospital reported.

Father Reinhart was born in Cumberland in 1879.

He had served as pastor at St. Peter's Church, Hancock; St. Mary's, Hagerstown, and St. Peter's, Baltimore, before going to St. Anthony's Shrine about 10 years ago.

Hospital authorities said at 10:30 p. m. that Father Reinhart's condition was "almost fair." Shortly after he was admitted to the hospital last night, Maryland State Police here were advised that he was in a serious condition.

State Police said they were advised that Father Reinhart had been visiting in Cumberland and was returning to Emmitsburg when he was injured at Leitersburg, near Hagerstown.

He is a brother of Harry F. Reinhart, 825 Mt. Royal Avenue, and a cousin of Michael D. Reinhart, well known local realtor. He was ordained in 1909.

Winona Kesner, 16, Ridgeley, was treated in Allegany Hospital here last night for a fractured right ankle. She said she was hurt when she fell in the yard at her home Tuesday night.

Mrs. Clara McCoy, 28, Route 4, was treated in the same hospital yesterday after she fell down a flight of steps and fractured her right wrist.

Also treated in Allegany yesterday were Nona Crabtree, 20, 346 Central Avenue, after she fell and struck her elbow and Mrs. Violet Barron, 37, 411 North Centre Street, after she fell and cut her face.

Mrs. Minnie Digman, 59, 125 Pennsylvania Avenue, was treated in Memorial yesterday afternoon after the second finger of her right hand was caught in the wringer of a washing machine.

Cars Crash As Driver Tries To Avoid Deer

Occupants of two cars escaped injury when a car driven by a Pittsburgh, Pa., man crashed against the rear of another car driven by a Green Spring, W. Va., man who slowed down on Route 28 near Blue Beach Tuesday night in a vain attempt to avoid striking a 200 pound doe.

Trooper E. D. Harbert, Romney, said the cars were proceeding toward Romney when the first vehicle, operated by Reuben N. Corbin, Green Spring, who tried to come to a stop as the deer dashed across the road, was struck by the car of Jerry R. Herbst, Pittsburgh.

Damage to the vehicle was estimated at $200. The body of the doe was too badly crushed to be fit for human consumption, the trooper said. No charges were preferred.

Garment Factory Fire May Cause 14-Day Stoppage

Heavy Loss Expected From Water Damage

Although clean-up details were placed at work immediately to repair damage resulting from the three-alarm fire which broke out in the Cumberland Undergarment Company plant on Gay Street yesterday morning, a plant official reported it will probably be at least two weeks before the plant can be placed into full operation again.

No estimate was given of the damage caused by the blaze but officials of the plant employing 375 workers said the loss from materials will be heavy since much of the cloth was irreparably damaged by water.

Efforts will be made at once to get new materials, a plant spokesman said, adding that it might be difficult to procure the necessary fabric on short notice.

A crew of 16 men was placed at work cleaning and oiling the water-damaged machinery as soon as firemen brought the flames under control.

Building Loss Slight

Firemen said the damage to the building itself was comparatively slight and chiefly consisted of a hole cut in the roof for ventilation.

Firemen said flames were fanned from the basement to the roof of the three-story building when a spark entered the air ducts as workers employed by Abe Feldstein were using acetylene torches on a ventilating system in the cellar.

Employes were ordered from the building by Maurice Milberg, plant manager, after smoke reached the main part of the building. Firemen said there was no confusion as the workers left the premises.

Firemen said South End Fire Company was summoned at 9:15 a. m. after flames spread through the ducts and after workers had used fire extinguishers in a vain effort to control the flames. Central and East Side fire fighters aided in the work of controlling the blaze.

The intense heat set off the plant's automatic sprinkling system and that water, added to water which poured from the ventilating ducts, caused the major damage at the plant.

Will Inspect Cloth

Fire Chief Reid C. Hoenicka criticized the delay in calling firemen to the three-alarm blaze. Plant officials said the alarm was turned in as soon as possible.

Milberg said last night the worst of the mopping up had been completed and that it may be possible today to estimate the amount of material which may be used in the factory.

He added the plant was contacting all sources in an attempt to get early deliveries of materials.

The company said attempts will be made to get one section at a time into operation and that workers will be contacted immediately when work is available.

Ordered To Leave City

City police said yesterday that Nathan Joseph White, New Jersey, was ordered to leave the city after he admitted breaking and entering the Law Building, South Liberty Street, early Tuesday morning.

Edward R. Burkey Council Candidate Lists Five-Point Public Platform

Edward R. Burkey, 601 Patterson Avenue, candidate for city council, said last night he has been giving some thought to the suggestion of Isaac Hirsch that candidates for city council express their views on city management and other questions pertaining to civic affairs.

In his public statement, Burkey, a veteran of World War II, said, "I am in favor of city management and charter revision, but believe that questions of this nature should be placed before the citizens of Cumberland by referendum so the majority can decide.

"As a candidate for council, there are several points which I believe are of immediate importance, and I wish to emphasize these as a part of my campaign. These are my objectives:

"First, our city should use every means at its command, including the active influence of the mayor and council, to encourage new industries to locate here.

"Second, a general and widespread clean-up program of streets, alleys and unsightly and unsanitary places should be inaugurated. Street lighting should be improved and a number of streets, particularly in South Cumberland, should be resurfaced.

"Third, an adequate recreation program, aggressively pursued is needed for our children and adults.

"Fourth, a thorough study should be made to eliminate traffic con-

Jaycee Office Has City Data On Rat Campaign

Residents of Cumberland who desire information on the campaign to kill rats are requested to telephone the office of the Junior Association of Commerce, telephone 29, or the office of the county farm agent, telephone 1440, sponsors of the campaign said yesterday.

Plans for the campaign in this county are progressing rapidly and 500 county farmers are pledged to co-operate. Rural sections generally are lining up rapidly behind the effort.

Scores of people, the Jaycee committee said, are planning to participate in the drive in the city proper, and merchants in Cumberland are well-stocked with various kinds of acceptable and efficient rat killers. Practically all hardware stores, feed dealers, some department stores, grocery stores and others have stocks on hand and there should be no difficulty in obtaining the type "rat killer" desired.

Campaign officials are urging that materials be purchased as soon as possible and that the buyer follow the manufacturer's directions on application.

A recent check of stores by the Junior Association of Commerce revealed that an ample supply is available including Red Squill, Anti-Rat, Lampu, Hygienic Sanitation, Rat Kisses, Rat Brew, Barker's Rat Poison, Rat Nip, Red Death, Rat Bisq and others. The active ingredient in most of these is either Red Squill, Antu or both.

The Junior Association of Commerce and McHenry's office have circulars that explain "pre-baiting" and the use of both Red Squill and Antu. Circulars will be mailed to any one who requests them by telephoning the name and address to the Junior Association of Commerce.

County Agent McHenry said yesterday the campaign in Allegany county is ready to be activated. Since the statement by Governor Lane in which he proclaimed March 1-6 as "Rat Death Week," there has been activity in all counties and a state-wide program set in motion, McHenry said.

Temperature Reading

Continued mild weather is in store for today although light rain and considerable cloudiness are expected. Yesterday's maximum was 53 degrees and the mercury had dropped only to 49 by 10:30 p. m. At 8 a. m. yesterday the mercury stood at 31 and the overnight low was 28.

Bus Union Terms Strike Unavoidable After Deadlock In Contract Talks

Union Official Positive Men Will Reject PE Company Proposal; No Meetings Planned

Negotiations by the AFL bus drivers union with the Potomac Edison Company for a new contract to replace one expiring at midnight Sunday "broke completely" last night, union representatives said, adding that a strike "appears unavoidable."

The company, according to John M. Elliott, international representative called here to assist Local 1110, Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes of America, AFL, failed to make an offer during a seven-hour meeting yesterday and indicated that no further meetings will be called.

Elliott said the company made one offer during the first meeting last month which is equivalent to a six and three-quarter cents an hour increase, but the membership refused it.

Henry W. Price, PE's Cumberland district manager, said later the company submitted the union "an offer of 12 cents with some changes in the allowed time."

He declined to elaborate on his statement, but confirmed the union statement that no further meetings are scheduled.

Elliott, contacted to clarify the difference in figures, said the company proposed to take two cents off the report time and turn-in time and add that amount to the 10-cent hourly rate, thus raising that figure to 12 cents but actually providing an increase of only six and three-quarter cents an hour.

"It's a plain case," Elliott said, "of robbing Peter to pay Paul."

Four Issues

The company, according to Elliott, offered a 10-cent hourly pay hike, but indicated that it would discontinue an $85 clothing allowance in effect under the present contract. The $85 allowance, according to Elliott, would amount to reducing the 10 cent offer by three and a quarter cents.

At the end of yesterday's meeting, the fourth in the present negotiating series, Elliott said the disputed points were a demand by the union for a flat 18-cent hourly pay hike for drivers and maintenance men alike, demands for a hike in the differential pay for shop workers on the night and cateye shifts, increased vacation time after one year, and a union shop. The company has rejected each demand, Elliott declared.

The original offer of the company will be submitted to the membership at a meeting scheduled for 2 a. m., Sunday, Elliott said, adding that he is positive the proposal will be refused.

"As I see the picture now," Elliott stated, "I see no hope of avoiding a strike at this time. I have repeatedly tried to prevail on the company to submit the disputed questions to arbitration where both parties' views could be presented and a decision of the board of arbitration given."

In elaborating on the disputed questions, Elliott said the drivers are at present receiving $1.07 and the

C. And P. To Begin Installation Of Telephones On Route 40 In Garrett

$68,000 Project Starts Tomorrow

At the request of residents in the Avilton area of Garrett County, the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company will begin installation of telephones along Route 40 tomorrow, Howard M. Smith, manager of the local C. and P. office, announced last night.

That area has been without telephone service since last September, when the rural system of the Avilton Mutual Telephone Company, organized in 1914, was discontinued because of high costs and scarcity of labor and materials.

Early in 1946, Smith said, his company was advised by H. H. Robeson, president of the Avilton concern, that the latter firm would be unable to continue its telephone service.

At Robeson's request and that of his subscribers, the C. and P. began making plans to serve the area. Work of stringing lines was started last December, Smith said.

Cost Estimated At $68,000

He stated that the project is estimated to cost $68,000. Among other items, it requires erecting a total of over 900 telephone poles.

At present, the C. and P. will serve Route 40 to Meadow Mountain only, but this summer the company plans to build lines south of Route 40 and north to the community of Finzel.

The Avilton area will be served from the Frostburg exchange, Smith said.

He emphasized that all requests for service cannot be filled immediately because the Frostburg cable out of which the lines would go to serve the area is operating at full capacity. A larger cable will be installed in the spring.

Until that time, Smith said, telephone facilities along Route 40 will not be adequate to provide service for all who want it. He added that about 50 requests for service in the entire area have been received by the company.

The Avilton Mutual Telephone Company was chartered in 1915, with the late Daniel B. Warn as president. Former State Senator William A. Gunter, then fresh from law school, was the first attorney.

Gunter recalled yesterday that the Avilton company was his first corporate client, and that his retainer was $25 a year.

He said the company officials held 12 meetings the first year at the Pope School and he had to pay $4 for transportation from Frostburg to each meeting, a total of $48.

Although he was left $23 "in the red," Gunter said, the experience was valuable and personal relations with the officials were pleasant.

The charge for telephone service on the rural line was $1.50 per month for each subscriber. Dave Gunter, manager of the inn at Guntertown and one of the subscribers, said the rate was one of the cheapest in the United States.

Had 39 Telephones

At one time the company had 39 telephones on its system, but severe winters, accompanied by deep snows and high winds in Garrett County, made it increasingly difficult to restore broken poles and damaged lines. One by one the subscribers dropped off until only six remained last September.

The company included the section along Route 40 from the Allegany County line to the stone house about four miles east of Grantsville, and the territory south of Route 40, including the New Germany and Avilton sections.

At Grantsville the Avilton Company made and received their calls

PAIN KILLER — Dr. Robert A. Hingson, Memphis, Tenn., who is noted for his work in developing caudal analgesia and is the discoverer of the Hypo-Spray, a painless method of administering hypodermics without a needle, will speak to the Allegany Garrett County Medical Society tomorrow night on "Recent Developments in Control of Pain."

Noted Physician Will Speak Here

Dr. Robert A. Hingson, head of the department of anesthesia of the University of Tennessee, Memphis, will discuss "Recent Developments in the Control of Pain" at a dinner meeting of the Allegany-Garrett Medical Society tomorrow at 6 p. m. at the Cumberland Country Club.

Dr. Hingson, who will become associate professor of obstetrics at Johns-Hopkins University on July 1, is also director of graduate courses at the Memphis institution which offers post-graduate instruction in anesthesiology pertaining to obstetrics.

He is particularly noted for his work in developing continuous caudal analgesia as a method for the relief of pain and the management of child birth.

This work has received wide recognition and discussion and has done much to center the attention of both the public and the medical profession on the desirability of safe and efficient pain relief in obstetrics.

Dr. Hingson is also the discoverer of the Hypo-Spray, which administers hypodermics without the use of a needle.

Keyser Woman Married 3 Times, Virginian Says

A former Keyser woman last night was accused of being married to at least two other men by her Roanoke, Va., husband who appeared at Keyser Police Station with a "flower-trimmed" marriage license and requested police action, West Virginia authorities reported.

Identified as Franklin Oscar Grimes, Mayor John F. Freeland, Keyser, said the man told police he began checking the records of his wife of two months when she failed to return to Roanoke from a funeral she attended in Keyser.

Grimes produced a marriage license and an insurance policy to show that his wife is involved with two other men, Mayor Freeland said, adding that the woman was known in Keyser as Edith Juanita Croyle, about 30.

The husband told police he went to the home of the girl's mother, Mrs. Emma Croyle, Tuesday to inquire about his wife, but was informed that "she is over in Rawlings, Md. with her husband, Henry Flanigan."

Mayor Freeland said Grimes produced a marriage license issued in Maryland that showed Juanita Edith Croyle became the wife of Henry Clay Flanigan at Rawlings, Md., in 1937.

On the marriage license obtained in Virginia to marry Grimes, police said the woman identified herself as Miss Juanita Edith McDonald, 29. The license was signed by a minister on January 19, this year, Mayor Freeland said.

Grimes also produced an insurance policy, according to Mayor Freeland, that identified the woman as the wife of Howard I. Gamble. The Mayor said the policy was drawn on the woman and named the husband as the beneficiary. Payments were made on the policy in Wilmington, Del., during 1946, authorities stated.

The Roanoke man told police he met his wife while she was rooming with his sister in Virginia. Shortly after they were married, police quoted him as saying, his wife received word that her step-father died. She left immediately for Keyser, Grimes declared.

When she failed to return in a reasonable time, police quoted Grimes as saying, he opened a suitcase belonging to his wife and discovered the insurance policy and additional marriage license.

Mayor Freeland said Grimes was sent to Maryland yesterday to investigate reports that his wife was living in Rawlings, but Trooper First Class A. M. Spioch, Maryland State Police, declared he advised the man to return to Virginia and initiate the investigation since any charge would have to be made by Virginia authorities.

Judy Brought Here On Larceny Charge

Local authorities said last night the third member of a trio charged with larceny in the theft of about $200 worth of brass bearings from railroad cars in the Baltimore and Ohio yards last October was returned here Tuesday night from Baltimore, where he was arrested by Baltimore City Police.

The man, identified by police as Jesse Judy, 32, Baltimore, formerly of the Oldtown Road section, was brought back to Cumberland by Deputy Sheriffs William Orr and William Chappell.

Judy was held overnight in the county jail for questioning yesterday morning in the State's Attorney's office, after which he was released on $500 bond for a trial in Circuit Court. Date of the trial has not been set.

Judy and two local men, identified as Albert E. Barnes, 22, and Paul Gray, 25, were indicted by the January grand jury on the larceny charge.

Barnes, whose case was disposed of during the January term, received a suspended sentence. The other two men were indicted in absentia.

Gray, who was arrested by Baltimore authorities about a week ago, has also been released on $500 bond pending a trial in Circuit Court.

Arbitration Cases Are Completed Here

Hearings before Sidney A. Wolff, New York, on two arbitration cases between Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, CIO, and the Celanese Corporation of America ended Tuesday at noon when the company withdrew one case and the union asked for a continuance of the second, it was reported last night.

The first case, involving separation pay for Francis S. Newman and Loren W. Breedlove, was withdrawn by the Celanese Corporation on the grounds that subsequent to their furloughs last year, technological changes have been made at the Amcelle plant which would preclude their chances for jobs, thus making them eligible for separation pay.

In the second case, a union request for interpretation of clause S-13 in the contract governing recalls after emergency shutdowns, the union asked that the case be continued. It was understood that the case might come up at a later date.

Candidates State Views Before Union

One candidate for the post of mayor and two council candidates appeared informally before Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, CIO last night to discuss their positions on matters of interest to Cumberlanders.

The candidates were Roy W. Eves, who is opposing Thomas S. Post and P. Allan Weatherholt for mayor in the primary election Monday, and Lloyd Ishmiel Adams, a member of the union, and Clifton E. Fuller, who seek posts on the council.

Playford Aldridge, union president, said the union did not endorse any of the candidates and that the special meeting was called merely to give the candidates an opportunity to state their views on problems faced in the city.

Relocating Armory Road Discussed

Possible relocation and grading of the road leading to the Naval Armory on McKaig's Hill were discussed yesterday by Naval Reserve officials and City Engineer Ralph L. Rizer.

Comdr. W. D. Horton, civil engineer for Naval Reserve in the Fifth Naval District, from Norfolk, Va.; Lt. Comdr. Walter N. Hedrick, organizing officer of the Cumberland Organized Naval Reserve Division, and Charles Nuzum, local consulting engineer, attended the conference.

Highway Loading Restrictions Are Eased On 10 More State Roads

Emergency loading restrictions for trucks traveling on Maryland highways were lifted yesterday on 10 more state highways, G. Bates Chaires, district engineer of the State Roads Commission, said last night.

Meanwhile, Chaires reported there have been 125 violations of restrictions in this district, which includes Allegany, Garrett, Frederick and Washington Counties.

Limits were withdrawn from trucks traveling the following roads:

U. S. Route 11 from Hagerstown north of the Pennsylvania state line.

State Route 150 from Baltimore to Martin's Boulevard.

State Route 151 from Baltimore to Sparrows Point.

State Route 700 from U. S. Route 40 to State Route 150.

State Route 147 from Baltimore to U. S. Route 1.

State Route 216 from Highland to Laurel. On this highway, bridge over the Patapsco River is posted for 20,000 pounds.

State Route 175 from U. S. Route 1 to State Route 103.

State Route 542 from Baltimore to Joppa Road.

State Route 148 from State Route 147 to U. S. Route 1.

Chaires said highways in the northern part of the Eastern Shore and in Southern Maryland suffered the most damage.

Telephone Union Conference To Be Held In Baltimore

Md. Group Likely To Set Pattern In East

Policies that likely will set the pattern for negotiation of contracts for telephone plant workers' unions in 10 eastern states will be discussed at a three-day conference, March 3 to 5, in Baltimore, according to Robert O. Slemmer, vice president of the Maryland Federation of Telephone Workers (Independent).

The Maryland union, according to Slemmer, will discuss bargaining policies with representatives from nine other eastern states before opening negotiations to replace its own present agreement with the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company of Baltimore City, which expires April 30.

Since the Maryland contract, which covers 2,000 telephone workers, is the first to expire in the East, and among the first in the nation, Slemmer said its policies probably will be copied by the other unions when they open negotiations in the near future.

Expected to attend the meeting besides the Maryland delegation are representatives from New Jersey, Pennsylvania, New York and the six New England states, according to Slemmer, who said approximately 65,000 plant workers of telephone companies throughout the East will be represented.

Negotiations to replace the Maryland contract are expected to start shortly after the Baltimore conference, Slemmer declared, adding "we are hopeful that the contract will be settled this year without a recurrence of the work stoppage that idled workers for three weeks last year."

The MFTW members were finally awarded a $3 across-the-board increase for Baltimore City workers and a $2 across-the-board increase for state workers by an impartial board of arbitration to which the union demands were submitted.

Slemmer, a Cumberland resident who is the MFTW Western Council representative, was re-elected vice president of the Maryland Federation at a board of governors meeting held in Baltimore February 13. H. D. Jones was elected president, W. E. Fisher was re-elected secretary, and D. F. Edwards, Sr., treasurer. All are Baltimore City residents.

Plant To Make Water Line Pipe Being Set Up

Operations To Start Early In April

Work has begun on construction of a plant near the Western Maryland Railway yards in Ridgeley, W. Va., where the concrete pipe to be used in the second water line from Lake Gordon to the city will be made, according to Edwin E. Phoenix.

Phoenix is a superintendent for the Lock Joint Pipe Company, East Orange, N. J., which has an arrangement with the Cumberland Contracting Company to provide the necessary concrete pipe.

The Cumberland Contracting Company, with a low bid of $744,838, was awarded the contract for construction of the water line by the Mayor and Council last November.

Phoenix said he has arranged to lease five and three-quarters acres of land from the Western Maryland Railway to provide a site for the plant.

Erection of three frame shelters for steel fabrication work has already started, as well as construction of a "steam box" structure of weatherboard siding, 150 by 20 feet, for concrete pouring and steam curing, Phoenix said.

He explained the latter structure will contain three 50-foot compartments, since that part of the operation will be carried on in a three-day cycle. The "steam box" structure will be 16 feet high to allow for casting pipe in 16-foot lengths.

The superintendent, who will remain here to conduct the pipe-making operation, said the plant will probably employ about 50 men, the majority of them from local unions. Only a few key men from New Jersey will be needed, he explained.

Phoenix said it is hoped to begin operations by the first of April. The plant will be designed to produce 40 pipe lengths per day, or 640 feet.

About 42,000 feet of pipe will be required for the entire water line, and Phoenix said manufacture is expected to be completed in the early fall.

The reinforced steel cylinder concrete pipe will be 36 inches in diameter.

Keyser Mill Plans Union Shop Vote

The first union shop election to be scheduled in this area since the passage of the Taft-Hartley Labor law will be held soon for members of a sub-local of Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, CIO.

John G. Thomas, business manager, said the vote will be conducted in the Potomac Worsted Spinning Mill, Keyser, W. Va., on Friday, March 5.

The election, to be conducted under the auspices of the National Labor Relations Board, will be held in the plant from noon until 12:45 p. m. for the 54 employes eligible to vote.

The new labor law requires a vote of 51 per cent of hourly rated employes and not a mere majority of votes cast.

Similar balloting is required by the law prior to the termination of each year's contract, the union said.

C. AND P. REPORTS RECORD REVENUE

BALTIMORE, Feb. 25 (AP) — President Randolph Maddox of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co., of Baltimore said in his annual report today the ratio of income to invested capital declined to its lowest point in history in 1947.

The revenue, $37,023,377, is the largest the company has ever had, he said.

Total operating expenses and taxes amounted to $34,731,156, leaving a net operating income of $2,292,221. After other expenses, the company had a net income of $2,110,800, at the rate of $3.52 per common share, compared with $4.88 in 1946.

Service in 1947 was partially restored to prewar standards, Maddox said.

The public Service Commission approved rate increases last year amounting to $5,289,695 annually.

Maddox said total construction in progress in 1948 amounts to $10,800,000, and includes an 8-story addition to the Baltimore headquarters building, new buildings for Cumberland, Towson, Catonsville; an addition at Annapolis; and toll cable installations for Rockville, Frederick, Pikesville, Westminster and Salisbury.

Affiliated companies serve Virginia, West Virginia and the District of Columbia.

26 TWUA Delegates To Attend Meeting

The nomination and election of 26 delegates to the biennial convention of Textile Workers Union of America, CIO, will be held at a special membership meeting of the union Wednesday, March 3, at 7:30 p. m.

The convention will be held in Atlantic City April 27 to May 1 and Playford Aldridge, union president, said Local 1874 delegates will charter a special bus for the trip.

Members who are unable to cast ballots for the delegates Wednesday night because of night shift work may vote at the union hall Thursday from 10 a. m. to noon.

Local 1874, the largest single unit in the TWUA, will send a full delegation to the convention.

School Board Considering Five-Year County-Wide Improvement Program

Cost Of Project Is Estimated At About $485,000, Wilkinson Says; Plans Outlined

The Board of Education has under advisement a county-wide five-year school improvement program that will cost approximately $485,000, which would be paid for out of an annual $100,000 incentive fund, Charles N. Wilkinson, president of the Allegany County Board of Commissioners, said last night.

Wilkinson said he was informed of the program when the commissioners met with the Board of Education Tuesday to request that the incentive fund be turned over to the county to finance a $2,000,000 bond issue to erect three new schools.

The biggest improvement on the program, according to Wilkinson, is scheduled for Bruce High School, Westernport, where the Board of Education plans to spend $175,000. Requirements there are listed as an auditorium and a cafeteria.

A four-room addition plus a farm shop were listed as needed at Oldtown High School, which the Board explained could be provided for approximately $85,000.

Other Needs Cited

Need for a new playground at Humbird Street School was included in the project with cost of purchasing the required ground estimated at $10,000. Cost of repairs at Virginia Avenue School where flooring is reportedly bad were listed at $6,000.

A $25,000 improvement was listed for Columbia Street School where the board indicated a cafeteria and music room are needed. Partitioning a basement at West Side School was listed at $6,000.

A $12,000 project is contemplated for Mt. Royal School, which would permit moving the auditorium to the basement floor and partitioning the present auditorium so that two additional rooms would be acquired.

Needs at Cresaptown were listed as a cafeteria, which the board estimated could be erected at a cost of $8,000. According to Wilkinson the board listed need for two rooms at McCoole to take care of the increasing enrollment and estimated the work could be completed at a cost of $30,000.

An additional $15,000 was listed as needed for improvements at Midland School, where the Board indicated a cafeteria and two class rooms are needed. At present there is on deposit $20,000 for the project, Wilkinson said the commissioners were informed, but the project is expected to cost $35,000.

Need for a general purpose room at Corriganville that could be used as a cafeteria-auditorium was listed, as well as additions for a health room and inside toilets. The estimated cost was $35,000.

An addition of four class rooms and a cafeteria is needed at East Side School, according to the board, which estimated cost at $75,000. Gephart School is also listed as needing two additional class rooms at an estimated cost of $30,000.

Beall Repairs Noted

Extensive repairs at Beall Elementary School are estimated to cost $15,000. Two additional class rooms are needed at LaVale, according to the Board, despite the fact that two are now being erected. Cost is estimated at $35,000.

Father Reinhart Is Injured When Car Strikes Tree

Native of Cumberland Is In Fair Condition

HAGERSTOWN, Feb. 25 (AP) — Rev. Thomas D. Reinhart, 68, pastor of St. Anthony's Shrine, Emmitsburg, was injured seriously today when his automobile hit a tree near here, officials at Washington County Hospital reported.

Father Reinhart said he suddenly "blacked out" while at the wheel.

Father Reinhart was born in Cumberland in 1879.

He had served as pastor at St. Peter's Church, Hancock; St. Mary's, Hagerstown, and St. Peter's, Baltimore, before going to St. Anthony's Shrine about 10 years ago.

Hospital authorities said at 10:30 p. m. that Father Reinhart's condition was "almost fair." Shortly after he was admitted to the hospital last night, Maryland State Police here were advised that he was in a serious condition.

State Police said they were advised that Father Reinhart had been visiting in Cumberland and was returning to Emmitsburg when he was injured at Leitersburg, near Hagerstown.

He is a brother of Harry F. Reinhart, 825 Mt. Royal Avenue, and a cousin of Michael D. Reinhart, well known local realtor. He was ordained in 1909.

Winona Kesner, 16, Ridgeley, was treated in Allegany Hospital here last night for a fractured right ankle. She said she was hurt when she fell in the yard at her home Tuesday night.

Mrs. Clara McCoy, 28, Route 4, was treated in the same hospital yesterday after she fell down a flight of steps and fractured her right wrist.

Also treated in Allegany yesterday were Nona Crabtree, 20, 346 Central Avenue, after she fell and struck her elbow and Mrs. Violet Barron, 37, 411 North Centre Street, after she fell and cut her face.

Mrs. Minnie Digman, 59, 125 Pennsylvania Avenue, was treated in Memorial yesterday afternoon after the second finger of her right hand was caught in the wringer of a washing machine.

Cars Crash As Driver Tries To Avoid Deer

Occupants of two cars escaped injury when a car driven by a Pittsburgh, Pa., man crashed against the rear of another car driven by a Green Spring, W. Va., man who slowed down on Route 28 near Blue Beach Tuesday night in a vain attempt to avoid striking a 200 pound doe.

Trooper E. D. Harbert, Romney, said the cars were proceeding toward Romney when the first vehicle, operated by Reuben N. Corbin, Green Spring, who tried to come to a stop as the deer dashed across the road, was struck by the car of Jerry R. Herbst, Pittsburgh.

Damage to the vehicle was estimated at $200. The body of the doe was too badly crushed to be fit for human consumption, the trooper said. No charges were preferred.

Garment Factory Fire May Cause 14-Day Stoppage

Heavy Loss Expected From Water Damage

Although clean-up details were placed at work immediately to repair damage resulting from the three-alarm fire which broke out in the Cumberland Undergarment Company plant on Gay Street yesterday morning, a plant official reported it will probably be at least two weeks before the plant can be placed into full operation again.

No estimate was given of the damage caused by the blaze but officials of the plant employing 375 workers said the loss from materials will be heavy since much of the cloth was irreparably damaged by water.

Efforts will be made at once to get new materials, a plant spokesman said, adding that it might be difficult to procure the necessary fabric on short notice.

A crew of 16 men was placed at work cleaning and oiling the water-damaged machinery as soon as firemen brought the flames under control.

Building Loss Slight

Firemen said the damage to the building itself was comparatively slight and chiefly consisted of a hole cut in the roof for ventilation.

Firemen said flames were fanned from the basement to the roof of the three-story building when a spark entered the air ducts as workers employed by Abe Feldstein were using acetylene torches on a ventilating system in the cellar.

Employes were ordered from the building by Maurice Milberg, plant manager, after smoke reached the main part of the building. Firemen said there was no confusion as the workers left the premises.

Firemen said South End Fire Company was summoned at 9:15 a. m. after flames spread through the ducts and after workers had used fire extinguishers in a vain effort to control the flames. Central and East Side fire fighters aided in the work of controlling the blaze.

The intense heat set off the plant's automatic sprinkling system and that water, added to water which poured from the ventilating ducts, caused the major damage at the plant.

Will Inspect Cloth

Fire Chief Reid C. Hoenicka criticized the delay in calling firemen to the three-alarm blaze. Plant officials said the alarm was turned in as soon as possible.

Milberg said last night the worst of the mopping up had been completed and that it may be possible today to estimate the amount of material which may be used in the factory.

He added the plant was contacting all sources in an attempt to get early deliveries of materials.

The company said attempts will be made to get one section at a time into operation and that workers will be contacted immediately when work is available.

Ordered To Leave City

City police said yesterday that Nathan Joseph White, New Jersey, was ordered to leave the city after he admitted breaking and entering the Law Building, South Liberty Street, early Tuesday morning.

Edward R. Burkey Council Candidate Lists Five-Point Public Platform

Edward R. Burkey, 601 Patterson Avenue, candidate for city council, said last night he has been giving some thought to the suggestion of Isaac Hirsch that candidates for city council express their views on city management and other questions pertaining to civic affairs.

In his public statement, Burkey, a veteran of World War II, said, "I am in favor of city management and charter revision, but believe that questions of this nature should be placed before the citizens of Cumberland by referendum so the majority can decide.

"As a candidate for council, there are several points which I believe are of immediate importance, and I wish to emphasize these as a part of my campaign. These are my objectives:

"First, our city should use every means at its command, including the active influence of the mayor and council, to encourage new industries to locate here.

"Second, a general and widespread clean-up program of streets, alleys and unsightly and unsanitary places should be inaugurated. Street lighting should be improved and a number of streets, particularly in South Cumberland, should be resurfaced.

"Third, an adequate recreation program, aggressively pursued is needed for our children and adults.

"Fourth, a thorough study should be made to eliminate traffic con-

Jaycee Office Has City Data On Rat Campaign

Residents of Cumberland who desire information on the campaign to kill rats are requested to telephone the office of the Junior Association of Commerce, telephone 29, or the office of the county farm agent, telephone 1440, sponsors of the campaign said yesterday.

Plans for the campaign in this county are progressing rapidly and 500 county farmers are pledged to co-operate. Rural sections generally are lining up rapidly behind the effort.

Scores of people, the Jaycee committee said, are planning to participate in the drive in the city proper, and merchants in Cumberland are well-stocked with various kinds of acceptable and efficient rat killers. Practically all hardware stores, feed dealers, some department stores, grocery stores and others have stocks on hand and there should be no difficulty in obtaining the type "rat killer" desired.

Campaign officials are urging that materials be purchased as soon as possible and that the buyer follow the manufacturer's directions on application.

A recent check of stores by the Junior Association of Commerce revealed that an ample supply is available including Red Squill, Anti-Rat, Lampu, Hygienic Sanitation, Rat Kisses, Rat Brew, Barker's Rat Poison, Rat Nip, Red Death, Rat Bisq and others. The active ingredient in most of these is either Red Squill, Antu or both.

The Junior Association of Commerce and McHenry's office have circulars that explain "pre-baiting" and the use of both Red Squill and Antu. Circulars will be mailed to any one who requests them by telephoning the name and address to the Junior Association of Commerce.

County Agent McHenry said yesterday the campaign in Allegany county is ready to be activated. Since the statement by Governor Lane in which he proclaimed March 1-6 as "Rat Death Week," there has been activity in all counties and a state-wide program set in motion, McHenry said.

Temperature Reading

Continued mild weather is in store for today although light rain and considerable cloudiness are expected. Yesterday's maximum was 53 degrees and the mercury had dropped only to 49 by 10:30 p. m. At 8 a. m. yesterday the mercury stood at 31 and the overnight low was 28.
